BARE NEW DEAL POWERS TO SET UP IN BUSINESS

Operate by Special Corporations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 1.—[Special.]—While congress prepares to investigate charges that the Roosevelt brain trust wants to nationalize American industry, trade, and farming, the New Dealers already have seized power through five quasi-governmental corporations to put the government into direct competition with every type of private business, inquiry revealed today.

Using powers granted to it through these corporations, the government under the New Deal could manufacture anything from carpet tacks to steam engines. It could manufacture breakfast food and mine coal. It could run farms. It could build a second Empire State building or run a country grocery store. It could deal in all securities and commodities, borrowing and lending money.

Existence of these sweeping powers already within the grasp of the New Dealers was revealed today by an examination of the charters of five corporations in which the government owns all the stock; The Emergency Housing corporation, the Commodity Credit corporation, the Electric Home and Farm authority, the Subsistence Homestead corporation, and the Surplus Relief corporation.

The Legal Possibilities.

Here are some of the businesses in which the government could engage through these five corporations:

Manufacture, buy and sell building materials or supplies "of every nature and description."

Construct, maintain, and operate any type of structure or edifice from sewers to apartment houses.

Deal in stocks, bonds, mortgages, and other types of securities.

Build, buy, and operate "mines, industries, power plants, farms, commercial establishments," as well as parks, forests, and playgrounds, especially in connection with subsistence farms.

Produce, store, ship, export, and process all farm products and their derivatives.

Manufacture and deal in electrical appliances and carry on a chattel mortgage loan business on electrical appliances.

Under Left Wingers.

In addition to these specific powers the five corporations enjoy among themselves the power to borrow and lend money without limit and, in some cases, without security. One of the corporations has the right to condemn private property.

All of these corporations were set up under the direction of one or more of the New Dealers who have been charged with radical ambitions since the beginning of the brain trust rumors.

The Housing corporation is a by product of the Public Works administration headed by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. The PWA legal staf is led by Henry T. Hunt. Both Hunt and Ickes have been mentioned as probable witnesses at the pending brain trust investigation.

Rexford Guy Tugwell, nominal head of the brain trust, is a leading figure in the Subsistence Homestead corporation. Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, also heads the Surplus Relief corporation.

Under Delaware Laws.

Arthur E. Morgan, cited yesterday for radical utterances, heads the Tennessee Valley authority, of which the Electric Home and Farm authority is an offshoot. At the head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation's legal staf, where he would pass upon the charter of the Commodity Credit corporation, sits Thomas Corcoran, coauthor of the pending stock market bill and disciple of Felix Frankfurter.

All of the corporations have been formed under Delaware laws, notoriously loose in their restrictions on corporate organizations and practices. This habit of setting up government corporations in Delaware instead of the District of Columbia has recently been criticized by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

Some of the businesses which would face government competition if the government ever decided to exercise all its corporate powers are contractors, building materials manufacturers, apartment house owners, farmers and all agents connected with farm marketing, mines, sewer com-

SHOWER DRIVES EASTER PARADE INSIDE AUTOS

Spring Togs Worn Despite Rain.

A full page of pictures showing how Chicagoland observed the Easter Sabbath in church attendance and brief promenades between showers will be found on the back page.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Easter and inclement weather so often are synonymous, especially when Easter is as early as it was this spring, that it wasn't any surprise yesterday to have leaden skies and frequent showers instead of sunshine and a warm temperature which would have tempted the world of fashion to appear in an Easter parade after church in all the glory of new spring finery.

There couldn't be any parade from the old water tower to North avenue on Lake Shore drive after church as there is whenever the weather is pleasant, for just as the services in the churches where society worships were over the rain came down steadily and umbrellas hastily were opened to protect new Easter bonnets or older and warmer winter chapeaux, and every one made a dash for the shelter of her own limousine or a taxicab.

Don Easter Clothes, Anyway.

New spring clothes were in evidence, however, on the worshipers who filled the churches, abloom with Easter lilies and spring flowers, for there were many who braved the cold east wind and penetrating dampness and left their warm winter coats at home. But those who depended upon pride in their chic new outfits to keep them comfortable shivered, and those who had confined their Easter celebration in dress to corsages and accessories looked far warmer than did their vainer sisters.

Many fur coats as well as new spring coats and suits were dressed up with corsages and, although there were some colored flowers blooming on feminine shoulders, there were far more white ones. Exquisite orchids and fragrant gardenias were the favorites, and almost all the orchids were of the dwarf variety, with touches of pastel or vivid coloring. Large orchids may be scarce or perhaps it is just that they are not in fashion's fickle favor just now.

Most Outfits Are Blue.

It was a blue Sunday in more ways than one, for most of the new outfits were of that color. The craze for navy blue extended to hats, handbags and shoes, and some smartly dressed women even carried blue umbrellas. Beige is running second in the spring race of colors apparently, with black and gray coming in third and fourth. The subdebs practically all wore navy blue leaving the more brilliant colors to their younger sisters and very young brothers.

Two of the prettiest and most becomingly gowned young ladies who worshiped at the fashionable Fourth Presbyterian church were Barbara and Margaret Hutchins, who are at home from eastern schools for the spring vacation and who were accompanied to church by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins. One wore a taffeta hat with a narrow brim and a crisp taffeta scarf to complete her navy blue outfit and the other accented her blue coat with a white dotted blue taffeta scarf and a narrow band of the same on her shiny blue straw hat. Gardenias decorated the shoulders of these two subdebs.

Barbara Frey Wears Large Hat.

Another subdeb who chose blue for her Easter outfit was Barbara, the younger daughter of the Charles Daniel Freys. Her straw hat was large and trimmed with a white cord, and filling in the neck of her tightly belted coat, which looked something like a Cossack's cloak, was a blue and white striped taffeta scarf, worn Ascot fashion, as are all scarfs this year, apparently.

The Misses Betty and Eleanor Colt, debutantes of last season, depended upon corsages of gardenias to give them a springlike appearance, for each was wearing a fur coat. Betty's gray coat was brightened up by a scarlet hat and showing below Eleanor Harendurf coat was a gown of a rich gold color. Miss Grace Dewes did not take a chance on catching a cold by appearing in her new suit of brown and beige checked tweed, for over it she wore a brown fur coat. Her sister, Miss Dorothy Dewes, who accompanied her to the 10:30 service at the Fourth Presbyterian church, wore a black coat with a silver fox collar, both black and wearing flowers—

Nazis Worship Teuton Idol at Pagan Ritual

GARNISCHE - PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, April 1.—(AP)—Mystic paganism and ancient ritual heralded spring and Easter in many villages of Bavaria today.

Stimulated by activities of Nazis heathen cult propaganda, the ancient customs of the dark days of the Teutons were brought to the forefront of Easter celebrations, especially among the peasant population in the Bavarian Alps.

Preceding church services in the simple mountain chapels, spring processions were held in many villages in order to reconcile the patron of the mountains and "the grim master, weather."

Crack Whips to Scare Witches.

Favorable winds were asked for the coming year. According to ancient beliefs, both wind and water come from mountains, and were worshiped and defined, as one.

This Teuton idol was traditionally also the master of witches, ghosts, and goblins who harm peaceful peasants. Today could be seen youths accompanying bright processions, cracking whips to scare away evil witches.

Last night large wheels of flame were sent tumbling down the slopes of the Wotan hills while hand clapping, carol singing peasants danced around bonfires built in the open. The ceremony meant the announcement of springtime.

Wash with Easter Water.

In accordance with another ancient Teutonic custom followed in lower Bavaria and Franconia, young farm lads wandered along mountain brooks at sunrise and washed their faces with Easter water, which, according to legend, has healing effects.

In other districts priests participated in an annual spring horseback ride to obtain a blessing from Wotan for the farmer, his fields and his farm animals.

Colored eggs hidden under the roof of a farmhouse will keep lightning and hail away, says still another old Teuton legend, while eggs laid on Good Friday and buried over the roof on Easter Sunday will save the house from fire.

Big Meteor Flashes Way Across Chicago Skies

A brilliant meteor flashed in the southwestern skies early today and was seen by scores of Chicagoans. The meteor was traveling westward. Witnesses described it as being as large as a moon, with a long tail that spread like feathers. Among those who reported the celestial visitor were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wittman, 1415 East 71st street, and Charles Hook, 5029 Wayneland avenue.

BYRD'S MATES LEAVE HIM TO LONE VIGIL; REPORTS 60° BELOW

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, April 1.—(AP)—[Via Mackay Radio.]—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today spent his first day of a seven months' vigil in the world's southernmost weather observation post. He reported this morning by radio from his advance base, miles south of Little America, that the main body of the tractor party had left him yesterday and now was homeward bound. He reported a temperature of 60 degrees below zero.

Admiral Byrd recognized the hazards in a lone existence and was keenly interested in the mental problem involved in solitude so complete. He plans to write and keep a continuous meteorological record. Up to now the bulk of antarctic meteorological data has been collected by ships operating in antarctic waters.

In the absence of the leader the camp at Little America is settling into a new routine under the direction of Dr. Preuten, second in command. The full energies of the camp were being directed toward making the place secure for the winter night. A system of tunnels was being dug to house the crates of 140 huskies. Tunnels also were being sunk to connect the new buildings.

POLICEWOMAN SHOOTS ANOTHER PURSE SNATCHER

Policewoman Alice McCarthy of the south parks shot a young thief last night as he fled after snatching her purse.

The policewoman, who is assigned to the job of catching purse snatchers on the south side, was standing in front of 438 Oakwood boulevard when the thief, James Hall, 16 years old, a Negro, of 4610 Calumet avenue, grabbed her purse. He refused to stop on her command and she brought him down with one shot. Hall was taken to the Provident hospital with a wound in the back.

On March 10 Policewoman McCarthy shot Veodis Pickenpack, a Negro, in the hand when he and a companion tried to snatch her purse.

ROBBED OF EASTER SUIT IN PARADE, HE RIDES IN TAXI

Walter Miller, 12½ years old, 3653 Polk street, city fireman, left home yesterday clad in a complete new outfit to join the Easter parade. Four bandits seized him at 34th street and Michigan avenue, and after learning he had only 60 cents forced him at the point of a revolver to give them his new hat, topcoat, and suit. He took a taxicab home, clad in his underwear.

RedArmyNear Revolt, Soviet Flyer Reports

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 2.—[Monday.]—Bitter hatred of the soviet government and the Gay Pay Ou [Russian secret service] is developing in the Russian army as a result of oppressive measures which are being resorted to in an effort to strengthen the soviet military power in the far east.

This was disclosed, according to a special dispatch to the Tokio Nichi Nichi, by Lieut. Valronieff, one of the soviet flyers who was forced down in Manchukuo on March 9. The officer is being examined by a military court at Hsinking [Changchun], the capital of Manchukuo.

Flees to Manchukuo.

Lieut. Valronieff declared that he escaped from Russia with his mechanic, Subliuet, Dmitori, because he was unable to bear the hardships of oppression. When he was ordered to test a new type of bombing plane he decided, he said, to flee to Manchukuo. The lieutenant said Moscow is attaching the utmost importance to the far eastern situation. He added that the soviet is sending strong forces to the Manchukuan border.

To do this the Russian government is subjecting the people, especially farmers, to untold suffering, he said, and is compelling them to work day and night on bread and water.

Simultaneously, he added, Moscow is coercing the Red army to undergo hardships and privations. The aviator claims there is a dire lack of food and clothing. Angered by oppression, he said, unrest is spreading to the populace as well as the army. The government is alarmed and in an effort to stamp out the insurgent attitude is watching the younger officers closely, Valronieff said.

Pursued by Planes.

Shortly after taking off Valronieff and his mechanic were pursued by three pursuit planes, he said.

"We barely were able to enter Manchukuo territory when we decided to risk landing rather than be shot down!" he exclaimed.

The aviator said Russia has no bombing and pursuit planes at Chita and a plane manufacturing plant near Blagoveschensk. He said the government is perfecting military aviation centers at Khabarovsk, Vladivostok, and Irkutsk.

Appeal to Missing Co-ed Read at Easter Services

A plea for the return home of Eunice Pollock of Manitowoc, Wis., University of Wisconsin student who disappeared from school March 17, was read yesterday in Catholic churches throughout the city in the hope the girl was attending Easter mass. John Pollock, the father, sent the appeal to the churches.

Quiz Suspect in 6 Murders on West Coast

Bremerton, Wash., April 1.—(AP)—A used dealer accused of taking a blood-stained suit to a tailor for cleaning was questioned today by police seeking the slayer of six persons in the ransacked Frank Flieder home.

Authorities said the man was only one of a group held for questioning, and emphasized that no one was specifically accused of the killings.

The dealer, described by authorities only as "Murphy," was taken into custody after Isadore Laschbin, Bremerton tailor, read of the killings. Laschbin said Murphy brought the suit to him last Friday—the day after the slaughter apparently occurred—with the explanation he had suffered a hemorrhage.

Flieder, 45 year old retired Bremerton grocer, was gagged, shot through the base of the skull and beaten almost beyond recognition, together with his wife, 50; Eugene Chenevert, 33; his wife, Mrs. Peggy Chenevert, 30; Magnus Jerdon, retired navy man, and Fred Balsom, a bartender.

All Bound and Gagged.

Sheriff D. L. Blankenship said the killer apparently bound and gagged the six persons and then set about ransacking the house in the belief the Flieders had valuables concealed.

Chenevert evidently worked loose, freed himself and started to battle the murderer.

"After killing him the slayer went mad and slaughtered all in the house," the sheriff said.

One of Chenevert's bloodstained hands clasped the leg of an upturned stool as if he had made one last convulsive effort to get to his feet.

A hammer and a blackjack, used in the beatings, were near the bodies. A butcher knife and carving knife also used in the murders were in the bedroom.

Drawers had been pulled out in all bureaus and the contents scattered on the floor. Two diamond rings valued at $2,100, owned by Mrs. Flieder, are missing.

Criminologist on Case.

Luke S. May, Seattle criminologist, joined Blankenship in the investigation at the home, located on Erland's point, seven miles northwest of Bremerton.

The public was barred from the building, situated on a plot of ground overlooking Ostrich bay, a part of Puget sound, while May and Sheriff Blankenship studied the scene of the tragedy.

The house showed evidence of a terrific struggle. In the kitchen dishes were overturned, bottles broken and food scattered on the floor.

A bedroom, a small sitting room, bathroom and living room opened on a narrow hallway leading from the kitchen. In the sitting room were the bodies of Jordon and Mrs. Chenevert. Jordon's body was slumped in a chair, his feet and hands hanging sidewise. Mrs. Chenevert lay partly on the floor, her elbow and forearm half supporting her on a day bed.

Woman's Eyes Taped.

In the bedroom, likewise wrecked, the body of Mrs. Flieder, clad in a red dress, was stretched out on the bed. Her eyes were taped, her wrists bound and her mouth gagged. The body of Balsom was in a closet, the head propped up by pillows partly hidden under hanging clothes.

The living room, where the bodies of Chenevert and Flieder were found, presented the most terrific scene of violence. Chenevert had made a desperate struggle for life before he died.

Maxine, 10 year old daughter of Flieder by a former wife, escaped death, as she had been living with Flieder's brother, Louis, secretary of the Elks' lodge in Bremerton.

TURKS NAB HIM ON SHIP; ORDER HIS EXTRADITION

'A Crushing Blow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ISTANBUL, April 2.—[Monday.]—Samuel Insull suffered a bitter disappointment at his hearing before a Turkish court here yesterday. The fugitive misinterpreted the court's decision and thought he had again become a free man.

The following routine of questions was gone into: First, whether he was charged with a political offense; second, if he was accused of a military offense; and third, whether he was a Turkish citizen.

On all these questions the court ruled in Insull's favor. In the confusion the court interpreter made a mistake and told Insull he was a free man.

"Thank God!" exclaimed Insull.

He turned to his interpreter to ask him to thank the court on his behalf. Insull also told the interpreter to inform the court that he knew he would always get a square deal in Turkey. The error then was rectified. Insull's face blanched.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 1.—(AP)—Bewildered Samuel Insull, virtually a prisoner of the Turkish government, will be told tomorrow that he is to be turned over to American authorities for extradition.

A session of the Turkish cabinet to hand him over was communicated tonight to the governor general of Istanbul, who will inform the former Chicago financier. After notification he will be placed formally under arrest.

Removed from the Greek freighter Maiotis, his floating haven for the last fifteen days, Insull heard a Turkish court declare the offense of which he is accused a "common crime" and was escorted to a room in a modest hotel for the night.

Asks for a Barber.

One of the first things he did after arriving at the hotel was to look in the mirror. He seemed struck with his appearance, especially noting that his hair had grown long. He asked for a barber.

Later he wrote a long letter and then asked for his dinner. His bedroom was small but comfortable, containing, besides a glass fronted wardrobe, a washstand and sofa, two chairs, a table and a stove.

The final scenes of Insull's long fight to escape American authorities who seek him on embezzlement charges flashed in kaleidoscopic fashion across the most significant Easter Sunday of the 74 year old man's life.

It was generally conceded that he had reached the end of his rope.

The Turkish cabinet, sitting at Ankara, the capital, wasted no time in making up its mind to grant a request from Washington for his extradition when word was flashed from Istanbul that the court had found Turkish law would uphold the action.

Permitted to Send Telegram.

Insull's last request of the authorities was for permission to send telegrams. This was granted. Authorities ordered him left alone for the night in his hotel room in the "old city" of Istanbul.

Insull himself did not know his own status when he left the court and was taken to the hotel.

"What is my legal position?" he asked.

"We cannot tell you anything until tomorrow," officials answered.

Insull had asked to be allowed to return to the Maiotis, but this request was refused.

Wearing a black suit and overcoat in court, Insull appeared very puzzled at the proceedings and strongly protested his forced removal from his chartered ship in the harbor.

Asks for English Copy.

He asked for an English copy of the accusations against him, but only a French copy was available. The court interpreter explained that the document was the best he could do, since he knew English imperfectly.

The court proceedings were over in 15 minutes. The scene was a confused one. People gathered around Insull after the session, both congratulating him and condoling him.

At his hotel, situated near Sublime Porte, he was unable to speak French with the authorities and another interpreter had to be obtained. Insull asked to see Capt. John Mo...curis of the Maiotis and was informed he would come to the hotel later.

Insull then was shown into a third room in the hotel and complained that it was too small. The management gave him the largest one they had.

"Can I have my luggage?" he asked.

He was told that it would be sent up to him.

Officials explained that since he was a "guest" of the Turkish government he could have anything he desired.

"Give me a glass of water, please. I am very tired," he said, turning away with a gesture of resignation.

He declined to move to a larger hotel, saying, "I shall be quieter." He told a British subject who was present that he had no lawyer in Istanbul but that he hoped to obtain one very soon.

The captain of the Maiotis, accompanied by a Turkish policeman, visited Insull after he had finished his dinner.

An Associated Press correspondent called on Insull later in the evening and found him a depressed and puzzled man, regarding himself as purely a victim of fate.

"Why am I here?" he asked. "Why am I guarded? I am no criminal."

The Hotel Aydin, the Turkish establishment where Insull is staying, is guarded by a group of uniformed and plainsclothes police. The correspondent had to obtain permission from a police officer to see Insull.

Starts at Seeing Stranger.

Insull's room is on the second floor. The fugitive sat in an easy chair of wickerwork, his snow white hair and large spectacles making him a conspicuous and seemingly out of place figure.

He seemed deeply occupied with thought, or else absent minded, and started at seeing a stranger. A policeman in attendance upon him wished to prevent the correspondent from approaching, but Insull made a gesture for the writer to advance.

"What do you wish with me?" he asked.

Insull was urged to say something for publication.

"What are your impressions?" he was asked.

"My impressions!" exclaimed Insull. "I have none. Or, rather, I understand nothing. Why am I brought here? I am simply a victim of fate."

Raising a trembling hand to his forehead he lapsed into silence and would not talk further.

Protests Removal from Ship.

Insull's vehement protests at being forced to leave the Maiotis [both he and his lawyers had said he would resist by force any efforts to make him leave the vessel], coupled with his statement of intention to hire lawyers in Istanbul, were taken as indication that he still intended to fight extradition to the last ditch.

Tonight, however, there was no apparent loophole through which he could prolong his flight from trial in Cook county, Illinois, where he once conducted his vast utilities enterprises.

Easter Sunday weather in Istanbul was depressing. Insull was escorted from the ship in a pouring rain, landing at Galata bridge, which spans the Golden Horn. Maritime police accompanying him sloshed through the drenching downpour to the courtroom near the famous St. Sophia mosque.

The courtroom was tiny and packed with people. There were only two points for the court to clear away. They had to identify the fugitive and classify the crime of which he was accused.

The Turkish penal code under which he was apprehended specifies that the accused must be of other than Turkish nationality and that he be charged with offenses other than political or military ones.

Three Judges Hear Evidence.

Three solemn Turkish judges heard the evidence. Insull was established as an American citizen and the crime of which he was accused was labeled a "common crime." That was all they needed to know.

Insull was told that he might leave the chamber and the decision of the court was transmitted immediately to Attorney General Kenan Bey, who in turn informed the government at Ankara, which immediately acted on the case.

American Ambassador Robert B. Skinner extended his thanks to Foreign Minister Rushdi Bey for the friendly and coöperative attitude of the Turkish government in complying with a request from Washington for Insull's extradition.

An extradition treaty between the United States and Turkey, already ratified by the American congress, must still be ratified by the Turkish parliament before the way is clear for Insull's deportation. This, it was learned, probably will be done tomorrow.

No further ramifications were apparent today in threatened complications before Greece and Turkey over the Insull incident.

The captain of the Maiotis protested that Turkish authorities had unlawfully held his ship in the harbor of Istanbul and the Greek government asked Turkey to explain the detention.

Possibilities of a delicate international situation were immediately seen. Turkey found itself between two alternatives—that of offending the United States on the one hand, and of offending its recent friend and former enemy, Greece, on the other.

Greek Envoy Files Protest.

Greece thinks the Bosporus, a narrow strait, is to all intents and purposes international territory. The Greek minister to Turkey filed a formal protest. The protest was based on the fact that since the vessel was in transit, its impediment might constitute a violation of the straits convention.

This convention provided that any vessel might pass through after examination by health authorities at the entrance to the Dardanelles, so long as it does not communicate with the shore.

Shipping men explained that the practice has been modified to permit steamers to anchor temporarily in Istanbul harbor to receive supplies, but that it was impossible for the Turkish government to apply strict interpretation of the convention when it chose.

See Health Endangered.

When Insull came ashore it was the first time he had left the rusty 45 year old tramp steamer Maiotis since its departure from Piraeus, Greece, in quest of a new sanctuary where he would be free from arrest.

The excitement of removal from the vessel and the complications involved in the Turkish order for his appearance in court were believed by physicians to have nullified any benefit to his health from the 15 day Mediterranean cruise.

Some apprehension was expressed concerning the condition of his heart. Greek authorities postponed time and again his deportation because of the uncertain condition of his health.

It was learned that after his arrest tomorrow he will not be placed in jail but allowed to remain in his present quarters until he is handed over to American authorities.

Mrs. Insull Ill in Athens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 1.—Friends of Samuel Insull in London today received a message from Athens stating that Mrs. Insull had been taken ill. They said as there is nobody there to take care of her, one member of the London group may leave for Athens immediately. The friends of the Insulls are not pleased with the action of Mme. Helene Kouryoumdjoglou for leaving Mrs. Insull and dashing after Insull.

"It is not very nice for Mrs. Insull to know that another woman is 'running' her husband while she is practically a prisoner," one woman said tonight. "No wonder she was taken ill."

Fly Chartered Plane

Newark, N. J., April 1.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying a chartered plane, arrived at Newark airport from Washington at 2:30 p. m. today accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh and her sister, Miss Constance Morrow. Together they left the Eastern Aeronautical company's hangar in Col. Lindbergh's car.

PARK POLICEMAN SHOOTS AT PAIR AND GAINS A CAR

Lincoln Park Policeman Clarence Welch surprised two men tampering with his automobile parked in front of his home at 1768 Leland avenue early today and fired some shots at the pair. As a result he has an extra automobile on his hands, for the men fled leaving their car behind.

When Welch first sighted the men from his window, he ran from the house to question them, but saw that one of them carried a pistol in his hand. The policeman hurried back into the house, procured his gun and returned to the street. The men ran and he fired several shots over their heads as he pursued them.

The car left by the pair bore 1934 license plates, but they could not be traced because the records have not yet come from Springfield. In the back of the car, however, a set of 1933 plates was found which corresponded with the engine number of the car. This license was issued to Milton Herzman, 24 years old, 4816 North Hermitage avenue. Herzman was taken into custody. He denied ownership of the machine which police said had not been reported stolen.

INSULL ORDERS CHAMPAGNE AND CAVIAR FOR MEAL

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 1.—(AP)—Samuel Insull ordered champagne and caviar tonight for his first meal ashore, but drank only half of the champagne.

He seemed abstract and ate but little, although a menu consisting of lamb cutlets, French beans, and fruit might have been considered a welcome change from the mechanical mealtime routine aboard the Maiotis.

Bandit Pair Rob Brevoort Hotel Manager; Loot $50

Two armed men early today held up Peter J. Kelly, night manager of the Brevoort hotel, 120 West Madison street, and robbed the cash register of $50. As the robbers entered the hotel they covered Kelly with guns and compelled him, two scrub women and an elevator boy to lie on the floor, while they took the money.

GREEN TO URGE TURKEY DEPORT SAMUEL INSULL

Will Outline His Plan to State Department.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, it was learned last night, will ask the state department in Washington today to enter into informal negotiations with the Turkish government to have Samuel Insull deported from that country as an undesirable alien instead of using formal extradition proceedings.

If Turkey could be persuaded to deport Insull, Mr. Green will explain, the government could try him on federal indictments charging use of the mails to defraud and violation of the bankruptcy laws. Also the state of Illinois, he said, could try Insull on the embezzlement and larceny charges which are now pending.

Prefer Mail Charge Fraud.

This would not be possible, Mr. Green said, if extradition becomes the method of Insull's return. In that event he could be tried only on the charges on which he was extradited, which probably would be the bankruptcy indictment. It was indicated that the federal authorities prefer to try Insull on the mail fraud charge.

It was said Insull's extradition might require several months, while he could be returned at once as a deportee. Under extradition, provided Turkey ratifies the pending extradition treaty, it would be necessary to send a presidential messenger to Turkey with a warant for Insull and new affidavits of the charges. But by ordering his deportation Turkey could put Insull on the first ship bound for the United States.

Turkey's Friendly Service.

Mr. Green's message is expected to receive serious consideration from the state department in view of the goodwill aspects of the Turkish cabinet's decision ordering the arrest of Insull. Federal authorities in Washington were said to feel that Turkey, in cutting all red tape and approaching the matter in the simplest manner possible, had given evidence of a genuine desire to render friendly service to the United States.

It was said in Washington that the Turkish police might properly turn the fugitive over to the American ambassador, Robert P. Skinner. It would then be up to the state department to see that Mr. Insull entered the custody of proper officials for the return to the United States as a deportee.

Washington officials declined to comment on reports from Istanbul other than to say that they were gratified. None was found willing to predict the exact course of the United States government, as no case of this kind has occurred before.

In Chicago Mr. Green conferred with Assistant United States Attorney General Forrest Harness, who was sent here from Washington to assist in the Insull prosecution. Mr. Harness went to Greece for the federal government during its unsuccessful effort to obtain Insull's extradition from that country.

"If we have to go through extradition proceedings again we shall press both the mail fraud and bankruptcy charges," Mr. Harness said last night. "Of course we would prefer to have Insull turned over independently of any treaty and we will take up this matter in the morning with the state department."

VETO OVERRIDE STILL ECHOING THROUGH CAPITAL

Action Scuttles Economy Program.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 1.—[Special.]—The overwhelming repudiation by congress of President Roosevelt's veto of the bill restoring war veterans' compensation and government employés pay is still reverberating in the capital. All sorts of implications are being deduced from this signal rebuff of a chief executive who for a year has had everything his own way.

Although the incident is subject to diverse interpretations, there is no disputing the fact that the overriding of the veto completed the scuttling of the President's economy program with which his administration was inaugurated and wiped out the much vaunted reform in the compensation of war veterans.

Hits Presidential Authority.

The economy program laid down the principle that veterans were to be compensated generously for service connected disabilities, but that no compensation was to be allowed for injuries or ailments not actually incurred in war service. Whether a veteran was entitled to compensation was to be a question of fact determined by the executive branch. More than 25,000 veterans were found receiving compensation for disabilities not actually service connected.

By overriding the veto congress not only has restored these 25,000 veterans to the rolls but regained control of pension granting. By the economy act the cost of veterans' benefits was scaled down from 900 million dollars to 486 millions. Now it is back to 706 millions and plans are afoot to restore other pensions that will bring the total up to if not more than the original 900 millions.

Back on Pork Barrel Basis.

Pensions are now back on the pork barrel and log rolling basis that has obtained in congress for generations with the shadow of politics falling athwart the scene. The world war veterans with their powerful lobby maintained by the American Legion bids fair to dominate congress and eventually to become as great a political factor in the nation as the G. A. R. for more than a generation following the civil war.

Taken in conjunction with the defeat of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty which the President did his utmost to put through the senate the repudiation of his veto of the pay bill is widely interpreted as significant of a turning of the tide in the affairs of the Roosevelt administration. The inference is drawn that the President has lost his grip on congress and particularly on his own party. In the house vote on the veto he was deserted by 209 out of 279 Democrats voting and in the senate by 29 out of 56.

Follows Old Custom.

It would be hazardous, however, to become too dogmatic in drawing general conclusions from these phenomena. The vote on the veto establishes nothing more than that Mr. Roosevelt, with all his popularity and the enormous Democratic majorities in both houses and his tremendous political power, was no more successful than his Republican predecessors in combating the veterans' lobby. The world war veterans have defeated every President up to date in every clash over pension legislation.

Doubtless the political honeymoon which the President enjoyed for a year is over. It is not going to be such easy sailing for him from now on. However, he probably will be able to put through congress pretty nearly every important measure on his program, particularly those sponsored by the Democratic platform. For example the bill granting him large powers to revise the tarif through reciprocal agreements with other nations is destined to be passed by the senate, probably before the end of this month. It already has been passed by the house.

Cite Cotton Bill.

The passage of the cotton control bill by the senate last week is cited by administration leaders in disproof of the contention that the President has lost his grip on congress. The fact is, however, that this bill was not exactly an administration measure. It originated with the cotton planters, was forwarded by the Bankhead brothers of Alabama, one in the senate the other in the house, and only belatedly received the reluctant indorsement of the President.

The cotton control bill is an extreme example of the regimentation of all business and production that has become identified with the objectives of the brain trust and the radicals generally, but the fact is it sprang from conservative sources. No one ever classed the Bankheads as radicals.

Tax Is Objection.

One of the principal objections raised to the bill, which would impose a 75 per cent tax on all cotton in excess of 10 million bales, was that it would inure to the benefits of the biz plantation owners, but ruin the little croppers.

"If the bill shall be passed," Senator Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.] told the senate, "there will be farmers in the south who have large plantations and who produce from 500 to 5,000 bales of cotton who will be able to stand it, and who, I will agree for the purposes of the argument, might profit by it. But what shall the congress of the United States say to 900,000 families who make their living by way of producing cotton under the tenant system?

"Mr. President, if there is going to be a limit upon the production of cotton, to be sure we will undertake to fix that limit in response to motives of simple humanity. They shall not muzzle the ox that treads out the corn. The bruised reed we will not break and the smoking flax we will not quench. Thos who produce hundreds and thousands of bales of cotton can afford it; but I tell you in all earnestness that 900,000 of the humbler types—men like ourselves, men with the breath of God in their spirits, and made in His likeness, and only a little lower than the angels, notwithstanding their poverty; men like ourselves in humble condition, and therefore helpless—are entitled to the consideration of a congress that professes to represent a civilized people.

"This bill is inequitable. It is unjust. It is ruinous. If it should be enacted, and the Supreme court should sustain it, the prophecy of the secretary of agriculture will come true, and a million human beings will have to move from the south."

Hoover Easter Guest in City

Leaves for Home

Former President Herbert Hoover left Chicago last night on the Overland limited for his home at Palo Alto, Cal. In an interview as he boarded the train Mr. Hoover was pleasant but noncommittal on questions of political or public import put to him.

"Sorry," said Mr. Hoover, "there's no news. There is no politics in my journey from the west. I have just had a nice trip and visited a lot of old friends."

Mr. Hoover added he would visit the World's Fair this summer and would urge his friends to do likewise. He said he recalled his visit to the 1933 World's Fair, his last trip to Chicago, with the utmost pleasure.

During his stay here Mr. Hoover was the guest of Arch W. Shaw in Winnetka, an old friend, although he and his two secretaries, Lawrence Richey and Paul Sexton, had a suite at the Drake hotel.

DR. WIRT OPENS PAMPHLET FIGHT ON BRAIN TRUST

Writes for Committee of the Nation.

Dr. William Wirt, Gary educator, who recently charged that Washington brain trusters are in a conspiracy to turn the United States over to communism, will continue his fight against the plotters as publicist for the committee of the nation, according to an announcement in New York yesterday.

The fight against governmental regimentation will be made through pamphlets issued by the committee. The first pamphlet, issued yesterday, contains an article by Dr. Wirt entitled "America Must Lose," which is in answer to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's recent brochure, "America Must Choose."

Can't Stimulate by Force.

"Governments cannot stimulate business by main force," writes Dr. Wirt. "They cannot infuse credit, and they cannot force production and the payment of wages. All that government can do is to remove the barriers to trade by restoring the equilibrium in price levels.

"Restoration of price levels and that alone will prime the business pump. After that business will create all the credit that it needs."

To support his contention that governments can only aid, and not force, recovery by removing trade barriers, Dr. Wirt asserts that "business did not begin to recover March 4, 1933," but began "April 19, 1933—the day the federal government stopped pegging the value of gold in foreign exchange."

Denies Holding Man Hunt.

Dr. Wirt asserted yesterday in Gary that he was still awaiting a summons to go to Washington and testify before a congressional investigation committee on his Red charges.

"I am not seeing red nor am I going around looking under beds for Fascists or communists," said Dr. Wirt. "I am not engaged in a man hunt. I just want to call the nation's attention to the fact that the so-called intellectual radicals are changing the government without a revolution or bloodshed."

Cough Forces Queen Mary to Cancel Easter Plans

LONDON, April 1.—(AP)—Queen Mary, suffering from a hard cough, was obliged to cancel her Easter plans today and keep to her rooms in Buckingham palace. She had arranged to accompany King George to the races at Kempton Park tomorrow, but has canceled this also. The Daily Mail said her condition is causing no anxiety.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 1.—(AP)—A bomb exploded early today near the Royal Bank of Canada's branch here, shattering windows in the savings department. Two other bombs were exploded in other parts of the city. Police connected the incidents with an electric and power boycott.

ADMIRAL HEARS REDS TRY TO STIR SAILORS TO REBEL

San Pedro, Cal., April 1.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, chief of staf of the battle force, said tonight an investigation by naval officials of asserted efforts of communists to undermine the morale of the fleet had been ordered.

The investigation followed the arrest of four men on charges of illegally distributing a magazine entitled "Shipmate's Voice," which laid stress on an alleged mutiny in the British Atlantic fleet in 1931.

San Pedro police tonight arrested John C. Britton, 31, at a communist rendezvous and seized a large quantity of pamphlets, magazines, and books, all of which they said were seditious. One of the articles, the officers said, urged Hawaiian labor to organize against "the oppression of Yankee imperialism" and confiscate canneries, banks, plantations, and other commercial and industrial institutions.

DORMITORY ROOM LOOTED.

Elmer H. Podoll and Richard Beckett, students of Garrett Biblical institute in Evanston, yesterday reported to Evanston police that burglars broke into their dormitory room while they were out and took clothing valued at $100.

KING GUSTAF TO HALT WEDDING OF GRANDSON BERTIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, April 1.—King Gustaf of Sweden is much worried over the latest romance of his royal family and will cut short his Riviera vacation, returning to Sweden Monday or Tuesday.

He will, it is understood, attempt to prevent Prince Bertil, fourth child of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, from following in the footsteps of his cousin, Prince Lennart, and his brother, Prince Sigvard, by marrying a commoner. She is Christina Brambeck, daughter of a Swedish army captain who is working in the automobile service.

[Rumors that Prince Bertil would marry Miss Brambeck were officially denied Friday. It was said previously that the prince had received a "half-promise" from his father to permit the marriage.]

King Gustaf recently dined with ex-King Alfonso of Spain and Princess Ingrid, Bertil's sister, in Nice. The king is said to have expressed to them his intention to do all he can to make Bertil change his mind. Lennart married Karin Nissvandt, a commoner, on March 11, 1932. Sigvard married Erika Patzeis. In 1932 Sigvard's cousin, Prince Lennart, married Karin Nissvandt, daughter of a business man.

PILGRIMS OF ALL LANDS, FAITHS FILL JERUSALEM

Moslems Maintain Peace with Christians.

JERUSALEM, April 1.—(AP)—While Christians from all quarters of the globe knelt before the tomb of Christ in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre today, thousands of turbaned Moslems paraded, singing and swinging scimitars through the ancient walled city of Jerusalem in beautiful sunny weather.

Churches of the new and old towns were packed for Easter and Palm Sunday service. Greek Orthodox and other religions adhere to the eastern calendar and are a week behind the western religions. Mohammedans flocked to the mosque of Omar to pray before the sacred stone, prior to making a pilgrimage tomorrow to Nebi Musa, five miles from Jericho, which they believe to be the site of the tomb of Moses.

More than 1,000 Americans participated in Easter services in Protestant and Catholic churches. Pontifical high mass was celebrated for Catholics by the Latin patriarch, Msgr. Luigi Barlassina.

Bloomington Man Presides.

Only a Catholic of western religion has access to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, but the Greek Orthodox convent next door was filled. Episcopalians used the chapel of Abraham, jutting out over a wing of the church, where the Rev. J. H. Weber-Thompson of Jacksonville, Fla., and Bloomington, Ill., tomorrow will conduct services.

Orthodox Greeks held Palm Sunday services in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre simultaneously with the Catholics, then paraded thrice around the tomb to the stone of unction.

Armenians sang the Liturgy in their upper chapel and after the Orthodox procession descended, followed by Copts, or Egyptian Christians, Syrians and Abyssinians. The Copts previously had sung the Liturgy at their altar behind the tomb in a mixture of the vernacular of ancient Egypt and Greek Arabic phrases.

Moslems in Flowing Robes.

Throughout the morning masses were said continuously at every altar in every Catholic church in Jerusalem. At the same time services were conducted in all Protestant churches.

A procession of Moslem pilgrims from Hebron, wearing flowing gowns and white turbans, arrived at noon at the Jaffa gate of the walled city, en route to the mosque built over ruins of the ancient Jewish temple, destruction of which by Romans under Titus was mourned by Jews at the Wailing Wall during the Passover feast Saturday.

Gyrating and brandishing long curved knives, the singing pilgrims consumed hours in traversing the narrow winding streets to their place of worship. Christian and Moslem pilgrims came frequently into close contact, but there was no sign of disorder.

Sacred Rock in Mosque.

The mosque, a beautiful and costly structure, houses the sacred rock, which according to Mohammedan legend is the stone from which Mohammed was transferred to heaven astride his magic steed with a human face—El Burag.

Throughout the day Christians flocked to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and waited their turn in long lines, to kneel and kiss the stone of unction, where Christ's body was said to have been anointed after the crucifixion, or to kiss a cane stuck through a hole in the wall and touching the carefully preserved column to which Christ is said to have been bound during his sufferings preceding the execution.

CHURCHGOERS SHOT AT IN SPAIN; TRY TO LYNCH ATTACKERS

MADRID, April 1.—(AP)—Scattered disturbances during celebration of Easter were reported today in Spain.

At Ciudad Real a group of unidentified persons fired shots at a religious procession and churchgoers attempted to lynch them. During the melee a bomb was thrown into the crowd but failed to explode. Civil guards made several arrests.

The governor at Oviedo suspended a Fascist meeting in a church at nearby El Grado, arresting two priests and 44 persons.

POPE CREATES EASTER SAINT; BLESSES 380,000

Priest Is Canonized as Holy Year Ends.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, April 1.—Rome today witnessed one of the most magnificent Easters in its long history as the capital of Catholic Christendom. To the usual imposing Easter ceremonies in St. Peter's cathedral were added this year, by the special will of Pope Pius XI., the solemn liturgical rites canonizing Dom Giovanni Bosco, humble Turin priest. Today also ended the holy year proclaimed by the pontiff in commemoration of the nineteenth centenary of the crucifixion.

Eighty thousand people pressed inside St. Peter's this morning for the canonization ceremonies and the pontifical mass afterwards, and nearly 300,000 more were estimated to have crowded into St. Peter's square. Among the crowds were 100,000 on pilgrimages from many different countries.

Recalls Five Years Ago.

When Pope Pius appeared on the central loggia before St. Peter's at 1:30 p. m. to bless the crowds and grant the plenary indulgence there was hardly an inch of unoccupied space on the square or any of the approaching streets. The enormous concourse and the acclamations for the pontiff recalled the scenes of five years ago, when peace between church and state was hailed from the same balcony.

Immediately after the sanctification ceremonies carrier pigeons were released to carry the news to Turin, where Dom Bosco lived and carried out many of his educational works.

In addition to the enormous concourse of people 22 cardinals, 80 bishops, and 10 abbots participated in today's grandiose ceremonies. Also present were the king and queen of Siam, Crown Prince Humbert, representing King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, and scores of Roman high nobility.

In accordance with custom, after the canonization, myriads of candles twinkled and spluttered from the dome and facade of St. Peter's tonight, and the domes of several other important churches were lighted up in the celebration of the addition of Dom Bosco's name to the calendar of saints.

The day's events began early this morning with a brilliant procession of secular and regular clergy across St. Peter's square to the basilica. Pope Pius, on his gilded portable throne, with his tiara and pluvial, brought up the rear of the procession.

Inside St. Peter's, with the pope seated on the papal throne, the liturgy of the canonisation began with triple postulations being made by the consistorial advocate for Dom Bosco. So popular is the memory of Bosco, a native of Becchi, among the faithful that when the pope proclaimed him a saint the throngs began to cheer, contrary to custom.

Dom Bosco Founded Salesians.

Dom Bosco, who was killed by Chinese bandits in 1888, was the founder of the Salesian order for the vocational training of boys. His educational foundations are celebrated throughout Italy. On his banner, which was borne in the papal procession, was depicted two miracles—cures wrought by him—on the basis of which he was made a saint.

In his Easter message the pope pleaded for every one to be like "this hero of holiness in order to obtain that victory of spirit which Jesus Christ brought mankind in redemption."

After the pontifical mass there was another picturesque ceremony, in which gifts of wine and bread, bird cages and doves, were offered to Pope Pius. By his special request, one of the doves offered was later given to Prince Humbert.

The day's ceremonies were marred only by the weather. A rainstorm which swept over St. Peter's square just a few minutes before the papal benediction spoiled many a new Easter frock.

EASTER MEANS LITTLE TO LEPER COLONY ON TINY EASTER ILAND

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 1.—(AP)—On Easter iland, a tiny speck of land in the Pacific belonging to Chile, this Sunday means less than in almost any other part of the world. For the little group of afflicted souls cut off from their fellow men hundreds of miles out in the ocean it is just another day of waiting for death, which will release them from the bondage of disease.

The group is composed of 50 members of a leper colony, situated 2,300 miles from the port of Caldera. The iland was named by a Dutch sailor, Roggeveen, who discovered it on Easter Sunday, 1722.

A supply boat, which once or twice a year takes provisions to the colony, usually is accompanied by a priest, who brings books, papers, and cast-off clothing to alleviate the loneliness of the lepers, who have almost no other contact with any mainland.

Contrasted with the Christian influence which caused the iland to be named as it is, the lepers and a handful of natives—all that is left of a once populous civilization—live in the presence of reminders of religious beliefs of prehistoric times.

The iland is dotted with hundreds of large stone statues and with walls and platforms covered with hieroglyphics, whose origin anthropologists consider one of the strangest mysteries of the Pacific.

Thousands of Faithful in Chile March in Easter Rites

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 1.—(AP)—Thousands of religious devotees marched many miles before dawn today in the traditional Easter procession winding up the holy week program. The procession ended at the historic church of Our Lady of Mercy, where sermons and masses continued until daylight. Many ate their breakfast at the church doors, where vendors flocked.

THRONG GATHERS FOR SERVICE IN SOLDIERS' FIELD

Thousands gathered at Soldiers' field early yesterday morning to take part in the community Easter sunrise service, sponsored by 500 Protestant churches, representing twenty-five denominations in the city. The services began at 6 o'clock and were completed an hour later before the rain began.

The Rev. J. J. Althuis of the Englewood Dutch Reformed church and the Rev. Paul W. Rood of the Lakeview Swedish Mission Covenant church conducted the services. Bob Jones, Tennessee evangelist, spoke.

The combined choirs of eighteen churches chanted the "Gloria" and other Easter hymns. The staf band of the Salvation Army also took part in the services.

"HOW I SAVED $27.23 ON MY CAR INSURANCE"

"It certainly paid me to insure with the largest mutual casualty insurance company in the world."

"I SAVED $27.23 on my car insurance last year because I dealt direct with Liberty Mutual.

"You see, they sell only through full-time, salaried automobile insurance specialists. This greatly reduces sales costs.

"They also make big savings by selecting their policyholders. Reckless, dangerous drivers cannot buy insurance from Liberty. Responsible, careful-driving car-owners are entitled to buy insurance at a lower cost—and 115,000 of them did in 1933.

"Under Liberty's strictly mutual plan, these huge savings belong to its policyholders. The balance—after being added to surplus to strengthen the company—is returned to policyholders in the form of cash dividends.

"Every year for 22 years—every Liberty policyholder has received a cash dividend of 20% of his premium. These dividends have totalled over $37,900,000. They have meant an actual saving because Liberty sells at the same standard initial rates as all reliable companies. That's how I saved $27.23 on my 1933 car insurance.

"And, I received protection from the largest, strongest company of its kind in America—a company which has increased resources and surplus, right through the depression.

"No company I know of settles claims more promptly or fairly. They keep their policyholders out of court and out of trouble. Liberty's 115,000 policyholders are Liberty's best salesmen because they renew their policies every year and recommend Liberty to their friends."

SIX YOUTHS FACE TRIAL TODAY FOR RECTORY HOLDUP

Courtney's Staf Ready to Oppose Any Delay.

State's Attorney Courtney announced yesterday that he will oppose any delay this morning in the trial of six youths charged with terrorizing the priests, a woman visitor, and the housekeeper in the St. Columbanus Catholic church rectory, 331 East 71st street, during a robbery on Oct. 29, 1933. The bandits fled with $1,000 taken from the rectory safe. The defendants were tried several months ago on one of the indictments and acquitted by a jury despite their identification as the robbers. At that time the defendants furnished family alibis.

Special preparations have been made by Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis for the second trial of the case. The alibis of the defendants, if produced at the second trial, will be closely scrutinized by police investigators, it was said.

Refuses to Aid State.

The defendants in the case are Tony Mucerino, Peter Frosione, Patrick Whelan, Albert Terrari, James Arido, and Joseph Rocco. Whelan, the police charge, is the tip-off man for the gang. He made a statement to that effect at the time of his arrest, but refused to testify for the prosecution at the first trial. For this reason he will be tried with those charged with committing the actual robbery.

Instead of trying the defendants for robbing the priests of the proceeds of a mission, which had just closed the afternoon of the robbery, they will be tried on the charge of robbing Mrs. Clara N. Noonan Esting, 7440 South Michigan avenue, who called at the rectory while the robbery was in progress. She lost a diamond ring worth $450 and $3 in cash.

According to the evidence Whelan, who attended the mission at the church, is alleged to have given the robbers information as to the amount of money to expect and a layout of the rectory.

Ask to See Priest.

Miss Mary Dillon, the housekeeper, was summoned to the rectory door at 6:30 o'clock on the evening of the robbery. A man asked for Father Francis M. Mulligan. Miss Dillon said he was not at leisure at the time and that the visitor would have to return later. Instead he pushed his way into the house and was followed by his four companions, all of them armed with revolvers or shotguns.

The housekeeper was held prisoner in a room in the rectory along with Father Mulligan and the Rev. Daniel Reardon. Several of the gunmen then went to the study of Monsignor D. P. O'Brien and demanded that he give them $1,000, which they said should be the proceeds from the mission. They held a shotgun to Monsignor O'Brien's head it is charged and gave him two minutes to open the safe on the threat of "blowing his head off."

Threaten to Shoot Priest.

After the robbery one of the gunmen wanted to return to the room where the priests were held prisoners and shoot Father Reardon because he feared he could identify the robbers.

Judge Donald S. McKinlay will preside over the second trial of the defendants, unless a change of venue petition is filed. Prosecutor Courtney instructed his assistants to insist that some other judge start immediate trial of the case if the defendants try to delay matters by means of a change of venue petition.

TWO SUICIDES IN GALESBURG.

Galesburg, Ill., April 1.—Two suicides were reported to police here. The body of Ray Manager, 27, who was employed in a tailor shop, was found hanging in a garage at his rooming house this morning. Harry Yarde, 32, a truck gardener killed himself by taking poison.

MERCHANT WHO TESTIFIED ON '42' GANG DIES

Abraham Donovetsky, a clothing merchant at 1209 South Jefferson street, who had been guarded by police since he reluctantly testified against an alleged member of the "42" gang in a robbery trial last October, died Saturday at his home at 3441 Flournoy street. He was 56 years old. Members of his family said they believed his heart was weakened by the fear of vengeance from gangsters.

Three robbers, one armed with a machine gun, terrorized Donovetsky last October and fled with garments valued at $750. On Donovetsky's testimony Eugene Iscovetti was held to the grand jury and later indicted. The trial is still pending.

Funeral services will be held today from an undertaking chapel at 3163 Ogden avenue. Burial will be in the cemetery of the Order of Knights of Joseph. Surviving are two sons and two daughters.

Shot in Holdup

Baby Leonard Colello, 9 months old, 800 South California avenue, who was struck by a bullet while sleeping in his crib on the second floor when two robbers engaged in a revolver battle Saturday night with Michael Colello, his father, in the bakery on the first floor of their home, was reported out of danger yesterday. Leonard was wounded in the head. The bandits escaped with $185.

FINDS INCOME REDUCTION DOES NOT STOP BABIES

39 Pct. Is Gain Measured by Fund Experts.

New York, April 1.—[Special.]—The depression has not affected the birth rate among those classes of the population whose incomes were reduced in the period between 1929 and 1932, according to the report of a survey made public today by the Milbank Memorial fund.

On the contrary, the report reveals that wage earning families who suffered serious loss of income during the period in question had 39 per cent more babies than their neighbors, whose incomes were not reduced, following 1929. The report shows also that there was 50 per cent more illness in families whose incomes dropped most sharply than in families who were not seriously affected by the depression.

First of Its Kind.

The survey was made by the Milbank Memorial fund in a house to house canvass of 8,000 families in eight typical cities, in cooperation with the United States Public Health service. The study was the first of its kind ever undertaken, according to those in charge. The average income of the families investigated was $1,700 in 1929 and $900 in 1932.

The investigation revealed that families without any employed workers in 1933 had a birth rate during the depression 48 per cent higher than those which had one or more full time workers in 1932. A special study in four cities showed that the families living on relief funds had a birth rate 53 per cent higher than those not on relief, but with incomes of less than $1,200 a year.

The report further states that "the illness rate was relatively great in families without employed workers, less in families with part time workers only, and still less in families with full time workers."

Illness Not a Cause.

However, these figures do not mean that illness was a cause of unemployment, since the questions regarding health referred only to a period of three months in the late spring of 1933, the report points out.

"In fact," it says, "ill health as a cause of unemployment was relatively unimportant in comparison with lack of work." The report concludes that "in so far as illness is an indication, the health of persons comprising families seriously affected by the depression is being impaired."

Fear 3 Killed on Flights to Save Soviet Ice Prisoners

MOSCOW, April 1.—(AP)—With two planes already wrecked attempting to reach 89 men who are stranded on an ice floe off the bleak northern capes of Siberia, soviet rescuers were confronted today with the possibility that three others may be down and their occupants killed.

Word was received today that the aviators Kamanin, Molokoff, and Pivenstein have been unreported since taking off in three machines from Anadyr on March 29 for Cape Vankarem, site of a rescue base.

Fears were growing here that they had met with disaster.

Search Started.

Two other planes were dispatched from Olutorsk bay to search for them but were encountering extremely unfavorable weather conditions.

The three missing aviators hopped off during a fierce snowstorm and it was believed they may have encountered trouble while crossing the dangerous, unexplored Anadyr mountains. Reports said they had not arrived at either Cape Wellen or Cape Vankarem on a flight which normally would require only a few hours.

Polar Bear Provides Meat.

Encouraging reports, however, came from the camp of the castaways, survivors of an expedition headed by Prof. Otto Schmidt, whose vessel, the Chelluskin, was crushed in an ice jam and sank last Feb. 13.

Reports were broadcast from the camp that there was great jubilation over the killing of a polar bear, providing badly needed fresh meat for the party. Schmidt reported that the weather was getting warmer and that snowstorms and fog were becoming more frequent.

Their exact position on a slowly drifting, broken ice floe was not reported. Eight women and two small children were rescued by plane, but conditions have made it impossible to reach the camp a second time.

Cape Vankarem has been designated as a base for air rescue operations, but so far the rescuers have been unable to concentrate any of their planes there. A plane piloted by F. A. Levanevsky crashed in an effort to reach it from Nome, Alaska, and Pilot Liapidevsky was forced down two weeks ago, smashing his plane, while trying to fly there from Cape Wellen.

PRIVATE LIVES OF FINE COWS TO BE SHOWN AT FAIR

Brook Hill Farm Builds $75,000 Model Plant.

Construction work on a complete farm dairy plant will be started this morning at 33d street and Lief Ericksen drive in the grounds of A Century of Progress Exposition. In the exhibit, which is to be erected by the Brook Hill farm, Genesee Depot, Wis., will be shown the private lives of twenty Holstein and Guernsey cows.

The building and equipment will represent an investment of $75,000, according to Howard T. Greene, owner of the farm. Glass building blocks, with sealed hollow spaces to resist temperature changes, will be used in the construction to permit visitors to the World's Fair to watch the cows being bathed, fed, milked, and to see the bottling of the product.

Feeding Will Be Shown.

In their daily feed of hay and grain the cows will get a portion of irradiated yeast, which increases the yield of vitamin D in the milk.

The cows that will be exhibited are being groomed by the farm for their appearance. Already they have learned to operate individual drinking cups by thrusting their muzzles into a cup. The action operates a valve which is regulated in each case to suit the drinking habits of each of the herd.

At milking time two cows at a time will be led into the milking parlor where a modern type milking machine will draw out the milk and deliver it to a glass holding jar.

All Machine Handled.

There the milk will be weighed and then carried through vacuum pipes into the next section. At no time from milking to bottling will the product be exposed to the air or be handled other than by machinery.

A staf of 25 persons has been selected, according to Mr. Greene, to operate the plant and serve as guides. At one end of the building, which will be 200 feet long, 45 feet in width, and topped by a 50 foot tower, a sales counter will permit sampling of the bottled product.

BACK RECTOR IN ATTACK ON LEGION LOBBY

New York, April 1.—[Special.]—Fifty-one leaders of the Protestant and Jewish religious faiths have signed a statement supporting the "courageous stand" taken by the Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Protestant Episcopal church, who in a sermon on March 19, assailed the American Legion lobby at Washington as a "sinister and deadly cancer upon the body of American life."

The statement, made public today, declared that the overriding of the veto of "a President standing for the interests of the whole nation," had given "fresh evidence of the need for such a warning as Dr. Bowie gave."

"We feel that the situation is serious enough to warant a congressional investigation of the activities of the Legion lobby," the statement declared.

In his denunciation of the lobby, Dr. Bowie had accused it of influencing congress to pass "bills which would practically cancel all the reforms of abuses which the President accomplished last spring, and would add some 200 million more dollars to the government's tribute to this lobby."

YELLOW TAXICAB PRESIDENT ASKS FOR HIGHER RATE

An appeal to the public to support a request for higher rates was made yesterday by the Yellow Cab company through it president, Thomas B. Hogan, who urged the enactment of a uniform taxicab rate by the city council. The low rates were inaugurated during the Fair last summer. The experience of the Yellow Cab company through four of the ordinarily busiest months of the year has been a disappointment, he said.

Losses totaling $113,014 for November, December, January and February under the low rate compare with a profit of $58,304 for the same months a year ago.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Tragedy for Colt

April 1, 1934.

WHILE the scores of little lambs were frolicking around the sheepfold today to entertain many visitors at the farm, in the subdued light of a stall not far away, Easter Sunday was bringing nothing but suffering and grief to a handsome little yearling colt by the name of Janette.

A few afternoons ago when one of the boys put all the colts in the barn for the night he found blood running from Janette's ears and nose.

Apparently she had fallen over backward and injured her skull, for she seems to have concussion of the brain. The veterinarian was called to treat her. Now little Janette is confined to her stall in the horse barn all alone during the day while her pals are frisking around in the open. It is doubtful if she will recover.

The turkeys, Barred Rock chickens, and other poultry out here on the farm do not know anything about a "first line defense," but if they did they would give a vote of thanks to Rawlings for the string of traps he maintains to catch predatory animals which want to pick off some of the barnyard fowls. Rawlings has a series of wire box traps which he places next to fences. He keeps several around the big pond where the wild geese and the ducks nest every year. But the most important group of traps right now is just outside the fence inclosing the poultry yard. These represent a "first line of defense" against opossums, which inhabit the heavy woods in the surrounding country.

Rawlings has caught three of these animals recently in the live traps close to the poultry yard. The 'possums follow along the fence looking for an opening through the fine meshed wire. Their noses tell them that just beyond are scores of young chicks, a rare treat for a roving woods animal that is ready to eat most anything. Suddenly they come to an opening in the wire.

There is where the sleepy-eyed 'possum is tricked. That opening is in the wire trap, not the fence. Mr. 'Possum hustles in, steps on the flat horizontal trigger and kerplunk! Down drops the door behind him. Last season Rawlings caught three 'possum right on a turkey nest which the birds had built down in the woods close to one of the ponds. Moreover, a couple of these woods animals killed two turkey hens, so there isn't any doubt about what Mr. 'Possum will do if he has a chance to sail into the poultry.

The rat extermination campaign is now in the second stage. I scattered dozens of small hamburger and sliced apple baits in the horse barn where the rats are abundant. They took these baits quick as a flash, opening each little sack containing the food. Spring traps baited and set in position in stalls caught two rats almost immediately. Now Rawlings and I are ready to fix up our red squill bait for them. Red squill is poisonous to rats, but does not kill cats, dogs, or horses.

Tribune Want Ad Section
Chicago, Illinois

Gentlemen:

I want to compliment you upon the good results I obtained from a want-ad inserted in your issues of February 2nd, 3rd and 4th.

I phoned the attached ad to your office covering the sale of my Nash Model 1933 four-door sedan, and am very pleased to advise that early Friday morning a party called and on Sunday I closed the deal with him obtaining more money for my used car than the code provides for.

I had many inquiries, fifteen telephone calls, and eight personal calls. As far as I know I did not receive any reply to a similar ad I had inserted in an evening paper.

Very truly yours,

NAZIS OUST BLIND JEWS FROM WAR RELIEF SOCIETY

Veterans Are Deprived of Special Care.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, April 1.—According to the Baseler Nationalzeitung, the Association of Men Blinded in the World War has ousted its Jewish comrades. The blind heretofore had been receiving special care.

The Nazis took over their organization and because they are now Nazis—the members of the organization have deprived the Jews, who lost their eyesight fighting for Germany, of the extra privileges granted blind warriors.

41 Removed in Bavaria.

The first blind Jewish veteran to be ousted in Bavaria was a writer who had spent his life working out plans to create a special German dress fashion—free of foreign influences.

In Bavaria alone 41 Jews were kicked out of a war veterans' protective association.

Here's the way one war veteran described the action of the Nazis:

"The 41 Jews in Bavaria sacrificed their eyesight for a country that today begrudges them the right to live."

Jewish Students Hit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLOGNE, Germany, April 1.—Jewish students who succeed in entering Cologne university because their fathers lost their lives fighting for Germany in the world war, will be treated as second class citizens. This became known today in the issuance of a proclamation by the leader of the Cologne students, Nazi "Party Comrade" Mueller.

He ordered that from now on Jewish students must remain standing in the medical school until all Aryan students have taken their seats.

Bar Jews from Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 1.—Though the government has time and again repeated that Jewish business men should be entitled to conduct their own businesses, a Berlin newspaper reports that in Middle Franconia—which is Bavaria—Jews will not be allowed to operate their businesses. They must appoint non-Jewish representatives to direct their enterprises for them.

JEWS ASSURED PLACE IN HELPING GOVERN VIENNA

Mayor to Pick Advisory Body Under New Rule.

VIENNA, April 1.—(AP)—Jewish representation in the municipal government was assured today by publication of the new charter for the city of Vienna.

In contrast with the former system, however, the extent of Jewish participation in city affairs will not depend on the popularity of Jewish leaders among the voters, but on the discretion of the burgomaster.

The burgomaster will be appointed by the chancellor with powers to appoint members of a new advisory body, the buergerschalt, which takes the place of the former city parliament. The parliament was elected by the people.

It is specifically provided in the charter that the burgomaster must appoint one Jewish, one Protestant, and three Catholic members from the 12 drawn from religious, scientific, artistic, and educational circles.

The remaining 53 members of the buergerschalt will be chosen from industry, agriculture, trade, finance, professions, and the civil service.

All members must swear to uphold the honor and integrity of "the Christian German character" of Vienna.

Any or all members can be removed at any time by the burgomaster, who likewise can be removed by the chancellor.

EX-SOCIALIST PARTY BOSS NOW NAZI; CALLS HITLER REPUBLICAN

BERLIN, April 1.—(AP)—A leading republican convert to Hitlerism, in a public explanation of his change of allegiance, said today that Chancellor Hitler was a republican. Karl Severing, former Socialist party boss and Prussian minister of the interior, published a brochure under the title of "My Way to Hitler."

"In the depths of my soul," he said, "there has always been sympathy for Hitler. Nobody can claim that I was lacking in a national sense of consciousness."

Declaring that his first duty was to fight the less radical elements, the former Socialist leader put special emphasis on the fact that he did not raise a finger against the rightists during the 1921 communist uprising in middle Germany, "but I suppressed the Kapp rebellion in 1923 because Kapp was a monarchist."

Hitler, he said, is a republican—"and that is the fundamental difference."

THREE SPANISH PARTIES UNITE TO OPPOSE REGIME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, April 1.—Liberal forces in Spain today reassembled their ranks, shattered in the last election, and formed a single party to fight the right extremism and questionable Republicans now in power.

Former Premier Manuel Azana, widely considered the most able statesman in Spain, is the leading spirit of the new party, which will be known as the Left Republican party. With him are the Radical Socialists, the Galician Liberals, and Left Independents. This group hopes to get official support from some of Premier Alejandro Lerroux's present followers who are prepared to break with their aged leader because of his willingness to head a government which is completely right.

Almost before the liberals completed their coalition this afternoon, a leading moderate—Diego Martinez Barrios, powerful ex-premier—held out an offer of cooperation to save the republic. Barrios, who until a few weeks ago was a minister in the cabinet controled by the Catholics, bitterly attacked them in a speech at Seville today, declaring "the republic must not accept the tutelage of such doubtful Republicans" as Catholics are known to be. Besides urging a vigorous defense of the republic, Barrio pleaded for a parliamentary reform to substitute work for discussion.

U. S. CONTRIBUTED BRITISH SURPLUS, LABORITE SHOWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 1.—Great Britain's budget surplus was obtained at the expense of the United States, Albert V. Alexander, who was first lord of the admiralty in the last Labor government, declared tonight in an address at Glasgow.

Referring to figures for the financial year of 1933-'34 Alexander said:

"The more I examine these figures the more I am convinced of the cant and hypocrisy of the national government. On the face of it the year purports to show a surplus of more than $150,000,000. In fact if the country's commitments to the United States in the payment of war debts were met, there would be no surplus but an actual deficit. We owe America on the year $175,000,000.

"If the Labor government had proposed to default or even to stall on its payments to creditors abroad what an outcry there would have been from financial pundits and commercial bigwigs. We would have been accused of destroying the nation's credit abroad."

U. S. LABOR AID QUITS; ASSAILS MISS PERKINS

Declares Secretary Falls Down on Job.

Boston, Mass., April 1.—(AP)—Charles G. Wood, federal commissioner of conciliation, widely known in the east, middle west, and south for his successful mediation of many important industrial disputes, today announced his resignation in a sharply worded letter to Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor.

Wood charged Miss Perkins with "having fallen down on the job," through failure to take the lead in reconciling industrial belligerents.

He accused her of having caused President Roosevelt and Gen. Hugh Johnson, National Recovery administrator, to "devote precious time to do the work which the congress obligated you to perform."

Witness at Red Hearing.

In addition, Wood, who is regarded as an authority on communistic activities and was an important witness before the special committee of the house of representatives which, under the chairmanship of Hamilton Fish Jr., investigated the activities of communists in this country, added:

"You have permitted avowed enemies of our government, who are conducting an alleged labor organization affiliated with an un-American movement, to enjoy the same privileges as those legally granted to labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor . . . and others of like high standing."

Wood, a Democrat, praised President Roosevelt highly, and, contrasting Miss Perkins with him, said: "He has gone forward amazingly. You have stood still; you have fallen down on the job. He and others are doing the work you were selected to do. I can no longer stay on and be loyal to a leader who does not lead."

In Service for Years.

The resigning commissioner was a former New Bedford and Boston newspaperman and has been a state or federal labor conciliator since 1911.

He was a member of the state board of conciliation from 1911-'20 under Govs. Foss, Walsh, McCall, and Coolidge, and was appointed to his federal post after Coolidge became President.

Among the industrial troubles in which he has exerted the offices of his post were the Gastonia, N. C., textile disturbance of 1929, the New Bedford textile strike of 1928, the recent granite strike in Vermont and New Hampshire, and a threatened street car strike in St. Louis.

Only last week he brought to a successful issue threatened labor trouble in Gardner, Mass.

Police Records Identify Slain Gas Station Robber

Records of the police bureau of identification yesterday gave the identity of the bandit slain in an attempted robbery at a gasoline filling station at 1400 West Garfield boulevard as Edward Mozen, 28 years old, 315 South Western avenue. Mozen had a minor police record, having served sentences in the bridewell for larceny and carrying concealed weapons. He was slain by Ray Hollaker, 28 years old, 5451 South Bishop street, station attendant. Mozen pulled the trigge. of his pistol four times, but each time it missed fire.

License Bureau Moves to Controler's Office Today

The city license bureau, which has been functioning during the last year as a unit of the police department, will be shifted today to the city controler's office. The change was ordered by the city council, members of which set up the appropriation for the license bureau in the latter office after civil service employés who had been dropped when the bureau was put in the police department a year ago won reinstatement through the courts.

BARE NEW DEAL POWERS TO SET UP IN BUSINESS

Operate by 5 Special Corporations.

Aid to Homesteaders.

Much of the threat of government competition centers in the subsistence homestead plans of Prof. Tugwell and Relief Administrator Hopkins. These little planned communities are to be established for the unemployed or stranded populations, with government subsidies.

The homesteaders are to be helped with federal cash to acquire enough land and equipment to grow in large part their own food. To furnish them cash, local industries, especially of the handicraft nature, would be encouraged and subsidized. Mr. Hopkins has admitted that these enterprises will compete with existing private businesses.

Only once has the authority of these corporations been openly questioned. Controler General J. R. McCarl, a holdover official from Republican administrations, who is appointed for 10 years and who controls money disbursals, questioned the right of the PWA to set up and finance the housing corporation. After a bitter attack by Secretary Ickes, McCarl was overruled by Attorney General Cummings.

What Each May Do.

McCarl based his attack on the point that the PWA had no specific authority to create such a corporation and that the constitution gave the government no right to engage in such activities. The attorney general ruled that the PWA law was broad enough without specific authorization.

A list of the corporations and the powers enjoyed by each follows:

Federal Emergency Housing corporation: May buy, sell and make building materials and supplies; build, construct, maintain, and operate any structure; condemn personal or real property; deal in stocks, bonds, mortgages, and securities; borrow money.

Electric Home and Farm authority: May carry on chattel mortgage-loan business on electrical appliances; manufacture and deal in electrical appliances; lend money with or without security to businesses and individuals.

Affect Farm Population.

Commodity Credit corporation: May produce, warehouse, ship, export, process, manufacture, and market all farm products and related products; borrow money without limit for these purposes; buy or otherwise acquire any property in the United States or its territories which is necessary for its purposes; manage and maintain such properties.

Federal Surplus Relief corporation: May purchase, store, and process farm products and derivative products; may distribute products for relief purposes.

Federal Subsistence Homestead corporation: May build and operate factories; construct and own any subsistence homestead and all appurtenances; buy, construct, and operate mines, industries, power plants, farms, commercial establishments, parks and forests.

Takes Body Home

Dewitt, Ia., April 1.—(AP)—The body of Lieut. Thurman A. Wood, 24 years old, army airmail pilot killed Friday night in a crash near here, was taken tonight to Clinton, Ia., for shipment to Richland Springs, Tex., the home of his parents. Lieut. Floyd B. Wood, a brother, arrived today to take charge.

Ex-City Fireman, Victim of Quicksand, Recovering

Joseph Marmoll, 51 years old, 2814 North Sacramento avenue, a former city fireman and a veteran of the Spanish-American war, was reported to be recovering in the county hospital yesterday. Marmoll, who recently suffered a nervous breakdown, was rescued from a bed of quicksand on the bank of the north branch of the Chicago river at Oakley avenue Saturday night. He was buried in the sand up to his shoulders when found by his wife, Agnes.

PRESIDENT LEADS EASTER SERVICE ABOARD YACHT

Sailors Gather on Open Deck.

Miami, Fla., April 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt observed Easter today in a unique service aboard the yacht Nourmahal on the high sea.

The chaplain's flag was hoisted above the presidential ensignia, while Mr. Roosevelt himself conducted the service under a blazing tropical sun. It was the first such service in the history of the nation. The President read from an Episcopal prayer book.

Was Senior Officer.

Intimates of the President who are accompanying him as the guests of Vincent Astor, owner of the yacht, gathered about on the open deck at the stern of the white vessel.

Mr. Astor gave the following report on the service on board the Nourmahal, in a message to Marvin H. McIntyre, presidential secretary established in headquarters here:

"The President of the United States conducted services on the quarterdeck of the Nourmahal this Easter Sunday morning, attended by the officers and men of the Ellis and the Nourmahal. This follows old traditions that senior officer present in absence of chaplain conduct services. So far as known, this is probably first time they have been conducted by the commander in chief in person."

Bluejackets Join Service.

Capt. Bob White of the destroyer Ellis led his men onto the quarterdeck of the Nourmahal for the services.

Astor did not give the position of the Nourmahal in his first message, and it was assumed the ship was in the vicinity of Great Abaco iland, where yesterday was spent fishing.

NEW 'ROOSEVELT ILAND' HAS LONG, VARIED HISTORY

First Seen by Capt. John Smith; Massacre Site.

Baltimore, Md., April 1.—(AP)—"Roosevelt iland," dedicated last night as a Chesapeake bay retreat of the President of the United States, has had a varied and sometimes violent history since Capt. John Smith, pioneer Virginian, discovered it more than three centuries ago.

"Heaven and earth seem never to have agreed better to frame a place for man's commodious and delightful habitation," wrote Capt. Smith after his trip to the bay's ilands. But even with that recommendation it was 1640 before the first white settler, Richard Thompson and his family, moved to the place then known as Popeley's iland.

Victims of Massacre.

A few years later Thompson, his wife, his children, and his six servants were massacred by the Indians.

Later the iland was the home of Dutch refugees. In time they left for the mainland. The iland was bought and sold by several families. A hundred years ago a large plantation covered the cresent.

But year after year the iland grew smaller, finally it became three ilands, though all were called Popular iland. Geologists say that today it probably is less than half as large as when Capt. Smith sighted it from his vessel. The planters gave up and left for the mainland.

Ten years ago the ilands were deserted. A picturesque old ruin, once the plantation mansion, was about all that was left when a party of Democrats, who wanted to combine duck shooting with political pow-wows, bought it. They rebuilt the old plantation house into a club and renamed the groups "Jefferson ilands."

One for President.

At a meeting of Democratic leaders in Washington last night the three were dedicated as a place where party leaders could get away from the public. But they went further and designated an inner refuge, "Roosevelt iland," to be the very private resort of the President.

The three form a harbor at the mouth of Eastern bay. The Chesapeake lies on one side, the Eastern on the other. They lie about two miles from the eastern shore peninsula and about 15 miles southeast of Annapolis, the capital of Maryland.

A few hours' sailing down the Potomac and then up the Chesapeake would take the President to this secluded and usually balmy retreat. His iland is less than 500 acres in area, the most of it covered with trees. The duck shooting is good in season; the swimming in summer, and at night the rest of the world seems a thousand miles away.

NICARAGUAN COLONEL DENIES HE TOOK PART IN SANDINO SLAYING

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Col. Camilo Gonzales, a former officer of the Nicaraguan army, arrived from Managua today with a denial of reports that he was involved in the slaying of Gen. Sandino, Nicaraguan rebel leader.

Immigration officers, acting on advices from Washington, detained Gonsales at Ellis iland pending an investigation into reports that he had issued a statement to the effect that he took part in the shooting of Sandino.

Gonsales, who said he came here to consult a specialist about an abdominal disorder, declared he had "absolutely nothing" to do with the killing. He said he would not have been allowed to leave Nicaragua if he had been suspected.

ST. PAUL POLICE FIND DILLINGER FINGERPRINTS

Fear New Gang of Bank Robbers.

St. Paul, Minn., April 1.—(AP)—Underworld haunts were searched today for clews to John Dillinger and his gangster pal, John Hamilton, while department of justice agents in charge of the case questioned more than eight men.

Authorities said the fingerprints on the light coupe abandoned near the apartment building from which several men and a woman fled yesterday protected by sub machine gun fire, were those of Dillinger. Others were inside the apartment. Reports Hamilton's fingerprints also were found on objects inside the apartment could not be confirmed. An automatic rifle, a bullet proof vest and pistols were left in the flat.

Assembles Other Gangs.

Police believed Dillinger had gathered the remnants of other gangs, and, with his new mob, plotted a bank robbery in the Twin cities. Examination of the apartment indicated the gang was ready for a robbery, police said and orders were issued for all officers to be on the alert.

Hospital officials and physicians were questioned on the chance they might know of the woman who fled with the desperadoes. She was wounded by a shot from the gun of Detective Henry Cummings as she and one of the men fled down the rear stairway.

Among Those Questioned.

Clarence Colton, acquitted in the third Northwestern National bank robbery in Minneapolis and of the killing of two policemen several years ago, was one of those held together with his brother, "Doc" Colton, alias Devol.

Marion, Ind., dispatches said Dillinger was supposed to have "important connections in St. Paul" so the police here broadcast warnings to other cities and towns and states to be on the alert. Dillinger's St. Paul connections, Marion dispatches said, were reported to have been related to federal operatives by Edward Shouse, former member of the Dillinger gang, now in the Indiana state prison.

KILLING OF POLICE SPURS HUNT FOR TEXAS OUTLAWS

Fort Worth, Tex., April 1.—(AP)—The killing of two state highway patrolmen today and the kidnaping Saturday of a 27 year old housewife spurred Texas authorities tonight in a search for Clyde Barrow, desparado, and Raymond Hamilton, his escaped convict pal.

The patrolmen, E. B. Wheeler and H. D. Murphy, were killed as they approached a motor car near Grapevine, Tex. Two persons sped away, believed to be Barrow and his cigar smoking woman friend, Bonnie Parker.

Two hours earlier Mrs. Cam Gunter, wife of a Mexia, Tex., oil field worker, was released after an all night ride with a robber whom she later identified as Hamilton, who had seized $1,865 from the State National bank of West, Tex. Hamilton is under sentences totaling 263 years, and a deputy sheriff of Dallas county said Hamilton hardly could have reached the spot where the killings took place in the approximate two hours following his release of Mrs. Gunter, who was given $30 and told to get her auto fixed.

The police and some deputy sheriffs think Barrow was waiting for Hamilton when the state highway police approached his car and he fired at them.

DIES SUDDENLY.

Stanley Popera, 49 years old, 2243 North Lorel avenue, died suddenly early yesterday in the home of John and Frank Vonarski at 3426 North Austin avenue.

HIDEOUT FROM WHICH DILLINGER ESCAPED

Here is an interior view of the apartment in St. Paul from which John Dillinger, Indiana desperado; his companion in crime, John Hamilton, and a woman escaped Saturday after a gun battle with police and federal agents. Fingerprints left behind by the fleeing trio were positively identified as those of Dillinger, and the other man was accurately described as Hamilton. [Acme Photo.]

DROWNING OF 6 BARES SECRET MARRIAGE OF 2

Car Goes Off Bridge; Two Are Saved.

Bloomington, Ill., April 1.—[Special.]—The drowning of three men and three women early today when a small sedan in which they were riding plunged off Salt creek bridge near Lincoln, Ill., revealed the secret marriage of two of the victims, Coroner Albert Aherns said tonight.

Miss Mildred Wurth, 20 years old, and Fred McGowan, 25, of Lincoln, it was learned, were married last Aug. 3.

Jesse Bechtel, the driver, and Miss Alma Wurth, a sister of the bride, escaped with injuries.

Coroner Aherns said an inquest would be held after Bechtel had recovered sufficiently from his injuries to testify.

Names of Victims.

The list of dead includes:
JOHNNY PLUT, 21, of Lincoln.
FRED McGOWAN, 25, of Lincoln.
MRS. MILDRED McGOWAN, 20, of Lincoln.
ROBERT HOLZAEPFEL, 28, of Chicago, formerly of Lincoln.
MRS. JESSE BECHTEL, 30, of Lincoln.
MISS MILDRED ADAMS, 20, of Matoon.

Mr. Bechtel, interviewed in the hospital, said they were on their way to a dance. He was driving and fell asleep, he said, and ran off the road.

The tragedy was discovered by Charles Scheehorn of Lincoln, who found Bechtel lying on the gravel road near one end of the bridge.

Escapes Through Window.

Bechtel said he does not know how he got out of the car. Miss Wurth got out a window and swam around to a bumper of the car, from which Scheehorn rescued her. Both were brought to Lincoln by Happ Stoltz.

It was found the car had knocked down 35 feet of the wooden railing of the bridge and had plunged 35 feet into 6 feet of water.

McGowan was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed McGowan of Lincoln. He was associated with Bechtel in operating a filling station. Holzaepfel, a printer, was the son of Mrs. Lila Holzaepfel of Lincoln. Miss Adams, niece of the Wurth girls, was visiting here.

NOTED WELFARE WORKER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Mobile, Ala., April 1.—[Special.]—Thomas A. Hart, 40, former head of the Alabama transient bureau here, who served as an executive officer of Near East relief in Greece and Turkey from 1922 to 1925, was found shot to death early today in the yard of a vacant house.

Hart, who resigned last year from the New York university housing committee, was shot in the right breast. Police believe the actual slaying occurred elsewhere and that he was later carried to the spot where his body was found. Robbery is believed to have been the motive.

The slain man was at one time associated in welfare work with Miss Helen Keller and the New York Gibson committee. He served as executive secretary of the housing committee of the Brooklyn bureau of charities from 1917 to 1921, and in 1925 went to France to assume a relief post there after having spent three years in the near east. He came here last December to assume the Alabama post, which he held until a week ago.

SIX WAIT DEATH IN COLORADO'S NEW GAS ROOM

Two Brothers Among the Condemned.

Canon City, Colo., April 1.—(AP)—Six men now stand under sentence to die in a squat, new brick building on a hillside above the state prison.

Colorado's new lethal gas chamber, substituted for the crude gallows, and as yet unused, except to kill a pig for experimental purposes, is housed in this plain little structure.

Juries in various parts of the state have convicted the six men of murder and unless the state Supreme court or the governor lifts an hand to save them they will be executed by deadly gases concocted in the air-tight chamber.

Louis and John Pacheco, swarthy-faced brothers, are the fifth and sixth persons to be ordered put to death in the gas room. A District court jury at Greeley Friday night convicted them of shooting to death Clifford Smith, Wellington rancher. The brothers also had confessed to slaying Smith's chore boy, Bobby Grimm, 16, and wounding and mistreating Smith's attractive 27 year old wife.

Walter Rappin, 21 year old Newark, N. J., youth, was to have gone to death in the chamber in January, but the Supreme court intervened at the last minute and his execution has been indefinitely postponed. Rappin, slayer of a Colorado Springs taxi chauffeur, has evinced a deathly fear of the lethal house, has cried that he does not "want to be an experiment."

Lloyd Frady and William C. Kelley each accused the other of slaying Russell Browning, recluse rancher at Delta. A jury decided the solution would be the death penalty for both. So far neither has indicated whether an appeal will be taken.

The other man under sentence to die is Charles E. Graham, who slew Mrs. Vernie Glazier, 55, and George Morris, 53, with an ax at Grand Junction on Jan. 15.

ILLINOIS RELIEF BEGINS MUSTER OF LABOR TODAY

30,000 on Roll 1st Week, Reynolds' Aim.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission today will begin mustering in workers under the new federal relief program which replaces the Civil Works administration. By the end of the week officials hope to have 30,000 workers on approved projects in Cook county.

County work relief projects, on which a maximum of 39,162 persons can be employed, have already been approved.

39,162 County Maximum.

"The figure of 39,162 is the maximum for Cook county," said Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the relief commission. "The necessity for conserving funds may result in a smaller number of workers on jobs.

"Every worker who is to be employed on a work relief project will be given a special assignment through the work relief division of the commission. Even though a CWA project is being continued and workers are to remain on the job they must first receive assignment from the commission.

Work Assignment Slips.

"This means that no CWA worker is to report for work relief unless he received an assignment. If he is to be carried over to work relief he has received or will receive a regular assignment slip, instructing him when and where to report for work. Until such assignments are received no one should report."

Of the county projects approved most recently villages, townships, school districts, and other governmental units outside of Chicago may employ 5,256 workers.

The city of Chicago has obtained approval of projects for a total of 2,700 workers, the state for 2,590, south park board 3,194, Lincoln park board 3,055, welfare organizations 1,535, and various lesser units about 1,000 workers. Various other projects have been submitted to the commission for approval.

Downstate Projects Approved.

Downstate projects have been approved by various county chairmen and will be passed upon by the commission. It is expected the inauguration of the work relief program in the state will take more time than in Cook county, but it is hoped that several thousand workers will be at jobs by the end of the week.

Under the new program the commission expects to spend $7,500,000 for relief in Illinois for the month of April. Of this sum $5,000,000 will be met by a federal allotment and $2,500,000 will come from the sale of tax anticipation warrants against the $30,000,000 bond issue up for referendum at the November election.

FORMER FRENCH MINISTER TO DUEL OVER STAVISKY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CARCASSONNE, France, April 1.—The latest Stavisky sensation turned up today in the shadow of the medieval walls of this somnolent town. Jean Mistler, minister of commerce in the cabinet of Edouard Daladier, offered to duel a militant of the royalist organization, action francaise. The offer was accepted and the duel will be fought with pistols.

Mistler was taking his after dinner coffee in a cafe when an argument developed with Roger de Tour, royalist partisan. Insulting references were made concerning Mistler's place in Daladier's cabinet, which is held by nationalist groups to be responsible for the blood shed of the Feb. 6 anti-government riots protesting the Stavisky bond scandal.

Mistler remonstrated, and De Tour struck him in the face, precipitating a fight. The challenge to a duel followed.

ERUPTIONS FROM ICELAND VOLCANO HEARD 100 MILES

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, April 1.—(AP)—Thunderous eruptions were still bursting tonight from the ice cap on Iceland's famous volcano, the Skeidararjoekull Cirka. The eruptions could be heard 100 miles away.

Sulphur ash began falling last night in several districts of southeast Iceland, menacing vegetation. The ground was covered in Breiddal and adjoining places. The ash started coming down today in northern Iceland. The volcano is about 155 miles from Reykjavik.

A column of smoke from the volcano was visible here during the afternoon, rising far above the horizon. Its height was estimated at Cirka at nearly 13 miles. Lightning-like flashes from the volcano were seen here after the eruption began Friday night.

News from the neighborhood was belated because of the breakdown of a telegraph line paralleling the swollen river Skeidara. Glaciers were melted down by the volcano and poured into the river.

CHICAGO MAPS PLAN FOR ARMY DAY CELEBRATION

"Patriotic preparedness promotes peace." This will be the major theme of the celebration of National Army day next Friday, when civic and social leaders join in a program and banquet at the Hotel Sherman.

Officers of the United States regular army and navy, organized reserves, National Guard, and service men's organizations will participate.

Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and United States Senators Lewis and Dieterich will head the list of guests. Rufus C. Dawes, president of the World's Fair, will act as toastmaster.

The date of April 6 is significant for Army day, since it marks the entry of the United States in the world war.

PARIS, April 1.—(AP)—President Albert Lebrun, in a move to overcome the hostility of government functionaries to Premier Gaston Doumergue's economy decrees, today asked that his salary be slashed 20 per cent.

The cabinet ministers are taking a cut nearly as great—15 per cent. This is nearly double the salary reductions of a majority of government employés, high or low.

President Lebrun's present salary, with expenses, amounts to approximately 2,000,000 francs [$120,000]. He was reported to have told the cabinet that "economy begins at the top."

CUT RATE DAIRIES DROP PRICE, VOW FIGHT TO FINISH

Farm Group to Undersell Big Companies.

The milk price war expanded through the entire metropolitan area yesterday with the federal government's control over the industry hanging in the balance. Milk was sold by cut rate stores for as low as 6 cents a quart in Chicago and suburbs while the large dairy companies delivered milk at the doorstep for 8 cents a quart.

Vowing a fight to the finish, four independent or cut rate dairies formed an association with more than 300 cash and carry stores in order to undersell the larger companies. The four independents, which have already taken steps against the provisions of the agricultural adjustment act, were the Wagner, Meadowmoor, Edgewater, and Crescent dairies. These concerns buy from farmers who are not members of the Pure Milk association.

Price to Farmer Fixed.

The code of the agricultural adjustment administration for the dealers provides a minimum price on milk purchased from the farmer, but contains no provision for milk sold to the consumer public.

Attorney Joseph C. Kanak, counsel for 25 independent dairies, asserted his clients would continue to undersell the larger dairies even though they lost money.

"We are prepared to fight any attempt to issue an injunction against us for violation of the AAA code," said Kanak. "There was no agreement made and nothing in the terms of the AAA to impose a certain retail price. The act is intended to help the farmers, but if the AAA farm price is strictly enforced now the small dealers will be wiped out and the big fellows will then be able to pay the farmers anything they want to for milk."

AAA Troubles Grow.

Uncle Sam is closely watching the milk situation here, it was said, because systems of governing the milk industry in other cities have been patterned after the Chicago control.

As the cut price war grew the troubles of Frank C. Baker, local AAA milk market administrator, increased. Baker has sent out questionnaires to 400 milk dealers in the Chicago area, asking information on amounts of milk purchased and sold during the month of March, but only a few have responded. Failure to supply the information is open defiance of the AAA.

Before the week is over it is expected to be determined whether the AAA license laid down by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace Feb. 5 for Chicago and suburbs will be continued or not. Milk dealers said another strike was imminent if the fixed price for farmers is discontinued.

BLAMES STRIKES FOR HALF MILLION PAY ROLL LOSSES

Kenosha, Wis., April 1.—[Special.]—Three major strikes in Kenosha industry in the last five months have cost factory workers over a half million dollars in pay and an unestimated loss to factories involved and to local business men. Conrad Shearer, secretary of the Kenosha Manufacturers' association, so reported today.

The report shows that industrial activity increased 20 per cent in the fiscal year ending Feb. 28, 1934, and that the number on pay rolls jumped from 6,130 on March 1, 1932, to 8,272 on March 1, 1934, an increase of 30 per cent.

Next day the Nash strike began and 2,000 men were out of work with an estimated loss in wages of $11,000 each day since then.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GATUN, Panama, April 1.—Anxiety was felt here today for Carl G. Brown of New York, a government sanitary inspector, who has been lost in the dense jungle between Gatun and Escobel on Gatun lake for 35 hours with two colored helpers. Their outboard motor boat, which had broken down, was found by searchers, but there was no trace of the occupants. Brown was conducting a mosquito survey.

WM. H. HAYNES, COLORED, ON G.O.P. JUDICIAL TICKET

William H. Haynes, colored, is a candidate on the regular Republican slate for nomination at the April 10 primaries to the Municipal court bench. The Chicago Bar association said of him that he is a man of integrity, education, satisfactory experience and reputation, and that he is qualified.

WILLIAM H. HAYNES.

Haynes is in the private practice of law, but has had experience in the law enforcing offices of the county and the state. He was an assistant state's attorney under Robert E. Crowe in 1925-'26, and under John A. Swanson in 1929. From May to December, 1928, he was a special assistant attorney general under Frank J. Loesch when the latter was handling the investigation of the Granady murder in the 20th ward.

Haynes was born in Nashville, Tenn., 39 years ago. For three years he was professor of economics and sociology at Morehouse college. Later he studied law at the University of Chicago, receiving the degree of J. D. in 1921. He lives at 633 East 50th street.

Colombia Demands League, Award It Border Row Area

GENEVA, April 1.—(AP)—The league of nations today received communications from both Colombia and Peru concerning the disputed Leticia border area. The notes were confidential, but diplomatic circles gained the impression that Colombia was asking that the Leticia district be turned over to it under complete sovereignty by June 22, 1934, when the mandate of the league of nations commission now in Leticia expires. Peru was understood to be advocating prolongation of the commission's mandate until negotiations are concluded.

3 Under Observation

Three children who were bitten by a rabbit Saturday were under the care of physicians yesterday. The victims were Richard Bartels, 3 years old, of 1832 North Springfield avenue; Marilyn Swanson, 7 years old, of 1523 North Kedvale avenue, and Dolores Muscarillo, 2 years old, of 2155 North Keeler avenue. The children were nipped on the fingers by a caged rabbit in front of a butcher shop at 2943 West North avenue. The animal has been sent to the health laboratory for examination for rabies.

SUBURBS TO VOTE TOMORROW ON LIQUOR QUESTION

Voters in five Chicago suburbs will decide tomorrow whether their municipalities shall be dry territories, and in most of these communities the wet and dry question has aroused greater interest than the village elections scheduled for the same day.

Anti-liquor organizations have been campaigning extensively on the referendum, realizing that under the state law the sale of liquor would become legal May 10, unless the residents vote dry.

Pleas for dry votes were made from the pulpits of Oak Park churches yesterday. Anti-saloon advocates will be on the streets election day to urge all who can to vote, high school pupils are to be enlisted in the same cause. The village has been dry for 62 years.

Among the other suburbs voting on the liquor issue tomorrow are Evanston, Winnetka, Glencoe, and River Forest. There are other communities, including Wilmette, Kenilworth, and Park Ridge, that will not vote until April 17. The voters of New Trier township living outside the borders of its municipalities will ballot on April 10.

The circulating of petitions to place the wet and dry question on the ballot in New Trier township was for a definite purpose. The vote is being directed at "No Man's land," a small section lying between Wilmette and Kenilworth, where it had been predicted liquor might flow freely by county and state licenses unless action was taken to make it dry also.

RELIGION UNDER NEW DEAL TO BE EPISCOPAL TOPIC

The future of organized religion under the New Deal will be one of the important subjects to be discussed tomorrow and Wednesday at an executive season of 100 Episcopal church leaders at the Chicago headquarters, 65 East Huron street. Sixteen bishops from seven midwestern states will attend the conference, which was called by the national headquarters of the Episcopal church in New York.

What religious significance have the transformation and transition that is now occurring is one of the questions to be taken up. Others are: religious tides of 1934, a consideration of the religious factors apparent in the present transformation in American life and thought, and what effect the last four years have had on the mind, the spirit, and the fabric of our society.

Among those expected to take leading parts at the sessions are Bishop George Craig Stewart, Chicago; Bishop Frank E. Wilson, Eau Claire, Wis.; Bishop B. F. P. Ivins, Milwaukee; Bishop Campbell Gray of Northern Indiana; Bishop Warren Rogers, Cleveland; and Bishop Herman Page, Detroit.

DOCTOR ARTISTS SHUN PILLS AND PATIENTS IN PAINTINGS ON DISPLAY

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Curious men and women filed into the Academy of Medicine today to see what sort of pictures would be turned out by eye, ear, nose, and throat specialists, otologists, toxicologists, and psychiatrists, who have made a hobby of art.

They found 300 pictures depicting the most normal sort of quiet life. These physicians and surgeons, who paint in their spare time, had sketched woods and fields, sailing ships, "Peaceful Nights," "Silence," "The Pond at Low Water."

Only two had drawn from medicine for subject matter. Dr. Henry A. Bancel exhibited a still life painting of a jug, a half filled milk bottle, a lemon, two oranges, and three potatoes. This he called "Vitamins." The jug, he explained, contained whisky, "the most powerful vitamin I know."

Dr. W. Baran Wolfe entered a piece of sculpture called "Discharged — Cured." It was of an old man, so ill he could hardly walk.

COUNTY BOARD TODAY BEGINS TO PICK GRAND JURY

Reverts to System of 60 Years Ago.

Sixty years of precedent will be swept aside this morning when the county board meets to select a grand jury in compliance with an order issued Friday by Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court. The selection of twenty-three men for grand jury duty is expected to take three days.

The meeting of the county commissioners will be the first of its kind since 1874. In that year the legislature created the jury commission and gave its members the duty of selecting grand jurors, which had been vested in the county board.

Advocates of the legislation argued that the county board system was cumbersome in operation in Cook county. It is practiced in downstate counties. The act of 1874 applied only to counties of over 500,000 population and then only if such counties should desire the change.

Judge Order Not Retroactive.

The order, directing reversion to the old system, was issued by the chief justice to comply with an amendment to the state grand jury law, which became effective last Jan. 1. Chief Justice Finnegan said his order is not retroactive and would not invalidate work done by the grand juries of the first quarter of the year.

The order leaves the county without a grand jury until April 23 because the act provides that an order for a new grand jury must be entered at least 20 days before the appearance of the jury. An allowance of three days was made for the board's selection. The absence of the jury, it was explained, will not halt the work of the court since there are 700 criminal cases now awaiting trial.

Judge Finnegan's order of Friday vacated a previous order issued March 9, which directed the jury commissioners to summon 60 men and from this number select 23 for jury service. This method was declared illegal in a recent decision of the State Supreme court, on which a rehearing is pending. Judge Finnegan said the decision did not influence him to change his orders. He explained he was following the new act which provides that the grand jury be selected by county boards throughout the state.

New Bill Is Prepared.

Under direction of State's Attorney Courtney a new bill has been prepared which would invalidate the amendment to the jury law. It has been pointed out that the county board's power to control grand juries might be used for political purposes or to halt possible investigation of the board itself.

County commissioners are perplexed over procedure under the order, being undecided on the method of selecting jurors. Under the statutes as interpreted by the State Supreme court, only 23 men can be summoned for jury duty. A minimum of 16 constitutes a legal grand jury.

The county commissioners have the power to go anywhere in the county and select any one not legally exempt. It is expected that the commissioners will agree on some method of drawing names of the 23 prospective jurors. When the selection is completed the board will tender the jury to the chief justice.

THREE IN OHIO CALLED SELLERS OF STOLEN BONDS

Youngstown, O., April 1.—(AP)—The woman secretary of a Cincinnati brewery official with her brother and sister-in-law were in jail here tonight.

Police said they admitted sharing in the sale of $54,000 of stolen Liberty bonds to a Cincinnati bank. They denied, however, they knew the bonds were part of $90,000 in securities stolen from Mrs. Margaret Gillespie, recluse of Marshalltown, Ia.

Those held are Mrs. Nancy A. Wright, 35, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Treharn of Wenona, Ill. Mrs. Wright said Mrs. Treharn introduced her to the man who wanted to sell the bonds. In the room of Harold Cowell, 27, slain in Marshalltown by a policeman who sought to question him, were found $21,000, later identified as part of the money the bank paid for the bonds.

Kidnaped Girl, 17, Released When Captor Loses Nerve

Valdosta, Ga., April 1.—(AP)—Miss Mary Nell Carlisle, 17 year old daughter of J. G. Carlisle, Valdosta plant shipper, was home today after spending several hours last night as prisoner of a kidnaper who demanded $1,000 ransom. The kidnaper, police said, lost his nerve and left Miss Carlisle, bound and gagged, in a wooded area of the Georgia State Woman's college near her home. She worked the bandage out of her mouth and called for help. Her father and several friends heard her and came to her assistance.

MRS. THOMAS HITCHCOCK.

Aiken, S. C., April 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, of Aiken and Westbury, N. Y., mother of Tommy Hitchcock Jr., international polo star, died at her home today of injuries suffered when a horse fell with her Dec. 26. Mrs. Hitchcock had remained in bed since that time when two vertebrae were broken and paralysis of her right side followed. She was 67 years old.

Her husband and their four children, Tommy Hitchcock, Francis Hitchcock, Mrs. J. Averell Clark, and Mrs. Julian Peabody, were at her bedside when she died.

Mrs. Hitchcock was M. F. H. of the Aiken Drag Hounds and it was during a drag hunt that she was injured when her horse fell at a jump.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in St. Mary's Catholic church here. She will be buried after a private service in the garden of the Hitchcock estate here.

SEIZE TRIO WITH $10 COUNTERFEIT BILLS; PASSED 3

Admit Buying 'Money' in Gaming Den.

Three men who decided to try their luck at passing counterfeit $10 bills informed Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan of the secret service yesterday their luck was bad. They were arrested after they had disposed of only three spurious bills out of a batch of twenty-nine which they said they bought from a New Yorker.

The prisoners are John Karol, 27 years old, 4162 West 25th place; Daniel Sullivan, 34 years old, 6234 South Troy street, and Earl Sykes, 24 years old, 3637 Cermak road. In the Fillmore street police station they confessed to Callaghan's agents and named the stores where they had passed the bad bills. The arrest of the New Yorker, whose name was withheld, was ordered.

Bought in Gambling Den.

Capt. Callaghan said the counterfeit money was purchased by the three men in a gambling house here. His agents started an inquiry as to others who may have dealt with the same agent of a ring of counterfeiters whose plant is believed to be in New York.

Victor Tannenbaum, 1317 North Rockwell street, manager of a Walgreen drug store at Harrison street and Crawford avenue, was responsible for the trio's arrest after they attempted to pass a $10 bill in the drug store. He noted the license number of their car and notified the police and within a short while Sergt. William Tyrrell and his squad had them in custody.

Capt. Callaghan said many of the bogus $10 bills have been passed here recently. They are all alike and warning has been broadcast concerning them. Twelve of the bills, which were found in Karol's sock, bore the same serial number—A-09606100-A. Twelve bore a different number and the others a third number.

Bogus $100 Bank Notes.

Another group in Chicago specializes on counterfeit $100 bank notes, Capt. Callaghan said, but can pass few of them because most storekeepers are suspicious. Most of the bad ones turn up in night clubs. The bogus $10 bills have an imperfect picture of Alexander Hamilton on them. A few $100 spurious gold certificates have also been passed.

The prisoners were to be turned over to the government for prosecution after further investigation. Fillmore street police said their finger prints would be checked.

THE VOLSTEAD ACT OF THE NEW DEAL.

The Bankhead bill, which for all practical purposes restricts the marketing of cotton this year to 10 million bales, has now passed both houses of congress. There are minor differences between the senate and house versions which are to be adjusted in conference. The bill is known to have the administration's blessing.

To the everlasting credit of the present administration, it disposed of the unenforceable prohibition against alcoholic drink. In view of that record it is strange, indeed, to find the same administration imposing a new prohibition of a more fundamental sort. The government can hardly be unaware of the fact that the Volstead act derived much of its inspiration and support from the determination of the south's rulers to prevent poor whites and all Negroes from obtaining liquor. The new Volsteadism of the Bankhead bill is aimed by the same ruling class at the same underlings, but instead of seeking to prevent them from merely satisfying an appetite the bill seeks to prevent them from earning a living. The failure, despite the chain gang and gunplay to enforce the old prohibition, cannot fail to raise doubts about the success of the new.

Certainly the Bankhead bill should have been accompanied by a companion measure increasing the standing army and authorizing the use of doughboys in policing the rural south. It is not certain, of course, that the Bankhead scheme will result in rioting and bloodshed, but the probability is so great that it ought not, in prudence, to be ignored.

If the production of cotton is forcibly limited to 10 million bales an indefinite number of share croppers and tenant farmers will be deprived of their means of livelihood. Some may learn to cultivate another crop and make a living at it; some may leave the land peaceably to find employment in the cities; some may live on public or private charity; and some may content themselves with quietly starving to death alongside their wives and children. If the economic dislocation involved only a few hundred or even a few tens of thousands of southern farmers the consequences might not be very serious, but the reduction of the crop by several million bales can hardly fail to destroy the livelihoods of hundreds of thousands of families. To expect them all, without disorderly protest, to accept the fate which congress is about to impose on them is to expect a good deal.

The best that can be hoped for is the releasing of the tension through widespread bootlegging at the gins where the punitive tax on excess production is supposed to be levied. Widespread bootlegging would be the simplest solution but it is by no means the certain consequence of the enactment of the law. The law will accentuate the social and economic cleavage between the landowners and the landless in the rural south. The results may be merely unpleasant; and then again they may be appalling. The situation will bear watching.

TWENTIETH CENTURY THOUGHTS ON TRANSPORTATION.

That our coördinator of transportation, Mr. Eastman, regards the work of the interstate commerce commission as comparable to that of the Supreme court and of undying value to the country is made certain in his quotation from the report of the regulatory body for the year 1887, "The public interest is best served when the rates are so apportioned as to encourage the largest practicable exchange of products between different sections of our country . . . and this can only be done by making value an important consideration and by placing upon the higher class of freight some share of the burden that, if a relatively equal apportionment for service alone be considered, would fall on those of less value." Mr. Eastman shows that the motor truck is threatening this theory all over the country. To preserve the theory—and incidentally the railway structure—he proposes the bridling of the motor industry by regulation.

Two twentieth century ideas conflict with Mr. Eastman's nineteenth century premise. In the first place, the high class luxuries of the nineties became the conveniences of the next generation and the necessities of the present. There has been a radical change in merchandising in that the modern trend is toward placing new conveniences within the reach of all. The higher grades of many articles, classified as medium or low class freight, can absorb as much or more transportation costs than the lower grades of high class freight. The difference between luxuries and necessities is largely a matter of finish, and if the nineteenth century idea is to be continued classification lines should be drawn vertically between the different grades of the articles rather than horizontally between the articles themselves.

Secondly, public interest demands that the transportation premium to be placed on the high grade freight should be no greater than a profit plus cost service for the next more desirable form of transportation. Boat lines can and do charge relatively higher rates on more valuable freight, but the limit should be the cost of transportation by rail; likewise the limit of the rail charge the cost of transportation by truck, the upper rim of trucking charges to be the railway express rates.

Mr. Eastman has overlooked the fact that the insistence of the railways in virtually taxing commodities which they had arbitrarily decided were luxuries has largely fostered the growth of truck transportation.

ACHIEVEMENT OF AVIATION INDUSTRY.

America's aviation industry, now under the floodlight of nation-wide attention because of air mail investigations and cancelations, speaks only favorably for itself in any summarizing of its growth and achievements. It is little more than thirty years since the first successful airplane, that of the Wright brothers, lifted its fragile framework off the sands of Kitty Hawk. That historic event was the start of flying, but as an industry aviation dates from a much more recent time; in truth, it is distinctly an industry of the present.

Youthful as it is, and still attended by glamor and curiosity, it already has an annual turnover of more than 100 million dollars, 77 million of which enter it from sources outside the business. Sizable as are certain elements of the industry, such as those pertaining to military and naval aviation and private flying, its biggest development is commercial aviation, the carrying of passengers, mail, and express cargoes. On the authority of statistics collected from reliable sources by Aviation, a magazine of the industry, commercial aviation companies rapidly were approaching a self-supporting basis when their mail contracts were annulled. In the face of ever decreasing compensation per mile for the carrying of mail—a drop from $1.07 in 1929 to 37 cents in the second half of 1933—the operators steadily were increasing their schedules and speed and providing more comfortable flying equipment, this expansion and improvement all the while attended by a rapid falling off in the number of accidents. In the period from 1927 to 1929, inclusive, fatalities in connection with American air lines were one to every two million of passenger miles flown; in 1933 deaths were one to every unit of nearly seventeen million passenger miles flown.

Ten commercial air lines in 1933 flew planes 37,902,622 miles with mail at an average compensation for the year of 43½ cents a mile, and carried 3,682 tons of postal matter. In the previous year their compensation was 57 cents a mile. Air mail poundage fell off slightly in 1933, due to the imposition of increased postal rates, which affected the whole of the year and only the latter half of 1932. Prior to those two years, however, it showed a marked gain annually. In total airplane miles flown by transport lines, 1933, with 54,642,545 miles, showed a seven per cent gain over 1932. In 1930 the milcage was approximately 35 million. Total passenger miles flown in the United States by commercial aviation companies in 1933 reached the astounding figure of 198,800,079, as compared with 50 million passenger miles in 1929. Totals for Great Britain and Germany last year were approximately 20 million passenger miles each, and for France approximately 15 million passenger miles. Air transportation in the country in 1933 had an increase of 304 per cent over that of 1929, whereas bus transportation merely held its own and railroad transportation declined 48 per cent.

INSOLVENT MUNICIPALITIES.

The legislature and governor of New York have been sweating over fiscal measures for New York City. The legislature and governor of Illinois have been facing a somewhat similar problem of financing the schools. New York's situation is, in reality, the worse of the two because as yet no substantial progress has been made there in reducing municipal expenditures. They are a little better off than we are on the revenue side because of the year's delay in tax collections here, but as the hardest task for any government is to reduce the scale of its spending we can be said to be farther along the road to solvency.

Another dramatic revelation of municipal insolvency came a few days ago when Cleveland's mayor turned off most of the street lights and threatened to dismiss a substantial number of policemen and firemen. Chicago, New York, and Cleveland all are suffering from the same ailment: They have spent more money than the taxpayers can contribute to the support of local government. The only remedy is a drastic deflation of government. The process has not been completed in Chicago, but progress has been substantial.

Editorial of the Day

A CAPITALISTIC ORGAN.

[Jefferson City, Mo., Post-Tribune.]

It would help the masses of our country get the picture more clearly if all who favor communism would say so and refuse to accept pay checks from capitalistic employers. Many communists, alas, are forced to work for those vile sheets which are owned by men who believe that their money is their own and not Mr. Roosevelt's. Why should not the editor who wants to reform the nation suffer for the faith that is in him? Why should the chief editorial writer of the Post-Dispatch or the cartoonist of that great daily accept the miserable stipend doled out to genius by the polo-playing Pulitzers? The cult of communism is like a lot of religions, its devotees are backsliders. Not only do they deny their faith when asked to testify to all men, they slyly extend the hand for a gratuity from the master. Bold and resolute fellows in the editorial sanctum, veritable sons of thunder, they turn pale at the thought of walking out from their comfortable armchairs into the street where the soap box is waiting their arrival.

Let's have the sheep separated from the goats in the journalistic world. Let's have those editors who are in favor of capitalism work on capitalistic organs. Let's have those who favor the Roosevelt new deal, now recognized for what it is, a pilgrimage to Moscow, follow the red flag of communism on bleeding feet, manning the barricades of revolution. The editorial writers of the Post-Dispatch insist that America is a helluva place for a poor man to live. If they feel that way, why don't they go to Russia where paradise awaits them? No, they prefer to eke out a miserable existence in detestable surroundings. They suffer in the land of the automobile and the radio and the Frigidaire and the washing machine and the reaper and all those other appurtenances of civilization which a capitalistic system has foisted upon their country. Some one should put an end to their sufferings, leading them gently by the hand into that country where communism flowers fairest, where milk and honey run like the Volga in spring flood. Then and there only would their parlor pink souls be at rest.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

CUTTING LOOSE!

Hurrah! And likewise
Three rousing cheers!
It's ended, over, done,
And now we can cut loose
And go places and See things.
Right away we can start in
On those things
That we gave up
For Lent.
It ended yesterday
And now look out, folks,
I'm coming.

Let's see, now, first
Of all
To lay in a nice
Big stock of hootch.
And here's a lovely
Likker Shoppe.
Come, let us enter in.
"Good morning, clerk,
And how much cost
All these lovely things
You have in bottles?"
What! Gosh
All hemlocks.
I didn't want to buy the Store, I just wanted
A quart, a lonely,
Measly quart of Scotch
Or Rye or Bourbon.
But I'm no millionaire.
I'll take a quart of Buttermilk instead. Oh, of Course, you don't sell
Buttermilk. Well,
I'll get it at the Grocery store. Good-by,
And if forever
Still Good-by.

I fain would celebrate
Now that I have Thrown off all
The restraints of Lent.
In jocund wine and
With some mellow rye
Or nice straight gin
Would I greet this happy
Day that I fain would celebrate.
I'd have my fling.
I'd call in all my friends
And hold high wassail
And hand around the grog
And bid all drink deep.
It might be that thereby
I would set my feet
At last into the path
Which leadeth downward
To the pit.
I cared naught.
I wished to celebrate.

But if hootch
Costs as much as that I'll buy the Quart of buttermilk and
A sack of peanuts
And go home, and on
These simple viands
I will make whoopee,
For in these days
I find
It costs too much
To go
To hell.

A BOY'S SONG.

(For Steve.)

I walked with the wind at my heels today
And he sniffed every lair of the frost;
He stirred every ditch where dead leaves lay
And lapped at each puddle we crossed.

I saw two red squirrels spiral a tree
And draw a swift arc in the air,
But the accurate eye of the stream could see
A score of things I know were there.

I watched a buzzard climb the sky
And I wished that a boy could be
A bird or the stream or the wind, riding high,
Then come home, just a boy like me.

SPRING TONICS.

IN the spring there is an urge to take a spring tonic. Some say this is a small voice crying from within. Others say it is a hangover from folk medicine. The two theories need not be contradictions. When we achieve wisdom we find that there was substantial basis for many of the procedures of folk medicine, even though the application may have been carried to grotesque extremes. Some of the procedures are based on recognition of a need, the effort to meet the need being about the best possible in the circumstances.

In the field of spring tonics, even in the early day, men recognized that the system was not up to par in the early spring. They observed that people were apt to be a little pale and that their gums were a little puffy and bled or oozed a little too easily. The skin was slightly rough and blemishes were too much in evidence, there were rather too many promiscuous aches and pains, and the constipation habit was a little troublesome. Some of them also remembered that they had been housed too much, that there had not been enough fresh air and sunshine, and that the winter diet had not been well balanced. Putting these facts together some reasoned the need was for more sunlight and fresh air, some for a different diet, and some a spring tonic.

All of them were right. Those who went in for spring tonics seldom wholly neglected the advantages of the out of doors in the springtime and they ate spring vegetables and fruits as soon as they became available. Those who had no faith in spring tonics argued that the improvement in physical condition was not due to the remedies. Change in diet and life out of doors were responsible, they said, and they were partly right. The advocates of spring tonics stuck to their guns and they were partly right.

Most of us need a tonic in the spring, just as we need spring diets and spring air. Many of us need one that contains some iron, even though the laboratory tells us our blood is rich enough. The popular iron tonics of a generation ago justified their use, in part, at least. Dr. S. Maurer thinks we would be better off if we returned to the use of that bottle for a while in the spring. Certainly we need vitamin foods and probably vitamin concentrates in the spring. We need fruits and fruit juices for C, yeast and wheat germ for A, and butter and fish liver oils for A and D.

I am sure most of us would be better off if we went out into the woods and dug up some sassafras root and then came home and brewed it into a tea. There are other herbs that are used in the making of spring tonics in different parts of the world. Probably the custom is justified, whatever it may be.

We are being told that a trace of copper is needed by the body. If a person does not want to take an iron tonic he has a number of iron foods to choose from. The use of some of these as spring tonics in fact though not in name is almost a custom. The writer knows of no folk medicine method which includes copper foods as a part. Our wise generation should improve on the medicine of their ancestors by finding and adopting some ways of getting a trace of copper in their spring diets or spring medicines.

BARE FEET.

T. T. writes: About a year ago I was having much trouble with fallen arches. I had read in your column that going barefoot benefited many cases. I spent most of last summer in the country and decided to try walking about without shoes. At first it was inconvenient, as my feet were naturally tender. I began by walking barefooted on the grass, and was surprised to discover how quickly my soles toughened up, although I am 65 years old and 20 pounds heavier than I should be. Then I tried mowing my lawn, a large one, and found that the forward pressure against the mower with my bare feet on the sod was a great help in strengthening and developing the bones and muscles of my feet. Being an early riser, I got into the habit of walking without shoes and playing with the dogs while the dew was still on the grass. The dogs and I got quite a kick out of this until I thought of a different game. In common with most of my neighbors my lawn is infested with a peculiarly aggravating sort of plantain which, almost overnight, grows stems several inches high, surmounted with prominent seed pods—knockers we call them. I tried pulling these knockers off their stems with my toes in order to exercise them, and I became fairly expert with my right foot. The work of the left foot was naturally much slower, so I allowed the left foot a handicap when counting the respective decapitations. This made a rather interesting game of it for me, but my dogs were convinced that any one who would abandon so fascinating a sport as chasing a stick to grab at knockers with his toes was in a bad way. They were very solicitous as to what might happen next and my Scottie was convinced I was "touched in the head." But, nevertheless, between lawn mowing and knocking the knockers, my discouraged old feet took on new life. I am back in the city and have been toting my 180 pounds over cement sidewalks and marble floors with feet as well and strong as when a child.

WATER BLISTERS.

P. L. writes: When I put my hands in hot, soapy water blisters form. What is good for me to do?

REPLY.

Your skin is sensitized to hot, soapy water. Can you quit putting your hands in the soap solution? If not, can you wear rubber gloves?

SHOCKING.

C. J. C. writes: I am 29 years old. Everything I touch gives me a shock. Do you think I have too much electricity?

REPLY.

No. At most you are a poor conductor. As spring advances and the air becomes moister and warmer and ventilation is better you will cease to be shocked.

HOLC LOAN.

Chicago, March 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have about $1,600 worth of promissory notes against a home for money I paid for taxes, interest and other bills. This place is about ready for foreclosure. The owner is making ready for a federal loan and wants me as a [1] co-signer. 2. Can I draw my money from the loan or [3] do I lose that right by my signature to the loan? 4. Does the federal loan clear all notes outside of first mortgage or can I get a second mortgage instead of my promissory notes which were drawn up in 1930 and now are a year overdue? J. M. B.

1. We assume that you mean that he has asked you to sign the "consent" to take the HOLC bonds in place of your notes.
2. Yes, if the appraisal figure proves high enough.
3. No.
4. Depends on what figure the appraisers fix.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CODICIL TO WILL.

Antioch, Ill., March 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In my will I have named three executors of my estate. I now wish to remove one of the names. 1. How must I do this? 2. Is it necessary to make a new will and [3] need there be three executors? B. J.

REPLY.

1. The codicil to that effect should be executed in the same manner as a will.
2. In substance, yes.
3. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MARITAL STATUS.

Chicago, March 27.—[Friend of the People.]—My husband filed his petition for citizenship March 13, 1930, and in it he stated he was single. On June 21, 1930, we were married, and on July 2, 1930 he secured his certificate of citizenship, which gave his marital status as married. Why did they put "married" on the paper when he was still single at the time of filing his petition? I, his wife, was born in the United States, but have been told that I lost my citizenship by marrying him before he became a citizen. D. S.

The marital status of a petitioner for citizenship is determined just prior to issuing the certificate of citizenship, and the correct marital status is indicated in the certificate. The nationality of an American woman citizen does not change by reason of her marriage to an alien eligible to citizenship if the marriage took place after Sept. 22, 1922.

From Across the Sea

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—Attacking congressmen from the middle west and west as "hick representatives of the unwashed democracy," who are interested only in their own petty problems, Prof. Frederick Schoenemann of the German School for Politics told a German audience how to plan a propaganda campaign which would compel the United States to adopt a friendly attitude toward Nazi Germany.

Prof. Schoenemann recently returned from a three months' visit in the United States, where he lectured for the Hitler cause.

Germany should take a hint from England and France, he said, and send professors to lecture in America to "interpret" and "explain" the new Germany to Americans. He charged that much of the feeling against the Nazi régime is due to a systematic flood of British and French professors who arrive on schedules of one a week to attack Germany from the American lecture platform.

The other factors influencing public opinion, he said, were "propaganda lies from Paris and Geneva, from Jews and emigrants, and from newspaper articles."

"In every town I visited," he stated, "I bought copies of every local newspaper and read the nonsense printed in them. Then I knew what I was up against."

In proposing plans for making the United States friendly toward the Nazi régime, Prof. Schoenemann suggested sending devotees of the Hitler cause who speak English well, have lived in America, and are acquainted with "American idiosyncrasies."

Radio broadcasts and German films will help, too, he stated. Only the eastern coast, however, perhaps as far as the eastern middle west, is interested in Europe, in his opinion, and, therefore, suitable to conversion to the German cause.

Beyond that "frontier" the "hick representatives of the unwashed democracy" of the west and middle west are not interested in anything other than their own petty problems, the professor says.

SUGGESTION FOR FURTHER DECORATION FOR THE CHICAGO UNION LEAGUE CLUB

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

AGAINST PARK CONSOLIDATION.

Chicago, March 30.—The proposed park consolidation within the city of Chicago is objectionable for the following reasons:

1. It concentrates power and patronage in the hands of the mayor, who already has too much power.

2. It takes away from the small park districts the right to vote for commissioners. If this is done the elective power will never be returned to the people. Sufficient pressure can never be brought on the legislature to accomplish it.

3. The plan removes the management of a park out of the neighborhood where the people are interested. A small group can never have influence on a city-wide management.

4. The plan does not do away with a single tax on property. It simply substitutes a tax by a body remote from the people for a tax by a body near at hand.

5. The plan will raise the taxes on small park districts. Douglas Sutherland has so stated. It may temporarily shade taxes a little in the large districts. From 1927 to 1932 the average tax rate in the large districts has been 67½ cents per hundred dollars and in the small park districts less than 30 cents.

6. The plan allows an extra 1½ per cent of bonding power, in addition to bond issues now authorized, whether issued or not. But in addition the bonds may be sold for less than par and may draw up to 6 per cent. They may be sold on advertising satisfactory to the commission at the best price attainable, which, of course, opens the door of temptation to all sorts of graft.

7. The plan does not include those parks and playgrounds where there are overlapping taxes. There are seventy small parks and thirty-six playgrounds directly under the city of Chicago, and sixty-one playgrounds under the board of education. There is also a considerable amount of forest preserve. None of these is included in the plan, although they contain over 3,000 acres. Every taxpayer pays taxes on all of them, as well as park taxes.

8. If there is any merit to the claim that a large organization can work more efficiently and economically than a smaller body there should be some evidence of the fact. But the south park district includes one-half of Chicago and three-fifths of the assessed value of Chicago and manages 85 per cent of the park area of the city under the control of park districts. But it has the highest average tax rate over a period of six years.

9. There has been less complaint about mismanagement of parks in Chicago than almost anything else, and most of the complaints have been against the largest systems. If the Circuit judges cannot be depended upon to select good commissioners, why expect an improvement by transferring the appointing power to the mayor? Why change a system that has borne pretty fair results for a system that has little to recommend it but theoretical argument? Why say that human nature, under the new plan, will act better than under the old plan?

10. Trimming trees, cutting grass, picking up paper, patching pavements, lighting streets, heating buildings, cleaning walks, and the like cannot be done more cheaply in a large system than a small one. They constitute at least 85 per cent of the expense. Superintendence and the like will only be reduced a trifle by consolidation. A little graft would wipe it out many times over.

11. In the last fifty years where has the grossest corruption existed? Was it in the cities of twenty thousand to a hundred thousand population, or was it in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh and other large cities?

12. Calvin Coolidge, a year or two before he died, said that the hopes for the political future of the United States depend on the familiarity of its citizens with public affairs and that training in small political units for service in larger political affairs gave the best assurance of such familiarity. He said the New England town meeting furnished the training that had made New England so successful in self-government.

DAVID H. JACKSON,
Former President, Lincoln Park Board.

THE LITTLE FARMER.

Charleston, Ill., March 28.—I wonder if the President has really considered the fact that in cutting the production of hogs, corn, cows and, I suppose finally, poultry of the farmer on a 50-acre farm or thereabouts, he is putting him in the class of the destitute farmer who needs relief to live on.

When prices were high he was able to make at least a meager living, but as other prices soared his prices remained the same or lower. He went deeper and deeper in debt; now F. D. R. expects him to be able to support himself, at the same time cutting his chances of making a living to meet higher prices. I wonder!

MRS. A. C.

FORWARD TO THE MIDDLE AGES.

Decatur, Ill., March 28.—Since THE TRIBUNE has always been a progressive newspaper I can't understand why it is continually ridiculing our President and his administrators for the experimental and progressive moves they are making.

You wouldn't go back to the horse and buggy days, and you wouldn't print a newspaper as they did a hundred years ago, but you insist that our fair land has gone far enough, in your sense of the world; we can now stand still. That, of course, is impossible; we must go either ahead or fall by the wayside.

Rockford Administration Seeks New Power at Polls

Rockford, Ill., April 1.—[Special.]—Supporting candidates in every ward, Mayor C. Henry Bloom and his minority progressive party will bid at the polls here Tuesday for control of the city government. Elected a year ago by a landslide, the mayor has never been able to command a majority vote in the city council. If the mayor's progressive party reelects its incumbents and wins two additional seats, strength in the council will be evenly divided and the mayor's vote will give the administration victory on all questions.

DR. BUTLER ASKS ARMS CONTROL AS PEACE PATH

Reports for the Carnegie Education Group.

New York, April 1.—President Nicholas Murray Butler of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace made public today a report on education and international affairs. Dr. Butler is president of the endowment. After quoting the congressional record of Jan. 13, 1928, that the world war cost 30,000,000 lives and $400,000,000,000 in property, he added:

"With that amount we could have built a $2,500 house and furnished this house with $1,000 worth of furniture, and placed it on 5 acres of land worth $100 an acre and given all this to each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Wales, Ireland, Scotland, France, Belgium, Germany, and Russia.

Cites Peace Use of Cash.

"After doing this there would have been enough money left to give to each city of 30,000 inhabitants and over in all the countries named a $5,000,000 library and a $10,000,000 university.

"Out of the balance we could have still sufficient money to set aside a sum at 5 per cent interest which would pay for all time to come a $1,000 yearly salary each for an army of 125,000 teachers, and in addition to this pay the same salary to each of an army of 125,000 nurses."

Dr. Butler quoted the 1914 values of France and Belgium and the property therein at less than 75 billion dollars and declared:

"The price which the leaders and statesmen of the Entente, including the statesmen of the United States, made the people of the world pay for the victory over Germany was equal to the value of five countries like France plus five countries like Belgium.

"These figures are of well-nigh astronomic proportions. Even they, however, do not tell the whole story. No account is taken of the stupendous additions to these losses which have been and are the result of the economic international war which is raging today with great violance."

"Today the United States is coöperating more openly in the fuller utilization of the League of Nations machinery than ever before.

"I believe that I express the views of my countrymen when I state that the old policies, alliances, combinations, and balances of power have proved themselves inadequate for the preservation of world peace . . .

Back to Paris Treaty.

"I have said to every nation in the world something to this effect:

"Let every nation agree to eliminate over a short period of years, and by progressive steps, every weapon of offense in its possession and to create no additional weapons of offense. This does not guarantee a nation against invasion, unless you implement it with the right to fortify its own border with permanent and nonmobile defenses; and also with the right to assure itself through international continuing inspection that its neighbors are not creating nor maintaining offensive weapons of war."

"If we are to arrest the return of those very conditions which led to the catastrophe of 1914, we must put fullest faith in the significance of the pact of Paris, build upon it as a foundation, and call upon governments everywhere, including our own, to keep their plighted word."

Society to Go to French Lick for Golf Meet

Several Groups to Spend Week-end There.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SPECIAL trains pulling out of Chicago for French Lick Friday will be loaded with most of the midwest's best amateur golfers and their handicapping friends. According to custom, the Midwest Amateur Golf tournament is to be played this coming week-end—April 6, 7, and 8—at French Lick, and there's more than a little excitement over it in fashionable sporting circles here.

The Oscar Johnsons and the Donald McMurrays will be motoring in town from a Florida vacation this week just in time to head south again with the Peter Berkeys, the Francis Blossoms, and a dozen more of their friends. Mr. Berkey has rounded up a party of twenty for the three day French Lick week-end.

Wives to Watch Their Husbands in Tourney.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walker, both of whom are well known golfers, haven't decided whether they will join this party for the golf tournament or have a motor vacation a few weeks later. Sidney S. Gorham Jr., Roger Q. White, and John D. Ames will all be taking part in the tournament and their wives will be on hand to lend encouragement. They are going to French Lick with "Chick" Evans, who will, of course, be one of the stars of the matches.

The junior Robert Cantwells have made up a party with the George Henneberrys, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jackson, and the Frank Muellers. Walter S. Carr is practicing his strokes preparatory to taking part in the tournament and so are Alden B. Swift, George Dawson, the present midwest champion, and Jack Westland, who will be sailing the middle of April to play in the Walker cup matches at St. Andrews, Scotland, May 11 and 12.

H. Chandler Egans Pause Here April 19.

The H. Chandler Egans are arriving in Chicago April 19 from their ranch in Medford, Ore., on their way abroad, where Mr. Egan, once a national amateur golf champion, is going to play in the Walker cup games. Interesting enough, he will be the oldest contestant in the tourney—not that he's so old, for he's just 49—but this is a ripe old age to enter an international golf match.

Unfortunately Mr. and Mrs. Egan will be here with their Chicago relatives for only 24 hours. Mr. Egan will go out to see his mother, Mrs. William Chandler Egan, at her home, Egandale, in Highland Park, while Mrs. Egan [the former Alice Barrett] will be with her son and daughter-in-law, the Barrett Scudders, in Lake Forest.

Then with Mrs. Egan's sister, Miss Adela Barrett, who lives in town on Scott street, Mr. and Mrs. Egan will renew their journey east the next day. They are not, however, sailing abroad together. Because Mrs. Egan and Miss Barrett have watched Mr. Egan play so many golf games, they are going to southern France while he is in Scotland. After the tournament they will meet for a week or two in England.

Edith Cummings' Wedding to Draw Easterners.

Beginning Wednesday an influx of notable eastern visitors will be arriving for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Miss Edith Cummings, daughter of Mrs. David Mark Cummings, and Curtis Burton Munson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Munson of New York City. The Munsons are due on Wednesday and so is Mrs. Harold E. Talbott of New York, who is to be Miss Cummings' matron of honor.

The Richard Russells, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, are due Friday from their home in Cambridge, Mass., and on the same day George Garret, Frederick Prince, and Tom Evans will be coming from New York.

Mrs. Cummings has arranged for the Munsons and the Russells to occupy the near north side apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick, who are in Florida waters cruising on their yacht, the Chieftain. Mrs. Talbott will be at a north side hotel.

Pre-Nuptial Parties to Start Thursday.

The parties for Miss Cummings and Mr. Munson—Miss Cummings has asked that they be as limited as possible—get under way Thursday evening when Mrs. Pauline Donelley, just home from an extended stay in the east, and Mrs. Talbott give a dinner dance at the Casino. Of necessity this party postpones the bridge tournament that was scheduled this week as one of the Casino's usual Thursday night entertainments.

The following evening Miss Eleanor Holden, who is to be Miss Cummings' maid of honor, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler are to be hostesses at a second dinner dance in the bungalow on the roof of the Hotel Sherman. And Saturday night, after the wedding and Mr. Munson and his bride have been sped on their way, the Samuel J. Walkers will have many of those most intimately concerned with the wedding, the out of town guests in particular, for a dinner in town. As yet the place has not been determined.

Wayne Chatfield-Taylor is to serve Mr. Munson as best man Saturday when the ceremony is read at 5 o'clock in the Cummings' apartment at 1550 North Side parkway. Philip D. Armour and Charles Dickey of Philadelphia are to be the ushers. After the service there is to be a reception for as many friends as this lovely town apartment will comfortably hold.

The announcement of the marriage yesterday of Mrs. Howard Cunningham of 1436 Lake Shore drive and Harold Stark will come as a great sur-

Good Morning!

Couldn't find "rip" tide in the dictionary, so I called up the steamboat inspector's office and this is what the nice man said:

"Rip tide is when the high tide is higher and the low tide is lower, at the time of a full moon. . . ."

Which made the meaning of the United Artists' picture a lot clearer to me than it had been.

For there IS a full moon when the heroine ALMOST commits an indiscretion, and when her dallying with temptation leads to a narrowly averted wreck at a cross roads of her life.

Miss Shearer's appearance is in the nature of news, for she's not made a film since dear knows when. Nice to see her again, and to find her as beautiful as ever.

Her performance, however, is spotty. She is delightfully sincere and appealing in many scenes, while in others she is superficial and affected.

True, the character she portrays is that of a glittering play girl, who, so to speak, reforms, and the idea was, I suppose, to draw vivid contrasts. Which still does not cause you to contemplate with complacence the theatricality of My Lady of the Bright Lights.

This is the more noticeable because of the unassailable rightness of everything Herbert Marshall says and does. His perfectly natural—and naturally perfect—poise puts every other player at a disadvantage. I don't believe I have ever seen a picture more effortlessly and completely dominated by a personality.

The story concerns the great love of Lord and Lady Rexford.

They had been simultaneously bowled over at first sight of one another. The time? When he was visiting in New York where she was a night life butterfly.

She became wholly his; lays bare all sordid secrets of her life. And, at last, sorrowfully goes down to the dock to say good-by forever and speed him back to his conservative English environment so different from her own.

But Philip finds he can't sail without Mary. Couldn't do such 'cause he loves her too much. . . .

And so they are married. . . . And have a little daughter. . . . And live happily until—Philip is called to America on business, the nature of which prevents Mary's accompanying him.

The worldly old aunt of Philip sees a kindred soul in Mary, and invites the young wife to stay with her in Cannes during the husband's absence.

Lonely—and tempted with a surging desire for the sort of laughter she had once known, Mary accepts.

Comes that lovable wastrel, Trent [Robert Montgomery], who had known and adored Lady Rexford in New York before her marriage. . . .

Rip tide! Loneliness. . . . Tumultuous longing for something to make her forget that loneliness. . . . Full moon—shining on a scent drenched Cannes garden.

And then, one of those damning things that can, and often do occur in the lives of the most innocent. . . .

BUT—there's this about love:

If it's the real thing, why, in the final analysis nothing else REALLY matters. If it isn't—misunderstandings eat off the silver plating and there isn't any polish that can recoat the alloy beneath or make it look as good as new.

"Riptide" is showy, sophisticated. It drags some in spots. The supporting cast is a good one with honors to Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Mr. Montgomery.

See you tomorrow.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A WELL known writer, in town from Hollywood on his way east the other day, told of the story conference held by M-G-M executives recently. They were discussing story possibilities for new films, when one of their group hurried in, carrying a book in his hand.

"This is the best story I ever read," he exclaimed. "The plot is sensational; the construction perfect, the dialog brilliant, the suspense is great. I want every one of you to read it before we change it."

THE same writer told of the new fellow named Seymour Dickens, who was to be seen around the studios. He was a kind of a mysterious egg and he popped up in the offices, people found him looking over their shoulder, and he was generally somewhere in the offing. Finally our friend inquired:

"Who is this Seymour Dickens anyway?"

"Why, don't you know? They hired him to come out here. Thought he was Charles Dickens," he was told.

VICTORIA POWELL, official lecturer for the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, which will have its gala opening the evening of April 14 as a benefit for the Ely Bates settlement, received a check for $100 from Otto Kahn the day after the banker's death.

"Your typing is so bad, Miss Powell," Mr. Kahn wrote, "that I'm suggesting you go out and buy a new machine with this money and try again."

Miss Powell, whose acquaintance with Mr. Kahn began in connection with her work for the Stratford-on-Avon players, for which he was a patron, sent the check through, wondering if the bank would honor it, it being the first post-mortem check of her career.

WE'VE picked up odds and ends of gossip over the week-end that might or might not interest you. Jane Grant, who is the wife of Harold Ross, editor of The New Yorker, passed through town the other day on her way to China to write about China for the New York Times. . . . Bob Sherwood is in Reno. Marie Doro, who has been away from these shores for many years, is coming to America shortly. Florence Noyes Sensency, who has been seriously ill at Michael Reese, was up for a short time Saturday. When Mrs. Alfred MacArthur and Mrs. Julian Armstrong returned from Mexico last week they brought an armadillo with them. It now is a pet of the Armstrongs. Hays MacFarland came home from Miami with pneumonia and is just out of Passavant hospital. The eighth earl of Chichester is a guest at the home of Mrs. Charles Irvin at 20 Cedar street.

'Shining Hour' Brings Drama to Life in City

Violet Heming Is Heroine; Conrad Nagel Opposite.

"THE SHINING HOUR."

A play by Keith Winter, given in the Selwyn theater April 1, 1934, with Violet Heming and Conrad Nagel in the leading rôles, under the management of Max Gordon.

THE CAST:

Judy Linden	Nancy Sheridan
Hannah Linden	Kathryn Collier
Henry Linden	John Quarry
Mickey Linden	John Halloran
Mariella Linden	Violet Heming
David Linden	Conrad Nagel

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The drama came to life in Chicago with the premiere of "The Shining Hour" at the Selwyn theater, and while this single episode of awakening may not be regarded as a complete resurrection, it is, nevertheless, cause for rejoicing. The old guard of first-nighters assembled in full force for the occasion, greeting each other like long lost friends. The mood of an alumni reunion, say on the fifth anniversary, prevailed in the lobby and lounges between the acts.

"The Shining Hour" is the English play that brought Gladys Cooper, who might be called the Ina Claire of London, to New York for her American debut in midwinter, causing Miss Claire to remark: "I wish somebody would write me a piece like that." It comes here with a cast specially organized for a Chicago run, offering us Violet Heming, as cool and lovely as her forerunner, as the heroine, and Conrad Nagel, trailing clouds of glory from the enchanted land of the films, as her opposite. Both of them are stars whose glamor has not begun to dim down, and they add a special interest to a play that is worthy of attention.

Although of London origin, "The Shining Hour" bravely omits all the traditional and somewhat hackneyed Mayfair luster. Its people are not fashionables, and there isn't a lord in the lot. They are of the Yorkshire breed—the gentry of the land—close enough to the soil to lend a hand now and then to work the farm that yields them a decidedly comfortable living.

It tells a story of three brothers and two sisters-in-law, and after gliding briskly and persuasively through scenes of excellent comedy, it warms up into a love tragedy of poignant quality. It is, in fact, as drastic in its attitude toward the importance of amorous brainstorms as any romantic motion picture. It becomes slightly mystical on the subject, speaking in a hushed way of "deathless romance" and "two people who were born for one another." Its author, Keith Winter, is of the new school of English playwrights, and has a young, cinematic enthusiasm for the mysteries of Eros.

Home to the farm, after years of service on the fringes of the British empire, comes the elder brother, Henry, a solid man of 48, with his new young wife, Mariella, found in South Africa or the East Indies, half Dutch of blood and cosmopolitan of nature. She is too modern for Yorkshire, but a good, clean thinking creature for all that.

Her effect upon this family, however, is that of a vampire. Within two weeks the principal gentleman farmer and brother, David, is ready to elope with her, and the other, a youth of the jeune age, is pawing at her with seductive intent.

All of which may be accepted with the remark that the Yorkshire breed of country gentlemen seems to have become highly inflammable and reckless about its brothers' wives. But when one takes up the matter of the other sister-in-law—David's young and pretty wife—there is reason for dubious shakings of heads.

This young woman sees that David and Mariella have become transcendental about one another. [David's playing Bach and Rachmaninoff on the piano seems to have turned the trick.] But instead of reacting normally to this painful discovery, she votes for the love affair immediate blending.

When Mariella, trying to play

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Use of a new and effective preparation for the treatment of dandruff involves nothing more than saturating the scalp with it before the usual shampoo.

Any little dandruff in your hair?

Then hop down and invest a few pennies in a special preparation for that scalp disorder that is worth its liquid weight in gold.

We'd been hearing about this treatment solution, but we were a bit skeptical. We tried it on ourselves and found it all it's claimed to be, but we also took a poll of some of the town's experts, who give it the highest recommendations. It is used in some of the best shops and salons in Chicago—and, in some way, at very fancy prices. However, the shops we found using it are the type that wouldn't use any product unless its merits were thoroughly tested and found undisputed.

It isn't expensive, nor is it complicated to use. There are two solutions, one for dry, one for oily hair. Its special mission is to overcome dandruff, which it does if directions are carefully followed. But we'd recommend it for all types of hair, dandruff ridden or otherwise. It seems to us to encourage the ever important natural oil supply that gives hair that beautiful luster.

Men will want to know about this, too. It's a pre-shampoo treatment. The scalp should be thoroughly saturated with it, then firmly massaged. In salons and shops it is steamed in; this can be done at home with towels soaked in hot water. The steaming or massage, as you prefer, is given for about ten minutes and then the hair is given the usual shampoo and careful rinsing. And that's all there is to it, except that for a few days following the treatment a fine toothed comb should be used to remove the loosened dandruff.

The treatment should be repeated every ten days until the scalp remains perfectly free from dandruff; thereafter occasional applications will keep hair and scalp in good condition.

We think it's a grand thing to tuck into your pocketbook or purse when you go for your shampoo every ten days. It's a pretty snappy treatment, far less complicated than most of its type, and extremely effective.

You'll find it in some Chicago shops.

String Quartet Earns Right to Annual Series

Gives Final Recital with Authority and Manner.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The program was a bit disarranged from its original form, but the Chicago String quartet finished its series at the Chicago Woman's club theater yesterday afternoon with authority and manner.

Alberto Salvi, one of the best of the harpists, had an engagement calling him away at an early hour, so the Marcel Tournier Suite, which he played with quartet, was transferred from last to first place. Also another unexpected assignment caused Robert Dolejsi to be absent from his post as viola player and George Dasch to fill the vacant chair.

These are details of concert giving. The important fact is that the Chicago String quartet gave a recital so well worth attending that its continuance as a permanent item in the musical life of Chicago should be something to be taken for granted. The organization has earned its place, and only dire calamity can be cited as a reason why that place should be left empty.

Since Jan. 7 five programs have been given. There has been a general and entirely commendable policy of presenting attractive new works as well as approved compositions of greater age. The Tournier Suite yesterday is a good example. Tournier is a harpist, with the apparent and logical idea that the harp needs some new good music written for it. On the strength of yesterday's showing he deserves encouragement on his idea.

Looking back over past programs, one discovers extended works by Nicolas Miaskowsky and Darius Milhaud, and lesser pieces by W. E. Kritch, Frank Bridge, and, in yesterday's program, Alexander Tcherepnin and Fritz Kreisler. These are in addition to the Mozart, Brahms, Schubert, and Beethoven compositions that take the chief places on most chamber music programs.

Twice the quartet was reduced to a pair. On one occasion Herman Felber Jr., the first violin of the quartet, gave a sonata recital with the pianist, Leo Podolsky, when a little known work by Vincenzo Davico was played. On another Mr. Felber appeared in joint recital with his wife, Estelle Hughes Felber, soprano.

It is with such eagerness to present music of the contemporaries that the quartet belongs to Chicago. There is another reason, that whether the music is new or old, it is played with fervor, with intelligence, with a complete enjoyment of its contents that extends from performers to audience.

A Vicious Circle

SYNOPSIS.

Dorinda, known as Dodo Quarles, is found stabbed to death following a dinner party in her Paris apartment. Dodo, who was untrammeled by scruples or breeding, had served a drug to her guests. Helen Roderick, who was a friend of Dodo's deceased mother, was starting with Dodo. She didn't attend the dinner, but awakened early in the morning and discovered the crime and Dodo's guests lying about in deep sleep. She is able to arouse her friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist. Tommy's dinner partner was Dinah Blake, an American artist, whose engagement to Christopher Loughton, in the American embassy, was, according to rumor, broken on account of Dodo. Dinah is not among the sleeping guests. Tommy arouses the others and soon, for the police, Tommy breaks the news to Dodo's stepfather, Basil Jethro, celebrated Oxford scholar, who was her guardian and trustee and who had long since given up trying to curb his charges. Dinah can't be found. Tommy conducts a search for her and his hints to help clear her of suspicion. She paid a call on the Hubert Loughtons shortly past midnight, after leaving Dodo's party. Dinah returns two days later to the apartment where she shares with her cousin, Hallie Pemberton. She had been sleeping in the studio of absent friends. Her memory is a blank. She knows nothing of the crime, and doesn't know whether or not she is guilty.

INSTALMENT XIX.

A MOTIVE FOR THE CRIME.

"Hallie! Look me in the eye. Does everybody think I did this? Did you think it?"

Hallie quailed under the fierceness of Dinah's question. I . . . O, my dear, I . . . I just tried not to think. I was afraid you weren't alive."

"Then you did believe it . . . O, I don't blame you. And now, I suppose, they'll be coming to arrest me for murder. Is that so?"

"No, no!" Hallie winced, stung to desperate activity. "What you've just told me ought to make all the difference, only . . . O dear, if there was some one to advise us! That wretched inspector's sure to drop in again any minute, and unless we can think of something now, this instant . . ." She fluttered like a trapped bird, then an idea came to her. "I know! Take off your clothes, get into bed. I'm going to ring up Dr. Barnes, and . . . but there, I've forgotten something. Did that old cat downstairs see you come in?"

"The concierge? No. She was frying onions. No one saw me.

"Thank goodness for that! Now . . . but s'sh! There's that worthless Irene coming in the door. She'll have to be told you're here, but anyhow she shan't stir out again to spread any more gossip. Just wait till I've seen her."

Hallie rang up the doctor, but he was out on a maternity case. This meant delay—but whom else could she call upon? She realized dimly that a lawyer would probably be required, but during her three years' sojourn in Paris neither she nor Dinah had ever needed legal advice. If only Christopher were not exiled from the flat! Hallie could trust Christopher, whom she still thought of with lingering regret. Dared she telephone him to come round? Dinah would be furious, but then this was a desperate case. She was just picking up the receiver again when a sharp rat-tat on the knocker outside brought her quivering to her feet. The police!

"Go back!" she hissed to Irene, who was hastening to answer the summons. "Don't make a sound. Let them think we're out."

When the servant was gone, she remained, not daring to breathe, her eyes glued to the door. The knock was repeated, with growing insistence. It might, she thought, be the concierge with another cable from home. If she waited, the envelope would be slid under the door. Yes, look! Something white was just appearing on the mat. Not a telegram though. A visiting card. Whose?

Yes, look! Something white was just appearing on the mat. Not a telegram, though. A visiting card. Whose?

Curiosity prevailed. She picked up the bit of cardboard, read a man's name which, though familiar, conveyed nothing to her, and in still greater mystification saw that the line pencilled beneath was addressed to her.

"Miss Pemberton," it ran, "please let me in. I am a friend of Miss Blake's."

She opened the door a hand's breadth and gazed up into a pair of blue eyes which she had never seen before, but which somehow inspired confidence. They were set in a fresh colored face which she knew to be English. The tweed suit was English, too. The next moment the stranger had stepped inside.

"Forgive me for intruding on you like this," he said earnestly. "You see, I'm the man who sat next to your cousin at that beastly dinner. I felt I had to talk to you about it. Are you alone?"

The urgency in his voice told her that here was some one who had shared her terrors. In a flash she knew, as one does know these things, that here at last was some one to whom she could with safety unburden herself.

"Mr. Rostetter," she whispered, drawing him into the salon. "Dinah's come home. She's in her room now. O, can you tell us what we ought to do?"

Tommy reeled. The whole of his gloomy horizon became suffused in rainbow tint.

"Come home? Here, tell me about it! Is she . . . is she all right?"

"Yes . . . no . . . O, it's so peculiar, I don't know what to say. Will she be believed? That's the point. You see, till half an hour ago she hadn't the remotest conception that . . . that this murder had occurred. Her memory's a blank. Not till she saw a newspaper and read how they were searching for her ——"

"Hold on! You say she doesn't remember . . . anything?"

"Not one thing since the dinner party. You may think it's impossible. I would, if I didn't know Dinah. Listen, this is what happened."

In intense agitation she repeated Dinah's recital. Tommy's eyes remained fixed on her little drab, middle aged face, so frank, so sensible. Then, he thought, it was the Passage d'Enfers after all—one of those villas which had its windows shuttered. Yet what a row he had made on the knocker!

"And she can't tell you how she got here? She doesn't recall anything that happened on the way?"

"Not a thing. When she woke up this afternoon she couldn't imagine where she was. Then it came back to her, or at least she did recognize the room as the Van Valkenburgs' studio. How she got there was a mystery, but you see that very day at lunch she'd run into the Van Valkenburgs, who were just off to the Dolomites. When she mentioned she was looking for a place to paint in they said she might use their studio while they were gone, and gave her the key there and then, only they begged her not to say anything about it. That was because they'd refused to lend it to several people, on account of the filthy state most of these artists leave a room in. It's their house, you know, and they like to keep things nicely."

"And the key? I suppose she had it with her?"

"Of course—in a little change purse, inside her evening bag. She must have walked all the way, for they haven't found any taxi driver who drove her."

"She did walk," said Tommy. "And she paid a call on the way. I expect you've heard something about that, but have you told her?" he demanded sharply.

"Not yet, though Mrs. Hubert Loughton did ——"

"Then don't. If she's forgotten that, too, the fact will help prove she's speaking the truth. The police will have to know, of course, and when they come to question her they'll soon see she's not shamming ignorance. The trouble is, though, will that be sufficient to clear her?"

"O, Mr. Rostetter! You think they may arrest her anyhow?"

"I don't know. It's to be hoped they'll merely examine her closely, and go ahead with the investigation, but one can't be sure."

Tommy pressed his hands against his eyes and thought hard. Hallie watched him in tense perturbation till he looked up at her with his keen, blue gaze.

"Miss Pemberton," he said. "As I see it, there are just two things against your cousin. First, her disappearance, which may be got over now she's given a plausible story which can't be disproved, and second a possible—mind, I only say possible—motive for the crime. It's that motive I speak about. I beg your pardon for being so blunt, but have you any definite notion as to why Miss Blake broke off her engagement with Mr. Loughton?"

Shower Drives Easter Parade Inside Autos

Many Don Spring Finery Despite Downpour.

Grace white orchids and Dorothy gardenias.

Chicago history played an interesting rôle yesterday in the Eastertide at St. James' Episcopal church, where several hundred of the city's prominent families worshiped at an 11 o'clock service. Introducing the centennial of the church [the building is one of the few on the near north side to have withstood the great fire of 1871], the service called back memories of those days when John Kinzie gave the lot for the church and Abraham Lincoln attended a communion.

Richest of all the recollections were those of Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, who has known more than half a hundred Easters with the congregation. Trimly tailored in black, she was one of the early arrivals at the service at which her son, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., officiated as a vestryman. The junior Mrs. Ryerson, whose Easter costume was navy blue, came with her daughter, Nora, who is at home from Milton academy for her spring vacation, and Edward L. Ryerson III., who is having his spring holiday from Hill school.

Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine in Black and White Print.

A black and white printed dress was the spring fashion note in the costume of Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, one of Chicago's most distinguished dowagers and long a member of St. James' church. For the service she sat with Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine Jr., while the junior Mr. Valentine served as an usher.

Most lavish of all the orchid bouquets in the St. James' congregation were those worn by Mrs. Clement Studebaker III. and Mrs. Robert R. Baker. Striking with Mrs. Studebaker's tailored black cloth coat heavily furred in silver fox and her cartwheel black hat was a spray of three white orchids. Mrs. Baker wore a corsage of four deep purple orchids on the shoulder of her black tailleur.

The débutante generation was represented at St. James' by Miss Virginia Thatcher, who wore the only white hat in the congregation. It matched the half moon spray of gardenias that nested in her silver fox scarf. The good looking young actor, Bertram Thorn, who is in Chicago only temporarily, represented the New Yorker's version of correct masculine attire for Easter day with spats and cane, bowler, and a red carnation in his lapel.

Younger Folk Gather at St. Chrysostom's.

At St. Chrysostom's, the North Dearborn parkway church which has been the scene of more fashionable weddings than any other Chicago house of worship, most of the younger members of the society world gathered yesterday morning for Easter services.

There were Mr. and Mrs. Solomon B. Smith—Mrs. Smith chic in gray wool with a corsage of green orchids—with Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Louise Neff. Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Lamport were with Mrs. Lamport's family, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Kramer, LeRoy Kramer Jr., and Henry Kramer. Fresh and gay in a bright blue suit with a matching hat, Mrs. Lamport personified the festivity of Easter.

T. George Lee came with both of his daughters, Miss Martha Lee and Mrs. William E. Graham, and his son-in-law, Mr. Graham. A lavish bouquet of lavender orchids decorated Mrs. Graham's smart black costume while a pink organdy tie and frou frou that matched a narrow ribbon hatband were the spring fashion notes in Miss Lee's black ensemble.

The battery of newspaper photographers stationed close to the entrances of St. Chrysostom's focused their cameras simultaneously when Miss Jeannette Schreiner arrived with Paul C. Loeber Jr., correctly attired for Easter morn in outaway and high silk topper. Miss Schreiner's costume was a two piece pea green wool suit and a matching turban. She wore a shoulder load of lavender orchids.

Congratulations and good wishes were literally showered on Miss Catharine Noyes and Roger Dustin Shaw, whose engagement was announced on Saturday morning. Gardenias were in striking contrast to Miss Noyes' fashionably tailored black suit furred in silver fox. Another engaged couple whose progress toward the church was interrupted with dozens of felicitations was Miss Jeanne Street and her fiancé, Thomas Knorr.

Worshipers Overflow Holy Name Cathedral.

The Holy Name cathedral was filled to capacity for the solemn pontifical mass at noon. Hurrying through the rain for the service were the Walter J. Cummingses and their three sons, Walter Jr., Edward, and Arthur; Miss Alice Bremner and an escort, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beuttas. Mrs. Beuttas looked exceptionally well with a hat and scarf of hunter's green and orchids livening up her black caracul coat with its silver fox collar. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hurley arrived a bit late and so could not get seats. They went over to St. Dominick's church, where they found the fashionable crowd in even greater numbers. Mrs. Hurley, the former Gwendolyn Juergens, had no fear of the inclement weather, for she wore a spring ensemble in royal blue with a matching hat and three or four huge cerise orchids.

Lake Forest Folk Hurry from Motors.

Lake Forest churchgoers shivered and dodged April showers yesterday as they hurried from motors to the shelter of the First Presbyterian church and the Church of the Holy Spirit in time for Easter services. The entire Donnelley family, including Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Donnelley, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Thomas Elliott and Gaylord Donnelley, arrived early at the First Presbyterian church. Close behind came Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knott, Mrs. Knott wearing black and a cluster of lavender sweet peas.

Among the first arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Wacker, Mrs. Wacker warmly clad in a sleek black caracul coat; Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Farwell and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow arrived together. Fur coats, with clusters of white gardenias, sweet peas, and bright spring flowers pinned on tightly clasped coat collars predominated in the brief parade up the steps of the church. Shortly afterward Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rumsey and their daughter, Jean, arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Ober and Mrs. Kent Chandler, who was wearing a smart black off-the-face straw and orchids, also attended the services. One of the late arrivals was Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., stunningly dressed in a black, silver fox trimmed coat, and wearing a cluster of orchids. Mrs. James E. Baum, wearing a rich brown tweed suit and gardenias, Miss Madeleine Newell, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Bromwell, and another young couple, Miss Margaret McLennan and her fiancé, John B. Morse, hurried into the vestibule just as the service began.

When the rainfall was at its worst, Miss Beatrice Kirk and her fiancé, Capt. C. Ross Cuthbert, dashed from the communion service of the Church of the Holy Spirit and drove away in haste. Miss Kirk wore a black suit trimmed in bright aquamarine, with a hat to match. With her silver fox hugged closely, Mrs. Gordon Kelly was seen leaving the church wearing deep purple orchids and a black ensemble. With her in the small portico was Mrs. Dexter Cummings, clad in a mink coat.

Few Winnetka Folk Wear Spring Outfits.

In Winnetka strong lake breezes, a threatening sky and cold showers kept many Easter outfits hanging in the closet. However, there were some few brave souls who, hoping for clear weather by church time, put on their colorful spring costumes and brightened up an otherwise drear Easter world.

Miss Margot Atkin hurried into quaint Christ church. Miss Atkin was dressed in a light tan tweed swagger suit with a long coat, and her bright yellow sweater coming close around her neck reflected the warm yellow of her small tilted felt hat. Small screw earrings and short beads were her only jewels. Her brown umbrella swinging jauntily over her shoulder completed a perfect spring picture.

Mr. and Mrs. John N. Van der Vries, Mrs. Van der Vries in a green coat with a touch of orange showing above her coat and wearing a tight fitting brown felt hat, also braved the chilly day. Miss Joy Fairman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Fairman, wore a blue spring coat with a small sailor hat cocked pertly on one side, black patent leather slippers, a light blue dress peeking beneath her coat and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bailey Potter were the next to enter Christ church. Mrs. Potter wore a spring coat of combined shades of dark and light gray with a gray print dress beneath. A white gardenia tucked near her face on her shoulder brightened up her small black hat which ended in a smart peak at the top.

Younger Folk Clad in Bright Outfits.

Miss Jane Sargent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sargent, and the Misses Esther and Mary Lou Kriebel and Master Charles Richard Kriebel attended church together, all dressed in bright spring outfits. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bard were accompanied by their small daughter, Betty, who wore a short perky blue coat with a bunch of colorful flowers on her shoulder and a small blue hat with a tailored blue band around it.

The Community Congregational church was soon filled to capacity and late comers had to turn dejectedly homeward. Among those fortunate enough to gain entrance were the Misses Sylvia and Margaret Boynton. Miss Sylvia wore a dark blue suit with blue purse and gloves and one of the new "windblown" hats of blue. Around her neck was a white barred silk Ascot which seemed to blend into the shoulder bouquet of sweet peas and white roses. Miss Margaret wore a black coat and also had a bouquet of sweet peas and roses.

Mrs. W. Dean Keefer, in a smart black coat and tight fitting black hat, was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Beetie Keefer, who wore a dark blue coat topped by an organdie collar barred in blue and tying in Ascot style, had a small red boutonniere on her Breton sailor hat. Miss Carol Letts wore a dark blue suit with a shoulder bouquet of sweet peas, and her companion, Miss Dorothy Warner, wore a print dress under her coat of blue and a small Breton sailor in dark blue straw. She also favored a shoulder bouquet of sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie A. Drew were also fortunate enough to gain admittance to the Congregational church. Mrs. Drew wore a blue suit with a large taffeta bow of blue tied under her chin. Her hat turned up all around and there was a semblance of white bar checks under the brim.

Mrs. Gerhard Bosch in Light Brown Tweed.

Among the numerous white rain-coats and heavy furs at St. Luke's Episcopal pro-cathedral, Evanston, Mrs. Gerhard Bosch's light brown tweed three piece suit struck a spring note. A Schiaparelli model, it had a three-quarter length jacket, with pockets attached to the belt, and was trimmed on neck and shoulders with beige baby fox. Mrs. Bosch wore with it a hat of matching tweed with an off the face brim.

Mrs. H. W. Alger was with her daughters, Elizabeth and Mary Louise, the former in a blue suit with white corded silk revers and a straw sailor with upturned brim, the latter in a brown tweed suit over a yellow sweater, with brown corduroy scarf, matching straw hat, and handbag.

Mrs. Don F. Wiley and three daughters, Patty, Donna, and Barbara, in gray, brown, and blue, were a festive quartet. Miss Patty's gray tweed suit was worn with a navy blue beret, blue bag, and shoes. Mrs. John W. Moffett wore a light gray wool coat with a matching felt beret.

A new straw chapeau and a corsage were the only concession made to the day by the majority of the congregation at the First Presbyterian church, Evanston. Mrs. Samuel D. Boggs and Miss Nancy Boggs in new tweed suits were among the first arrivals. Mrs. Boggs' was of Eleanor blue with a dark blue taffeta blouse, worn with a hat of matching tweed. Miss Boggs' chartreuse wool suit and taffeta figured blouse was worn with picture hat of yellow straw trimmed in cherries.

Mrs. Innis A. McKenzie's blue wool suit was worn with a brown straw hat. Mrs. J. Horton Fall, Mrs. Frank Madden, Mrs. Eugene Stevens, Mrs. David Parsons, Mrs. D. W. Ellis, Mrs. Irwin Rew, and Miss Theresa Rew were others in the congregation.

South Siders' Frocks Concealed by Coats.

Sartorial spring outbursts among the feminine members of the congregations of the Kenwood and St. Paul's churches on the south side were limited to bright frocks all but concealed under dark coats, bright plaid umbrellas, and an array of corsages that ranged from gardenias to orchids and back to gardenias again.

At the Kenwood church Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Walker and their daughter Lucy, the latter in a smart gray suit with a cluster of lavender sweet peas and pink roses darted in for the 11 o'clock service before the deluge. Miss Barbara James in a brown wool coat over a brown and white frock with gardenias pinned to her shoulder came to church with her fiancé, Richard Sampson, and the latter's mother, Mrs. C. C. Sampson, who wore black.

At St. Paul's a throng of smartly dressed women dashed from their motors to the protection of the church. Breton sailors, gay scarfs, and gardenias were as numerous as galoshes and fur coats. Doris Palmer wore what appeared to be a favorite combination, navy blue with gray. Her blue silk frock was diagonally striped in white; over it she wore a gray wool coat. Her navy hat had a perky white band.

West Suburban Folk Flock to Churches.

Among those attending the service at the First Presbyterian church in Oak Park were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Shorey, Mrs. Frank C. Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. John Ford and their daughter, Dorothy. River Forest was represented in the congregation by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. R. Curtis and their small daughter, Jane Elizabeth. Quite grown up were Nona Gale and George Nikolas, accompanied by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Nikolas, and Herbert L. Nichols.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church in Oak Park Mrs. Sampson Rogers was accompanied by her young son, Sampson Jr., and her other son, Charles Bolles Rogers of Minneapolis, and his daughter, Nancy.

Among the few to brave the elements in spring suits were Miss Catherine Hurd, escorted by E. S. Cronwall. Miss Hurd wore a stunning blue and white checked coat, a brimmed blue hat and a corsage of white and yellow freesia at her shoulder. Mrs. Wardell N. Cronwall was smartly dressed in black and white, with a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Thomas J. Dixon, wearing a corsage of violet sweet peas and yellow roses on a smart black outfit, was glimpsed in a group including Dr. and Mrs. Howard Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoover, and Miss Clara Hoover.

Gray skies did not deter 15,000 worshippers from getting up bright and early to attend the great community Easter service at dawn in Soldiers' field.

BY MARY MEADE.

Tired of reading yards and yards of recipes and being forever adjured to hustle out and get into your apron? Then shake! For I'm tired of writing them and hinting at apron donning. So let's, just for today, take a sidetrack and see what we can dig up that's interesting, especially about this business of why bread is brown or why it is white.

To get us started, I've been spading back into the archives and it seems that for centuries the heavy dark bread like that which still turns up in the Black Forest of Germany and often has four or five pounds of heft to the loaf was the only bread known to the people. Then one day a whimsical English earl, certainly before the Norman conquest, decided that what he wanted, by Jove, was a pure white dinner.

The cook tore his hair. You couldn't have a white dinner with bread on the board! But it was a matter of white bread or no head apparently, for the tale relates that, in some happy fashion, he got the chaff out of the flour and, just in time, the first white loaf was baked.

But the folks couldn't all be earls and so for a long time this white bread was baked only in the monasteries by the monks and offered in the services. Later the unblessed bread was sold to the nobility and then gradually, as men grew more wealthy, the bakeries themselves came out of the churches and were taken over by the lords.

And so began ages of debate over which is better, brown bread or white. If you would be better than your neighbor in those days you never admitted that you ate the brown. It was left for valets, hard working maids, and the mass of the husky Johns in the country. You couldn't possibly digest it, you were sure (though likely it was considerably more digestible than the white bread).

Fortunately in these days there is very little bread that isn't all it's proclaimed to be. But in those days inquests were slow and pure food laws hadn't yet been thought up. Often arrow-root and powdered chalk found their way into white bread to accent the whiteness, while ground acorns, cobs, and beechnuts were some of the least offensive of the ingredients which often padded brown breads, making them look better than they tasted.

But if bread and a chunk of meat or a bowl of soup are all that you are giving your family to eat you'll put up a real fight to get the best bread for the money. And women of those times were very much the same. Finally feeling ran so high that a guild of bakers was established in the twelfth century and in the fourteenth century was officially incorporated, with dues and fines to pay, apprentices to train, funerals to finance, and widows to care for.

But from the start the guild was divided into two camps, the brown bakers and the white bakers, who practically hated each other to pieces. But all of them had to toe the line before the guild laws. Adulteration was a serious offense, meriting heavy fines and often a day in the stocks with eggs and cabbages coming one's way. But even more belabored was the rascal who offered a short weight loaf. Him they dragged through the streets after a couple of hurrying horses, a short weight loaf batting him in the face.

Perhaps working on the belief that some folks may be trusted no farther than they can be seen, the guild next called in all the bakers and had them set up shops in one street in each town instead of being scattered throughout the community. It did away with policemen, too, for one baker would keep a mighty bright eye out for misdemeanors of his rivals and had no qualms about reporting him. And to add to the excitement the brown bakers all held forth on one side of the street while the whites took the other, just to make it easier for the apprentices in times of warfare!

If you were a housewife in those days you couldn't legally buy bread in any but this one street. You could, however, buy hot buns when the peddlers brought them through the town. But you could buy them only while they were hot. As soon as they grew cold they became "bread" and had to be sold in the bread market.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt attended the 11 o'clock service in St. Thomas' Episcopal church this morning after having attended at 7:30 o'clock the sunrise Easter service at Arlington cemetery, which was conducted by the champlain of the house of representatives, Rev. James Shera Montgomery. Mrs. Roosevelt was accompanied to this service by her secretary, Mrs. Schidder and for the service at St. Thomas', John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, recuperating from an appendix operation and just out of the hospital, went with her.

CONQUERING CONTRACT
By P. HAL SIMS

THE LEEWAY PRINCIPLE.

The time has come to introduce to you a bidding principle which, as far as my knowledge goes, is not found in any other system and is in fact condemned by many experts on the grounds that it is deliberately lacking in precision and that it inflicts a needless guess on the partner. They admit that it has somehow not proved to be an insurmountable obstacle to the winning of championships, in our hands, but maintain that it is too difficult for the average player to learn or employ safely. I will leave it to my readers to judge the validity of these "criticisms."

When the partner of the opening bidder immediately jumps the bid to within one of game, that is a forcing bid which the opener may not pass unless his own opening bid was a psychic. This discretion is allowed to the opener, so as to protect psychic or near psychic third hand opening bids.

In connection with the two no-trump response, you have already had this principle explained to you. A jump take out in another suit is always a force, and is not under discussion here. I am now concerned with the jump raise in partner's suit. This is a force under just the same conditions as the two no-trump response.

What the Jump Raise in a Major Suit Means.

If you open with one heart and I respond with three hearts, I am giving you the following message: "Unless your bid was a psychic we are apparently sure to make four hearts on this hand. A slam is not out of the question if you have additional values and our hands fit each other in their holdings outside hearts. I have four hearts for you; if you can make some positive informative bid, please do so. Otherwise bid four hearts, which is a sign off bid in this situation."

Send Out Your Line of Scouts.

This leeway method gives an added chance to feel out slam possibilities without endangering a game contract, in the inevitably difficult situation when the responding hand has no suit in which to take out, but nevertheless realizes that he has potential slam material and that a game in the opener's suit is practically sure. By bidding one short of game, he gains a whole round of bidding and enables the slam try to be reconnoitered without the partnership being driven to bid beyond game if the hands do not show a slam fit. Duplications of values are invariably uncovered. Sometimes the contract will be carried to five odd in a major suit—but that should only be when this contract is quite safe and there is a play for six, but the bidding has failed to show the slam as a good bidding chance.

A hand that my wife played last week illustrates this latter contingency.

Mrs. Sims, South, bid one spade on

Sp. A Q J x x x Di. Q x
Hts. K Q x Cl. K x

and her partner rightly bid three spades, holding

Sp. K 10 x x Di. A 10 9 x
Hts. x Cl. A J x x

South, having only three primary tricks and no second suit, signed off with four spades. North, however, with his singleton and two aces, still had slam hopes if the opener had three and one-half tricks regardless of secondary suits, and makes this clear by bidding five spades, which my wife rightly passed. Had her queen of diamonds been the king, that would have been her justification for bidding six spades, which would be made with that holding. Had South held

Sp. A Q J x x Di. Q x x
Hts. K Q x Cl. K x

her response should be three no-trump and North would then bid five spades, which South must pass. Only if East holds both king and jack of diamonds and West has the ace of hearts, can this contract be set.

Wise Shopper Buys Clips for Spring Accents

Shells for the Ears Are Style Sensation.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's a dull day when you can't find some new costume jewelry to make you marvel. This spring, it's ear clips, dress clips, and matched clips that you can anchor to your dress cuffs. ANYTHING to accent spring clothes with dashes of color or contrast.

The ear clips are sensational. Ask to see the new shell ideas, tiny replicas of fluted sea shells in silver or gold metal, that do not either pierce the ear or screw into the tender flesh. These shells clamp on gently, they are like an entire shell that opens and then closes on the lobe of the ear, decorative, and quite different.

Snails or scrolls are other designs in shining metal that ought to be instant charmers. They provide plenty of glittering contrast for dark spring hats. Colored pearls have been revived for all the varied color schemes in fashionable spring ensembles.

They are available in every imaginable pastel tint, the smoky gray shades being particularly effective, with natural lustre pearls coming in second. The pale yellows, tawny browns, watery tones of chartreuse and aquamarine are lovely accents and contrasts for colored spring dresses or street costumes.

Bracelets are going strong, bigger and better than ever. Flaming splashes of red composition or prystal vie with hot, rather dazzling pieces of the same unbreakable stuff in clear citrons, orange and vivid greens. Delectable shades of powder blue and dusty pink and sea foam green with some madonna blue give you interesting alternatives.

White costume jewelry is here to stay. From the clever combines of white and silver, white and gold, white and shiny chromium to the all white numbers you can't escape this rage for startling white.

The clips especially are worthy of much praise, for some of the uncommon designs of the collections are featured in these helpful clips that double as decoration and closing devices.

Faults Often Only Phases of Child's Growth

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Would it help you or discourage you to be told you must make up your mind to put up with certain things at different stages in your child's life? I just can't preach a gospel which tells you that you can achieve perfection—or what you think is perfection—with your children.

You see, nature—to twist a quotation—works in mysterious ways her wonders to perform. And when she is performing the wonder of turning a helpless baby into a mature person over a short period of years, and this in a complicated world of people and things, some behavior puzzling and trying to parents develops.

I could give you a dozen examples of what I mean at all ages—touching things, biting other small children, picking up "bad" words, hating to go to bed, disliking girls or boys, then being quite crazy about boys or girls—or being like the boy in the following letter:

"My lad seems to obey well, but every morning it is the same thing: 'Wash your teeth'—'Comb your hair'—'You will be late for school'—'Pick up your things.' He seems to have to be reminded so many times."

It's almost universal—slowness at this age—dawdling—having to be jacked up about the picking up of clothes. All we can do is to work for reasonable cooperation.

I don't say "do nothing," but I do say, realize that some troubling behavior—not all, of course—is a phase, and must be lived through.

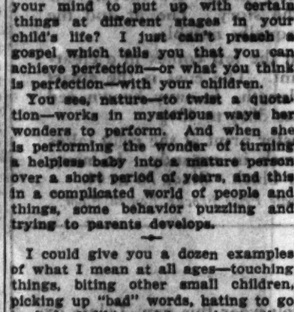
Two Patterns and Scheme of Colors Make Lovely Quilt

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents each, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Night and Day

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Night and Day" is another of those geometric quilt designs that are most mystifying to the beholder. Only two patterns are used in cutting the block, but it is the color arrangement that creates such bewilderment when your friends attempt to figure out the pattern from the completed cover-let. Twenty blocks, sixteen inches square, make a whole spread. So easily and quickly is it pieced that one square may be made beautifully in an hour.

It's ready—Nancy Cabot's new booklet, presenting 96 illustrations of favorite quilt designs, together with one pattern of a popular quilt, "The Framed Rose." Price, 5 cents by mail. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

pries to their many friends. The wedding took place at 5:15 o'clock in the afternoon at Hill Forest, the beautiful old residence of Mr. Stark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Stark, at Aurora, Ind. The service was read by the Rev. Clyde Black of the Methodist church in Aurora in the presence of the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Stark left last night for Charleston and after a short southern trip they will be in Chicago by April 19, for he is scheduled to deliver a lecture before the Scribblers on that date.

Mrs. Stark is widely known socially and as an art critic, and Mr. Stark, who formerly was associated with the Metropolitan museum in New York and the Minneapolis museum, is a lecturer, specializing in Americana in art. He has lectured in Chicago many times, at the Arts club, the University of Chicago and before various other organizations.

N. U. Settlement Benefit Today to Be Gay Affair.

The post-Lenten season gets off to a gay start today with the bridge, fashion show, and tea the Evanston board of the Northwestern university settlement is to have this afternoon at the Evanston Country club. Two hundred tables will be set for bridge while more than 30 of the loveliest young women the board could muster will model spring fashions with an appeal for the silver haired matron as well as the debutante.

These models will be Miss Cornelia Fabian, Miss Marjorie Mills, Miss Barbara Beal, Miss Jane McIntosh, Miss Rachel Petit, Mrs. Clinton Merrick, Mrs. Horatio Rogers, Mrs. Arthur Rogers, Mrs. Horton Fall III., Mrs. John Marcy Scott, Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Mrs. Dennis Gent, and Mrs. George Schultz.

The need for the settlement to minister to the hundreds who are coming back to it as CWA jobs end is one of the pertinent factors in the board's efforts at this time to raise $1,500 by means of this benefit party.

Chicago Literary Club to Mark 70th Birthday.

All of those scholarly gentlemen who compose the membership of the Chicago Literary club are going to celebrate the 70th birthday of their group at a dinner this evening at the Chicago Woman's club. [A woman's club for a stag dinner!] Early beginnings will, of course, be the keynote of the affair, with John Cameron, the president, reading a paper written by the Rev. Robert Collier 50 years ago, shortly before his death.

There will be one of the club's founder members present to drink a toast to the past and the future. That is Franklin MacVeagh, who in 1884, just two years after his graduation from Yale, called a dozen of his friends together in the old brown stone mansion of Franklin Head on Banks street and started the club. John J. Glessner, Joseph Adams, and Frederick W. Gookin, who joined the club in its first year, will be others at the party tonight.

The Lake Shore League of Women Voters is expecting a capacity turnout at its round table luncheon at 12:30 this noon at the Arts club when young Kendall Lingle, the Bowman C. Lingles' son, is to make his debut as a public speaker. With Mrs. W. W. Ramsey and Frank J. Loesch, Mr. Lingle is going to discuss "The Importance of the Coming Primary."

New Directoire Mode Calls for Svelte Figures

Bulkiness at Waistline Ruins Contour.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

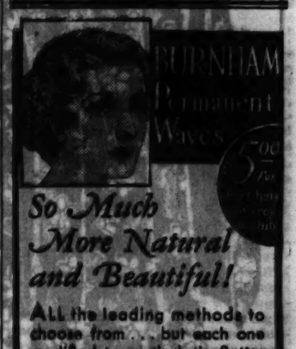
If that threatened Directoire silhouette takes on, it is going to mean a renewed attack on figures. You can't have any but a slim figure to wear it well, certainly no bulges from the under-bustline down.

It's a lovely style, that Directoire, and no end flattering to a svelte, girlish figure. Let's hope it does take on and, in the meantime, let's get busy and see if we can't qualify for it, anyway, before it has come and gone. But whether the Directoire interests you or not, there is the swimming suit season, not so far ahead now, for which to work.

I'm really quite excited about these new little reducing aids that women, who have not been doing exercises for a long time, may use so satisfactorily. They're handy little mechanisms that may be tucked away in your overnight bag, and taken along wherever you go. But what's more to use, they have a stretching value that adds to the good of any exercise. They're simply designed things, with handles, and stirrups into which to slip your toes, and a buckle attachment to hold them taut under a door or radiator foot, so that you can get a good long pull and stretch on the muscles. What we women require who need to watch our weight is some daily stretching, or the fat piles on before we know it. Many women can't be coerced into getting down and going to work without an aid of some kind.

Of course, if you are made of the stuff that does not require mechanical aid to exercise, you can do just as miraculous work on yourself without it.

Anyway, I'm just warning you that I've got the exercises for you if you have the desire to prove what they can do to get your silhouette into Directoire form or any other good, sleek, girlish shape.



ALL the leading methods to choose from . . . but each one modified to particularly flatter you . . . the style varied to become your head and facial contour. No relay of operators . . . individual attention by one skilled specialist, assuring you of more careful, more thorough work. Burnham permanents are noted for beauty and safety. Day or Evening appointments at this low price which includes shampoo and fingerwave. Phone NOW.

HAWKS ENTER CUP FINALS; WHIP MAROONS, 3-2

PIRATES BEAT CUBS, 9-8, ON GRACE'S HOMER IN 10TH

BUSH EASY FOR FOES; FAILS TO HOLD 8-4 LEAD

Bruins Blanked in Last 5 Innings.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., April 1.—The Cubs concluded their California training affairs today, but the conclusion wasn't such as to send them happily on their way. They were beaten by the Pittsburgh Pirate in ten innings when Earl Grace, once a Chicago athlete, boosted one of Guy Bush's pitches into the right field bleachers for a home run and a 9 to 8 victory.

The verdict brought on an even break in the spring series between the two National league rivals. It was the Cubs' seventh defeat in eighteen exhibitions.

Emmett Bids for a Job.

The battle started with Emmett Nelson, a right-hander borrowed as a prospect from the Los Angeles club, making his bid for major league recognition under the Cub banner. The young man was only fair. He yielded two runs in the first inning, and by the end of the fourth had been slapped for two more runs, both homers. Such happenings induced Manager Charley Grimm to shoot Bush into the struggle in the fifth, but this usually capable Mississippian was no puzzle to the Pirates. He was touched for eight hits, including Grace's blast with none out in the tenth.

The Cubs didn't put on any exceptional hitting attack and might have accomplished even less if Heinie Meine, one of the Pirate mainstays, hadn't encountered a mishap. He injured his arm swinging a bat in the second inning and later had to quit. This made room for Sy Blanton, who was thumped for six runs in the fifth, but the strikeout star of the Western league promptly settled down and kept the Cubs from scoring in the last five innings. Blanton permitted only two hits in these five sessions, and neither one went to Chuck Klein. The Tiger also was helpless in two attempts against Meine.

Galan Scores in First.

Meine's arm was a bit bad at the start and this led to a Cub run in the first inning. Galan, back on third after a day of rest because of a sore leg, was plunked in the ribs by one of Heine's pitches. Galan went to second on Billy Herman's infield out and home on Cuyler's single through short.

The Pirates' first inning, in which young Nelson almost tied a rope around his own neck, began with an out, but then took a marked turn for the worse. Lindstrom looped a single into left and P. Waner hit safely to right. Traynor's low fly fell in short right for a single and Lindstrom scored. He could have been held at third if Stainback had hustled his throw. Vaughan doubled to right, sending P. Waner across the plate. A pass to Suhr loaded the bases. Then Nelson fanned Lavagetto and nailed Grace on a pop to Galan.

Vaughan Hits Homer.

Because nobody was warmed up when his arm began to bother him in the third, Meine had to finish the inning. The Cubs took advantage of a cripple. Galan doubled over third and scored the tying run on a single by Cuyler. The tie didn't last, however. Vaughan broke it in the Pirates' half by sailing a homer into the bleacher in right. Lloyd Waner did the same thing in the fourth, putting the Pirates in front, 4 to 2.

Hartnett led an uprising that arranged everything to the satisfaction of the Chicagoans in the fifth. Nine men batted and six of them scored, but the net result would have been less if Suhr hadn't erred.

Gabby opened with a double to the top of the left field wall. Tate batted for Nelson and singled, scoring Warneke, who was running for Hartnett. Galan and W. Herman singled, Tate

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., April 1.—The White Sox said farewell to their Pasadena training camp today by accomplishing their first shutout of the exhibition season. Leslie Tietje and associates beat the Pasadena Merchants, 3 to 0.

All the run production was accomplished in a brief fourth inning flurry against Arch Campbell, former Indianapolis star right hander and currently a holdout on the roster of the Hollywood stars. Archie walked Appling, then Red Kress and Joe Chamberlin followed with homers to account for all of the runs.

Make Four Errors.

Among the seven hits the Sox effected was a single by Zeke Bonura in the eighth inning. Zeke had hit in every game of the exhibition season, but was quite annoyed in the first three times up today because of his inability to get the ball out of the infield.

The Sox were a bit erratic, no fewer than four errors having been registered against the lads, the total not including a misjudgment of a fly by Frenchy Bordagaray on the potential third out in the ninth inning, same giving Homer Summa credit for a double and leading to Tietje's only pass of the afternoon.

Tietje was impressive all the way, holding the semi-pros to five hits up until Bordagaray lost the aforementioned fly.

Cubs Seek Campbell.

It was said before the game that Campbell was pitching for a chance to join the Sox under an arrangement with the Stars. After the game, however, he revealed in a talk with Manager Lew Fonseca that the Cubs had tried to buy him and that President Lane of Hollywood had refused for fear he would wind up with the Los Angeles Angels. Campbell won 23 games for Hollywood last year.

The Sox will leave tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock for San Bernardino, the first stop on their 12 day trip back to Chicago. Absent on the tour will be Paul Gregory, who was shipped to Sacramento of the Pacific Coast league this morning.

On the eve of the camp break-up, Manager Fonseca expressed himself as pleased with the results of the training season, though he admitted disappointment because several rookies failed to show the class he had hoped for.

All in Shape.

The squad will leave with all hands in good physical condition and with the few lazy ones ready to admit that the time is near for them to play some baseball. Even those who have foresworn baseball during their pleasant sojourn in Pasadena and Los Angeles have been able to get on their feet frequently and should have no great difficulty in getting in playing shape during the impending 12 games with the Pittsburgh Pirates and the pair to be played with the Cubs April 14 and 15.

Cooper Leads Cavalier Open with 135 Card

Virginia Beach, Va., April 1.—(AP)—Harry Cooper, Chicago professional, shot a 64 for a new course record and the second round lead in the Cavalier open golf tournament. His 36 hole total was 135.

The slender professional made only one error as he covered this oceanside layout in 32—32—64, four under par and two shots better than the figure set a year ago by Tony Manero.

Cooper's fine round, after his opening 71 yesterday, gave him a two stroke lead over Paul Runyan and three over Ky Laffoon, who were tied for the first round top position, each with 69. Runyan, who won this tournament a year ago, turned in a card identical with par on every hole, while Laffoon, with several three putt greens, was one above par at 69.

Bill Mehlhorn, with a 69 to go with his first round 73, and Bobby Cruickshank, who had another 71, were together at 142.

Tommy Armour and Horton Smith were eight strokes back of the leader with 143, and Denny Shute, British open titleholder, was another shot removed.

The final 36 holes for the $1,600 in cash prizes will be played tomorrow, with the first three teeing off at 9 o'clock. Scores:

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

JOHNNY GOODMAN has been shooting 67s and 68s regularly the last month on his home course, Omaha Field club, in preparation for the Walker cup matches. . . . Omaha has another strong candidate for the national amateur title named Rodney Bliss, state champion. . . . He has defeated Goodman several times in eighteen hole match play. . . . Gil Berry, former Illinois football player, who has been drawing regular assignments in the Hollywood films, writes that he has forgotten all about playing football again "with the Chicago Cardinals or any one else." . . . Billy McCabe, one time sparring partner for Jack Dempsey, is getting his board and keep in the transient service bureau at Danville, Ill. . . . All profits of the Green Bay Packers football team go to the American Legion. . . . Deficits come out of the stockholders' pockets. . . .

Athletic officials at Wisconsin apparently are weak in mathematics. . . . Two weeks ago it was discovered Wisconsin swimmers had defeated Loyola instead of losing when points were rechecked several hours after the meet. . . . The following week an error in measuring a Badger's broad jumping mark gave Iowa freshmen a one point victory in a telegraphic meet, but it was too late to change the record. . . . Francis Schmidt, Ohio State's new football coach, is the most versatile gridiron instructor in the conference. . . . He has coached a girls' basketball team, taught esthetic dancing, conducted a community band, doubled on cornet, bass, French horn, and cello, taught school, given singing lessons, and coached football. . . . When he found his high school eleven in Arkansas wasting time evenings he organized them into a glee club. . . .

Pat Page Jr., son of the former Indiana and Chicago coach, is one of the leading back field candidates for the Oklahoma university football team. . . . Kampouris, second baseman of the Sacramento club of the Coast league, is said to be the only Greek player in organized baseball. . . . He is expected to be sold to a major league club before the season is concluded. . . . There is no truth in the rumor that the hit of the 1934 Century of Progress Exposition will be a one armed fan dancer. . . . Michigan, Minnesota and Northwestern ranked in that order in football receipts for 1933. . . . The same trio were leaders in 1932 except that Northwestern was first. . . . Total football receipts in the conferences exceeded a million dollars in 1933, a substantial increase over the previous season. . . .

Ted Payseur, assistant basketball coach at Northwestern, and Dr. Clarence Spears of Wisconsin claim to be the No. 1 golfer among Big Ten sport leaders, now that Sam Willaman has withdrawn from the league. . . . Horace Tenney, Northwestern, sophomore who recently won the world's outboard motor boat championship, has several rooms of cups and trophies in his parents' summer home at Eagle River, Wis. . . . Al Campion and Jimmy Crandall, guardians of the pass gate at Wrigley field, have returned from Hot Springs, Ark., where they got into condition for another strenuous season. . . . The relationship between Chicago and Notre Dame, renewed recently by Jess Harper and A. A. Stagg, has expanded until it now includes basketball, baseball, track, golf, and tennis. . . .

Art Krueger, Marquette's football center of the last three years who has been signed by the Chicago Bears, has yielded his ping-pong title to another Marquette student. . . . Oh well, George Halas must get a few bad breaks. . . . Charlie Grimm, of whom you have heard, thinks that outfielders play 15 to 20 feet deeper than in the days prior to the jack rabbit baseball introduced a dozen years ago. . . .

Ten years ago today—Johnny Weissmuller of the I. A. C. defeated Richard Howell of Northwestern in the feature race of the National A. A. U. senior swimming championships. . . . Walter Hagen won the North and South Open golf championship with a score of 282 at Pinehurst, N. C. . . . Young Stribling received $7,000 for beating McTigue. . . .

5 Net Stars Called for Cup Tryouts

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Five of the first ten ranking tennis players of the United States, all except one of them veterans of previous international campaigns, were asked today to report to Capt. R. Norris [Dick] Williams at the Merion Cricket club May 14 to try out for the 1934 Davis cup team.

They are: Frank X. Shields, America's No. 1 player; Wilmer Allison, Lester Stoefen, Sidney B. Wood Jr., and George M. Lott. Others may be called later.

All except Stoefen have been members of previous Davis cup squads, Lott being on every team except one since 1928. Allison also has played on several Davis cup teams, competing in both singles and doubles in 1932 and sharing the singles with Ellsworth Vines last year. Shields and Wood were the singles representatives in 1931.

Stoefen played at Wimbledon last year and now is considered the most improved player in the country. He was a semi-finalist both at Wimbledon and in the American nationals, and recently won the national indoor title.

The only real surprise in the list was the omission of the name of John Van Ryn, a doubles player on the last few Davis cup teams. It also had been thought that Frankie Parker, Milwaukee, Wis., youngster, who is ranked eighth nationally, and Cliff Sutter, a 1933 spare and fourth ranking American player, would be given trials.

These three and any others who stand out through the early tournament campaign may be called by Williams who is forming the first team he has headed since 1925.

The team will make the Cricket club its headquarters until it sails for England early in June to compete at Wimbledon. No trouble is expected in winning through the North American zone and defeating the only South American entrant, Brazil.

HALSTED ENTERS THIRD ROUND OF WESTERN TENNIS

Favorites Advance in Play at Armory.

Seeded players in the twelfth annual western indoor tennis championships survived the first round yesterday at the 108th Engineers armory, 34th street and Wentworth avenue.

Thane Halsted advanced to the third round by defeating Jim O'Leary, a fellow Chicagoan, in the opening round, 6-1, 6-3, and eliminating Ralph Wright, also of Chicago, 6-2, 6-3.

John McDiarmid of Fort Worth, Tex., sixteenth in national ranking and a student at the University of Chicago, won his first round match, defeating Milo Bubenicek of Chicago, 6-0, 6-0.

Butler Beats Miller.

One of the most interesting matches of the first round developed when Fred Butler of the University of Illinois went three sets to beat Elmer Miller of Chicago, 7-5, 6-3, 11-9.

Mike Barbu of Indiana Harbor, Ind., whipped Lester Plotkin of Chicago, 6-2, 15-13, in another outstanding match. Plotkin is only 15 years old, and was playing his first tournament contest. Jose Alonzo, former Davis cup star for Spain, who is now a resident of Chicago, eliminated Ed Hoelter of Chicago, 6-1, 6-3. He then met Dan Scigalski, also of Chicago, and won, 6-2, 6-3, to reach the third round.

Parkhill Advances.

Bill Parkhill, defending champion, had little difficulty in defeating Bob Schoenberg of Miami, Fla., 6-0, 6-4.

The women's singles and men's doubles will begin Friday night.

Thompson, Cook and McFadyen Score.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks earned the second chance of their career to play for the Stanley cup in the presence of 18,000 at the Chicago Stadium last night by defeating the Montreal Maroons, 3 to 2, in the second and concluding game of their semi-final series. The victory brought the Hawks the series by a total goal score of 6 to 2, and qualified them for the world's hocky championship for the first time since the 1930-'31 season.

The Chicagoans, having won the first game of the semi-finals at Montreal Wednesday night by a score of 3 to 0, entered last night's game with such a comfortable advantage that they appeared to regard it all as a lark. The 18,000 in attendance, comprising the largest crowd of the year, were in a mood to look upon it the same.

Maroons Make It a Fight.

The Maroons, who scoff at three goal margins, whether they obtain in the regulation season or the Stanley Cup series, had other ideas, however, and it is to them that the frantic 18,000 owe the pleasure of a good ball game. Even though they did lose, the big boys from Montreal were still exerting themselves to the utmost at the final whistle.

The Blackhawks, who have saved up their best hocky of the year for the playoffs, today will adjourn to Detroit, where they will open the championship series of three out of five games against the Red Wings tomorrow night. The two teams will renew the battle in Detroit Thursday night and will return to the Stadium Sunday night. The fourth game is scheduled for Tuesday, April 10 at the Stadium, and if a fifth is necessary, it will be played in Detroit.

The latecomers deprived themselves of the Blackhawks' first goal of the game and their fourth of the semi-final series. It was accomplished in 25 seconds. Young Mr. Kerr was not allowed time to test his territory more than once, and that on a hard shot off Mush March's stick, before Paul Thompson drove the puck home on a combination pass from March and Doc Romnes.

Gardiner Is Hurt.

The Maroons for the next five minutes appeared to be completely demoralised by this sudden achievement. Suddenly, however, they went to work with a vengeance. One of their assaults resulted in a 15 minute delay when Starr, leading a foray, wound up in the Hawk net and Gardiner came out of it, beating his glove upon the boards in obvious anguish. Time was called when five stitches were taken over Gardiner's right eye.

When play was resumed the Maroons unleashed another rush. Their exertions, with aid of a penalty to Jenkins, eventually resulted in their first goal of the series, Northcott scoring on a pass from Wentworth in 11 minutes and 27 seconds.

Donnie Fools 'Em.

The second period opened with a display of scientific hocky far removed from the pugnacious action of the first. There was a motion to revise the programs, in view of the fact that the Maroons insisted upon operating with a goalie, one defense man, and four forwards, so eager were they to embarrass Gardiner.

Their haste was such that the one defense man, Wentworth, was unable to intercept the onrush of the diligent McFadyen. It was one of those goals about which there was nary a doubt. Donnie snared the puck alone just beyond the blue line with only Wentworth barring his path to the goal. McFadyen did not scruple to dally with Wentworth, lining the puck off the latter's toes with such rapidity that Kerr had no warning. The deed was done in five minutes and 30 seconds, and Gottselig, for some inexplicable reason, was given an assist.

Cook Gets No. 6.

Even this calamity failed to daunt the Maroons, who kept pressing relentlessly but fruitlessly until the end of the period.

The Maroons' vigilance was reward-

Scoring games of 979, 978, and 1,029, Pabst Blue Ribbons of Chicago took fifth place with a total of 2,986. Idle Hour Recreations rolled into eighth place with a 2,931 count, and P. L. Websters, another Chicago team, took thirteenth place with a 2,907.

The Pabst team had only five errors and encountered fifteen splits in the three games. Dominick Devito topped the squad with 653. Adolph Carlson totaled 625, Leo Faetz 575, and George Morrison 547.

A poor start prevented the Idle Hour team from nabbing a high berth. The Chicagoans opened with 933 and increased their speed to 1,008 and 990. Harry Krebethke topped the squad with 641, while Roy Tagney totaled 631.

Harry Moll of Hammond climbed to sixth place in the singles with games of 258, 216, 217, for a 691 total, which assures him of a good slice of the $57,000 prize melon.

Carl Meyers, also of Hammond, went into a tie for tenth place in the singles with 682.

Place in All Events.

Adam Plunge and Milo Wiesner rolled into ninth and tenth places in the all-events division. Plunge scored only 586 in the team event but came back with 622 and 677 in the doubles and singles for 1,885. Wiesner, former Illinois state champion, has a series of 660, 596, 622, for a 1,878 total.

Fred Pfeffer, Omaha, went into fourth place in the singles division with a total of 695.

BOWIE OPENS TODAY WITH 2 FEATURE RACES

Bowie, Md., April 1.—(AP)—Maryland's spring racing season opens here tomorrow, with two features on the first day's card—the $2,000 added Inaugural Handicap and the Norma Shearer Trophy Purse.

Ten of the fourteen entries for the Inaugural, a five and a half furlong sprint for 3 year olds and up, have been purse winners in the south during the winter, and several of them set new records at Hialeah and Tropical Park tracks.

Thoroughbreds scheduled to make their first start of the year in the race are Eschelon, Star Porter, Acautaw, and Lough Port.

Clotho, Curacao Top Favorites.

C. V. Whitney's Clotho, which came to the front late in the Florida season to do the Inaugural distance in 1:04⅘ and the six furlongs in 1:10, and Greentree stable's Curacao, which has had a long rest since racing at Hialeah, top the favorites.

Maryland hopes are pinned on Sylvester W. Labrot's Springsteel, carrying top weight of 130 pounds. Among other ranking horses are Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory, which has made 1:10 2-5 for the three-quarters, and George W. Ogle's Miney Myerson, timed at 1:10 1-5 for the distance.

Silver Trophy Offered.

A silver cup will be given the winner of the Shearer trophy race, along with the $800 purse. Seven 3 year olds and up are entered in the six furlong dash.

The seven race card will open with a four furlong event for maiden 2 year old colts and geldings.

GIANTS' TRIPLE PLAY HELPS BEAT INDIANS, 2 TO 0

Misjudged Fly Accounts for New York Runs.

New Orleans, La., April 1.—(AP)—The New York Giants defeated the Cleveland Indians, 2 to 0, before the season's largest exhibition game crowd, 5,000 fans, today. Fred Fitzsimmons and Joe Bowman pitched for the world champions, who turned in a fielding exhibition which included a triple play.

With two on base in the seventh, Trosky grounded out to Terry, who threw home to stop Vosmik. During the rundown Hale came into third base and was tagged out by Jackson, who later got Vosmik on the base line.

Both Giant runs came in the second when Vosmik misjudged Johnny Verger' long fly and it fell for a triple, scoring Terry and Jackson, who had singled. Score:

BROWNS BEAT BUFFALO, 6 TO 5.

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 1.—(AP)—A three run rally in the ninth inning today permitted the St. Louis Browns to win, 6 to 5, from the Buffalo Bisons, champions of the International league.

The Bisons appeared to have the game won going into the ninth. Today's victory made it three straight for the Browns in the current series. The teams meet again tomorrow at Fort Lauderdale. Score:

TIGERS, 10; NEWARK, 6.

Clearwater, Fla., April 1.—(AP)—Minus the services and leadership of Manager Mickey Cochrane, the Detroit Tigers defeated the Newark Bears, 10 to 6, today. Home runs were made by Goslin and Owen.

Collier and Hogsett held Newark scoreless until the seventh inning but yielded 11 hits. The Tigers made 15. Goslin and Owen, with their heavy hitting, were the star performers. They accounted for five Tiger runs. Detroit will play Cincinnati on Monday. Score:

Newark [Intl.]	000	000	420— 6	11	3

The Yanks tied in the next inning on singles by Rolfe and Ruth, Gehrig's fly, and Chapman's triple. They went ahead in the fourth when Allen walked, Rolfe doubled, and Byrd singled. Pirates Beat Cubs on Homer in Tenth, 9-8 scoring. A wild pitch moved Galan over the plate. Cuyler rolled to Blanton, but was safe at first when Suhr dropped the throw. Klein and Stainback struck out. Then Camilli picked up three runs in one bunch by whacking a homer over the right field bricks. That made it 8 to 4 in the Cubs' behalf.

Pirates Score Three.

As soon as Bush appeared in the fifth the Pirates busied themselves on the job of whittling down the Cubs' four run lead. P. Waner started it with a single to center and Traynor hit safely to the same sector. Vaughan bounced into a forceout of Traynor at second. Suhr walked, filling the bases. Lavagatto singled to left, scoring P. Waner and Vaughan. Grace rolled a slow grounder toward third and beat Galan's throw for a hit, reloading the bases. Suhr scored the last run of the inning on Blanton's infield out.

A few difficulties arose in Bush's path in the seventh and the Pirates got a run to tie the score at 8 to 8. Young, who took Vaughan's place, beat out a bounder to Jurges. Young took third on Suhr's single past Camilli. Lavagetto flied to Stainback. Young scoring, and when the throw-in went wild, Suhr took third. Bush, however, set down the next two batters. There wasn't much excitement then until Grace broke up the game with his homer in the tenth.

On Way to San Antonio.

The Cubs scooted from the park direct to the depot to catch their train for San Antonio, Tex. They'll arrive there Tuesday afternoon and play the Texas league team Wednesday and Thursday. Then they'll head for Chicago to battle the Washington Senators next Saturday and Sunday.

YACHT VAMARIE 12 MILES AHEAD IN HAVANA RACE

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 1.—(AP)—With the 71 foot ketch Vamarie about 12 miles in the lead, the fleet of sailing yachts running in the St. Petersburg-Havana race was reported becalmed tonight from 30 to 50 miles north of the dry Tortugas.

The failing winds came at a time when the Vamarie, owned by Vadim Makaroff, of Oyster Bay, L. I., appeared to stand a good chance of bettering the record of 42 hours for the run made in 1930 by the Haligonian, 45 foot schooner.

In second place, wireless advices from the coast guard vessel Tuscarora said, was the 113 foot schooner Azara. The Haligonian was third.

Reports from the Yaton, another coast guard boat that joined the convoy to check up on the stragglers, said the Wilma Mae, 32 foot ketch owned by Henry Phillips of Detroit, was trailing the fleet, 50 miles behind the leader.

The Vamarie, if all goes well, was expected to enter Havana harbor early tomorrow morning.

Mickey Cochrane Goes to Hospital for Several Days

Lakeland, Fla., April 1.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, entered Morrell Memorial hospital here today to spend several days under observation for recurring pains in his right side, which he fears may necessitate an operation for appendicitis.

After being stricken at Orlando, Fla., Saturday, Cochrane returned to the Tiger training camp here. He prepared to accompany the team to Clearwater for the game with Newark today. While lunching in Clearwater, however, sharp pains returned in his right side, and he went back to Lakeland and placed himself in the hands of physicians.

After making a preliminary examination doctors said there was nothing seriously wrong with the Tiger manager, but would make no final diagnosis until after the completion of laboratory tests.

Physicians in Orlando Saturday disagreed on his ailment, some believing it was a strained muscle, while another physician diagnosed the ailment as appendicitis colic.

If Cochrane is forced to undergo an operation he will be lost to the Tigers for eight weeks, physicians said. His loss would be keenly felt, for he has been the chief punch in the club with his batting, catching, and field leadership.

Hawks Enter Cup Finals; Beat Maroons

ed within two minutes of the last period when they sent down everybody but Kerr to worry Gardiner. Northcott scored the goal. The time was 1:40.

The game then ceased to be a Stanley cup contest, both teams going at it as though it were a 2 to 2 game to be won only by desperate measures.

The Thompson-Romnes-March and Couture-Gottselig-McFadyen lines, having contributed their share of the Hawks' goals, took a recess, while Cook, Trudel, and Kendal came on. Cook did not require any assistance to make the sixth Chicago goal of the series, sweeping in on Kerr with such haste that the latter was not aware the puck had escaped him until Tommy was back in center ice.

11,000 See Stix Beat Pawtucket, 4-2, in Overtime

St. Louis, Mo., April 1.—(AP)—Two goals in the second overtime period gave the Stix, Bear & Fuller eleven a 4 to 2 victory over the Pawtuckey Rangers of Rhode Island, before 11,000, in the first challenge cup soccer game of the national series today.

A close game, featured by the defensive play of the Rangers, developed into almost a rout in the second extra period. Werner Nilsen headed the goal that gave Stix a 3 to 2 advantage, and Eddie Flavin scored the final goal with a short kick in front of the net.

Five minutes after the start of the game, Veteran Alex McNab scored for St. Louis. The Rangers tied the score when Watson used his hands in the penalty zone and McAuley booted his kick to tie the score.

With seemingly little effort St. Louis worked the ball close to the side of the goal in the first overtime period and from a pass by Nilsen, Gonsalves scored to gain a 2 to 1 lead. A minute remained in the period, when McIntyre, Ranger center forward, tied the score with an easy shot from the side.

Grosbeaks Are Seen in Chicagoland

BY BOB BECKER.

The north shore along Lake Michigan entertained a few of our most aristocratic bird members recently. For the second time this spring we have been notified of the presence of evening grosbeaks, which are rare visitors to Chicagoland.

Walter Cannon, Lake Forest, Ill., reports grosbeaks at his feeding station. He writes: "While I am playing host to the birds this morning I want to report to you that I had some unusual visitors here at my feeding station. I can't remember that I previously had the good luck to number the evening grosbeak as one of my guests, but that thrill came this morning. I am hoping they will return again this week. I have been putting out chick feed, but this morning I cracked about a peck of walnuts, and how the juncos, grosbeaks, and song sparrows went for them!

Wants Grosbeak Feathers.

"How I would like to have some feathers from one of those evening grosbeaks. They would make beautiful flies. By the way, I have found a great many badgers in southern De Kalb county, and I believe they are killing the woodchucks. One season [to show how numerous the chucks were] I shot more than 700. Now it would be difficult to see a dozen in a day's hunting. I have been surprised at the number of gray and red foxes in that county."

Three or four years ago we had word about the abundance of badgers in De Kalb county. This county is due west of Aurora and Elgin. The towns of Sycamore and De Kalb are within its boundaries. From information furnished us there isn't any doubt that the badger has been able to hold his own and even increase in numbers.

We have been more interested in records of badgers closer to Chicago. Last year one was killed a short distance from our home, north of Chicago. Barrington undoubtedly has a few badgers left. The rolling, hilly country west of Barrington, with acres of fields, meadows, and woods not thickly populated, should furnish the badger plenty of chances to find food and ideal spots for burrows.

They Make the Dirt Fly.

This animal is such a digger that it can go into the earth with great speed if it is after ground squirrels or woodchucks. Badgers have powerful legs, and how they make the dirt fly when they start digging!

JEAN BAUER WINS GOLF TITLE FROM MARION MILEY

Augusta, Ga., April 1.—(AP)—Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., played a mixture of erratic and sensational golf to win the Augusta woman's invitation golf tournament from Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., today.

The 21 year old golfer had to play her best to defeat Miss Miley, the medalist. Miss Bauer took the lead early in the match, but long drives and accurate putting enabled Miss Miley to even the match twice.

A short approach to within a few feet of the cup on several occasions was the winner's chief shot. The two finalists are concluding their first venture into tournament golf this season.

ST. CYR DEFEATS ENGLEWOOD TO WIN K. OF C. TITLE

Gruenig Leads Scorers in 47 to 26 Rout.

St. Cyr of the west division won the championship of The Knights of Columbus Basketball league for the second consecutive year by defeating Englewood, 47 to 26, at the 132d Regiment armory. St. Cyr jumped into the lead in the first few seconds and kept piling up points until near the end.

The west division also took third honors, Tonti defeating Quigley, 23 to 15. In the consolation final, Hughes staged a fast finish and beat Setters, 28 to 23.

St. Cyr Starts Fast.

St. Cyr's easy victory over Englewood, south division champion, was unexpected. The latter had shown plenty of power in winning its way to the final round. The champions, however, started the game with a burst of speed which swept Englewood off its feet.

Midway in the first half, St. Cyr had increased its margin to 21 to 6, the guarding of Gruenig, Cannizzo, and Kraus stopping most of Englewood's attempts to shoot. The score was 26 to 14 at the half. At the start of the second period Frank and Benesch caged long shots to continue the rout.

Tonti Rallies to Win.

Tonti's defense was responsible for victory over Quigley. The latter led, 11 to 8, at the half, and added another basket in the second period. Then Tonti held the team scoreless for the next 17 minutes.

CHICAGO SLOBODA LOSES CUP FINAL TO PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 1.—[Special.]—Heidelberg defeated the Chicago Sloboda soccer team here today in the western regional final of the national amateur cup competition, 3 to 0. Sloboda offered little competition for the Heidelberg kickers, getting few shots at the net. These were wide or blocked off by the victors, who came to life when their goal was threatened.

Heidelberg scored a goal in the first half. Dolinar crossed to Duke Stenzel, who scored the first point after 22 minutes of play. In the second half Stan Urbanic scored on a pass from Stenzel. This was followed by a penalty kick when Sloan fouled and Steve Kuten made good his shot. Pennycook, Sloboda goalie, had a busy afternoon and several of his saves were sensational. Sloan also played well for the visiting team.

JOSEPH TURGON OF POLICE FAME IS DEAD AT 99

Joseph Turgon, a retired city policeman, died yesterday at the age of 99 in his apartment at 2235 East 93d street, which he shared with George Bougie, 88 years old.

Turgon and Bougie came here in 1870 from Quebec, Canada, where they were born and raised together. Nine years ago Bougie's wife died and Joe gave up his bachelor quarters to be with his old friend again. "French Joe," as Turgon was known, retired from the police force 20 years ago, but leading citizens of the city will recollect his patrolling the district around St. Patrick's parochial school at East 95th street and Commercial avenue. Police Commissioner James P. Allman attended St. Patrick's church as a boy. Yesterday, the commissioner said he remembered Joe smacking him smartly whenever he lingered on the old Pennsylvania and Lakeshore railroad tracks nearby.

When the little Allman boy grew up he went to work as a policeman. The passing of years found him working side by side with Joe as a young patrolman. An honorary police detail has been ordered by Commissioner Allman to attend the rites Wednesday for Turgon in St. Patrick's church. Burial will be in the Bougie family lot at Mount Olivet cemetery.

Murphy of Champaign, Ill., and two daughters, Mrs. Laura A. Crisp, and Mrs. Tess D. Conklyn of New York City. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning from the residence to St. Laurence church. SLOAN VISIONS THREAT IN NRA LABOR RULES

Industrial Strife Is Sure, He Says.

BY HAL FOUST.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, in an annual statement mailed to stockholders today, diverted from a routine report of the corporation's business and finances to tell of world-wide economic improvements and to describe the national recovery act and the rising tide of automobile taxes as threats against America's receiving a prompt and maximum benefit from this economic improvement.

The statement on the national recovery act, dealing with the mooted labor provisions of section 7-A, voiced the dissatisfaction of the motor industry with the compromise dictated by President Roosevelt in the manufacturers' conflict with the American Federation of Labor. The strike call of two weeks ago against America's largest and most prosperous industry was countermanded as a result of the President's pleas and threats, but the danger of serious strife has not been averted, in the opinion of Mr. Sloan.

Must Clarify Labor Provision.

"Whatever evolution may bring about with respect to the national recovery act," said Mr. Sloan, "one thing is certain—its labor provisions in section 7-A must be clarified or there is the certainty of industrial strife, the equal of which this country has not yet seen, and just at the time when there is foundation for hope of recovery from the depression.

"Every fair minded person should be in favor, from a social and economic standpoint, of a minimum wage, of the elimination of child labor, and of a gradual shortening of the hours of labor. Unfortunately, as a result of an interpretation which attempts to carry the weight of an edict of law, appears to be looming the specter of the greatest monopoly that ever existed in any country in the world—the closed shop."

Dealing with another aspect of the national recovery act, the General Motors executive wrote:

"If industrial cooperation within any industry is to be permitted, reducing in whole or in part the competitive influence, ultimately affecting the price to the consumer, it is highly essential that the arrangement, whatever form it may take, should be predicated upon the most efficient set of circumstances, even if it means, through evolution, the elimination of the less efficient.

Put Premium on Inefficiency.

"Otherwise we put a premium on inefficiency, we spread mediocrity, and we raise the price to the consumer, with the result that there is less consumption of the products of the industry and hence increased unemployment."

Mr. Sloan, looking at the economic picture of the world as a whole, does not believe the Washington brain trust can make or break American industry. He believes conditions in the United States will improve and that the governmental influences can merely advance or retard this improvement.

"The question naturally arises as to the permanency of the improvement herein recorded," he said, "especially having in mind the various unusual influences which are being injected into the economic picture in this country through the instrumentality of government.

"In considering this question, it is important to note that beginning as early as the summer of 1932 there appeared indications of improvement throughout the world, which improvement has been well augmented during the intervening time. It seems reasonable to suppose that the worst of the world depression passed some time ago and that, unless upset by some unusual circumstances, improvement will continue.

General Trend Not Affected.

"The rate of improvement may be accelerated or retarded by injecting into the picture abnormal influences, but the general trend will not be affected for the reason that an industrial recovery, like an industrial depression, is, in a practical sense of the word, an irresistible force. It seems reasonable, therefore, to expect a still further betterment of conditions."

His comments on highway taxation are particularly significant in Illinois at this time since bills are pending in Springfield to divert gasoline tax revenue to pay teachers' salaries and there are other bills to increase the excises and regulations against trucks. He quoted from the conclusions of the national transportation committee as follows:

"Automotive transportation is an advance in the march of progress—it is here to stay. We can not invent restrictions for the benefit of the rail-

Boost Steel Orders Prior to Price Hike

Assuming that higher costs entail higher prices, steel consumers last week increased their commitments for the second quarter following wage boosts of 10 per cent in the iron and steel industry, reports the magazine Steel.

Since steel makers are strong for immediate action further revisions in prices may be announced this week. Illinois Steel company announced its intention to hike prices Saturday. It is understood that advances from $1 to $4 a ton are scheduled for semi-finished steels, $2 for plates, shapes, and bars, and $3 to $5 for sheets.

The code provides for 10 days notice ahead of such revisions. Thus producers, if they do not wish an extraordinary increase in business at the lower prices in the interim, could avoid this consequence only by withdrawing from the market during the period.

Operations Held at 49 Per Cent.

Steelworks operations held at 49 per cent of capacity last week. The rate may rise this week owing to the prospect of higher prices. Production at Chicago also remained unchanged at 48½ per cent. According to Steel, local rail mills have enough rail tonnage for two months capacity operations.

Operations increased 3 points to 36 per cent at Pittsburgh, and are likely to increase again this week. In eastern Pennsylvania likewise the rate rose 1½ points to 34½ per cent. It was maintained steady at 100 in Detroit, 52 in Birmingham and Buffalo. Declines of 10 to 72 and 2 to 54 occurred at Cleveland and Youngstown, respectively.

Temporary settlement of the labor issue in the automotive industry had as a sequel an expansion in output, which for the first time this year ran ahead of current retail demand. According to Steel, two-thirds of the cars now being made are for delivery to actual buyers and one-third toward building up stocks for May and June.

Rail Orders Support Activity.

Orders for rails and equipment are strongly supporting the steel industry. Seventy-nine thousand tons of rails are pending for early award. Since the compromise price of rails was reached last November, actual orders have totaled about 500,000 tons, out of 844,525 held in prospect.

Builders are ordering material for freight cars recently bought by the Van Sweringen and other lines. New inquiries include 1,000 steel box cars for the Seaboard Air Line, 500 for Chicago Great Western and 100 for Savannah and Atlanta.

Last week's structural shape awards at 10,538 tons, were below average. Shipments of pig iron last month were 40 per cent higher than in February, and those in April may exceed the volume of March. Scrap is stronger at Pittsburgh, but 25 to 50 cents a ton lower in Chicago. Steel's scrap composite has declined 16 cents to $12.17. The other composites are unchanged.

BUSINESS CHIEFS TO OPEN FOREIGN POLICY INQUIRY

Sixteen men, all well known in the industrial, financial, and economic world, will speak today at the opening session of the Commission of Inquiry on National Policy in International Economic Relations at the Palmer House.

Among the principal speakers will be Walter Lichtenstein, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, who will talk on tariff problems and the problems of foreign investments. Among the other speakers will be James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association; George Meyercord, head of the Meyercord company; Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade; Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Silas H. Strawn, lawyer and chairman of the executive committee of Montgomery Ward & Co.

The commission, recently appointed by the social science research council, and financed by the Rockefeller foundation, is making a study on international economic trends with a view to increasing America's foreign trade. It has President Roosevelt's approval. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, is chairman of the commission.

MANY OPENINGS FOR U. S. TRADE ABROAD FOUND

Tribune Presents a Survey of Field.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Washington, D. C., April 1.—[Special.]—Trade opportunities abroad for American manufacturers, as obtained by the Washington bureau of THE TRIBUNE from reports to the department of commerce, are presented herewith, in connection with THE TRIBUNE'S campaign to stimulate recovery by reviving foreign commerce.

Many economists still declare that America's hope for a real and permanent recovery from the depression lies not in artificial schemes such as the NRA and the AAA and billions of tax moneys spent for public works and the like, but in a quick and greatly enlarged trade with the nations of the world.

The New Dealers have lagged in this aim, having only now come to seek for the President a tariff power which he hopes to wield in negotiating reciprocal trade agreements. However, surveys of opportunities reveal that even under existing tariffs and agreements many American manufacturers and shippers have chances to increase their business abroad.

Here Are Principal Fields.

Below are given some of the principal opportunities gleaned by THE TRIBUNE'S correspondents in Washington in their search through many of the commerce department's reports from its agents in foreign lands.

Cuba, land of rum, is in the market for cheap American yellow pine and spruce lumber with which to make boxes for shipping liquors. Austria has stolen some of this market in the last year by offering a lower price than some American shippers.

Machinery, especially farm tractors, have been in good demand in Italy. The low rate of American exchange in Italy has opened opportunities for many other products which heretofore the Italians have received from Germany and France.

From Shanghai comes a demand for woolen clothing now becoming increasingly popular in China, where natives are coming to use also hand knitted articles such as scarfs, shawls, gloves, berets, pullovers, jackets, and children's knitted suits.

Improvement in the German textile industry has opened an active demand for textile machinery, which is reported to be twice as large as in previous years.

Needs Furniture Woods.

Manchester, England, is in the market for more American furniture woods, now that the dollar has depreciated. Poland, still on the gold standard, has been among America's chief competitors in this field.

Improved economic conditions in South Africa has opened a demand for more American automobiles there, according to reports from Johannesburg. In past years the United States supplied 80 to 85 per cent of the cars used in South Africa, a ratio which dropped to 65 per cent in 1933, but is now on the increase.

Despite new government restrictions in exchange in Uruguay, the prospects for sales of American automobiles in that country are held much brighter. The market for motor trucks is held better because of lesser duties. Uruguayans have indicated preferences for American makes.

Egypt and Turkey both report favoritism toward American make cars, although in Egypt Great Britain has captured a major share of the passenger car market. Although 90 per cent of the automobiles used in Turkey are of American make, only 50 per cent of the automobile tires used in that country originate in the United States.

Tire Market in Sweden.

American tire manufacturers are also losing ground in Sweden, the American share having dropped from 70 per cent in 1930 to about 50 per cent last year.

France has removed its import restriction on tires and tubes.

The United Kingdom is usurping the leading position of the United States in supplying Cuba's paints and varnishes. This is held due to the fact that for 25 years a British make of zinc paste paint has found great favor with Cuban house painters.

The Czechoslovakia government has freed 123 items from foreign exchange permit requirements, including lard, canned fish in oil, vulcan fiber, tires, carbon black, and certain chemicals.

Other items sought in various cities and countries abroad are as follows:

Aircraft. The Hague, Netherlands—Airplane instruments and supplies and military airport and military airport equipment. Shanghai, China—Nickel-steel aircraft turnbuckles and bolts and nuts, and chrome molybdenum tubing.

Chemicals. Warsaw, Poland—Neon gas.

Electrical appliances. Oslo, Norway—Filaments for incandescant lamps of Cash in Closed Banks.

At the close of the year the company had on deposit in closed banks $569,803, which was carried in the balance sheet as "deferred assets." The funded debt in the hands of the public decreased $1,427,000. The note for $1,000,000 dated Dec. 22, 1932, given to the Railroad Credit Corporation, was reduced by $71,850.

The pamphlet report of the Norfolk and Western Railway company for 1933 shows as of Dec. 31 current assets of $20,830,229 and current liabilities of $6,587,588, compared with $14,777,704 and $3,706,292, respectively, at the close of 1932. Cash amounted to $11,314,581, against $7,279,324. Profit and loss balance increased from $151,023,717 at the beginning of 1933 to $155,024,130 at the close of the year.

Income Shows Gain.

The income account shows that revenue from freight amounted to $65,628,307 against $58,851,539 in 1932, an increase of $6,776,767, while revenue from passenger traffic was $1,475,235, compared with $1,675,662. The balance available for common stock was $21,381,448, or $15.20 a share on the 1,406,453 shares of $100 par value outstanding. For 1932 the company reported $15,892,226 available for the common stock, or $11.30 a share.

ALUMINUM CO. REPORTS PROFIT; HAD LOSS IN 1932

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 1.—(AP)—The Aluminum Company of America had a net income of $1,464,000 for 1933, compared with a net loss of $2,172,000 in 1932, Chairman Arthur V. Davis reported today to stockholders of the $234,000,000 concern.

Sales last year were approximately 25 per cent greater than in the preceding twelve months and the present outlook for sales in 1934 "is encouraging," the annual report stated.

It predicts several important developments, notably the construction of an all-aluminum train and installation of an all-aluminum floor system in "an important street railway and highway bridge," will widen the company's market.

A 37½ cents a share dividend on the $146,825,000 outstanding preferred stock, one-fourth the regular cumulative rate, was declared for April 10. This rate has been continued since the second quarter of 1932.

CHICAGO EASTER TRADE BEST IN THREE YEARS DESPITE HIGHER PRICES

Chicago business enjoyed the best Easter week in three years, the Chicago Association of Commerce reports. Retail turnover of department stores and specialty shops exceeded expectations. That prices were higher seemed to have little effect on purchases.

Conditions in wholesaling, though somewhat spotty, were almost as bright as those in retailing. In some areas where curtailment of Civil Works administration employment is showing its effects slight recessions occurred. On the other hand, demand from industrial centers where more men are reported on the job showed improvement last week.

Local industrial employment recorded scattered gains last week, according to the association. One large company is reported to be adding heavily to its clerical force for an inventory investigation.

Automobiles, particularly in the lower and middle priced ranges, are still in demand.

500,000 MINERS WILL CELEBRATE SEVEN HOUR DAY

Washington, D. C., April 1.—(AP)—On a holiday that for 36 years had commemorated the beginning of the eight hour day in the bituminous coal industry, more than half a million miners will celebrate tomorrow the inauguration of a seven hour working day. The holiday is known as "Mitchell day," in honor of the first president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Late Saturday Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, changed its character by approving an amendment to the bituminous coal code establishing the seven hour day in the entire industry and raising the wage scale. His order is subject to modification if justified at a public hearing set for April 9.

At the recommendation of the powerful Appalachian region coal operators, Johnson acted to meet the expiration last midnight of the code provisions fixing hours and wages. These operators two days before had negotiated a contract with the United Mine Workers providing for a 35 hour week and a basic daily wage of $5 for the 350,000 miners in their area.

DRESSING FIRM MAY CUT WORK DAY TO 6 HOURS

Washington, D. C., April 1.—(AP)—Johnson & Johnson, manufacturers of surgical dressings, announced tonight that it would seek authority from the National Recovery administration tomorrow to reduce its daily working schedule from eight to six hours, with no reduction in pay.

The company estimated that more than 1,200 new jobs would be created.

Russell E. Watson of New Brunswick, N. J., vice president, said: "We will be able to pay the same wage for six hours as we now pay for eight by virtue of the reduced overhead resulting from the operation full time of costly machinery and equipment which now undergoes a period of forced idleness due to the machinery limitation provision of the cotton textile code."

Gold Mining Firm's Assets Increase 98%

The International Mining company, which has 62 per cent of its assets in stocks of gold mining companies, yesterday reported net assets in 1933 increased over 98 per cent. At the end of the year net assets stood at $6,685,888, against $3,371,825 a year earlier.

The asset value of the 406,000 shares of stock in the hands of the public was $16.71 a share Dec. 31, against $7.72 at the close of 1932. Among the stockholders of the company are Lehman Brothers, New York banking firm; Percy A. Rockefeller, New York, and W. Blair Baggaley, Chicago. Messrs. Rockefeller and Baggaley are directors of the company.

Operations Result in Loss.

The company actually operated at a loss, but this was overshadowed by the big increase in assets. Loss for the year was $532,165, most of which represented loss taken on investments made prior to 1933. On stocks purchased and sold during the year the company made a profit of $337,940. In 1932 the firm had shown a loss of $732,710.

H. W. Chadbourne, president, told stockholders that possibilities of capital appreciation and not current earnings governed management policies last year. The company paid a dividend of 7½ cents a share in May last year, and similar disbursements three and six months before that. Those payments were made from capital surplus.

Earnings to Determine Dividends.

"It is not intended that such further distributions will be made until they can be made from earnings," Mr. Chadbourne said. "Your corporation's large investment in the development and equipments of Buloio Gold Dredging, Ltd., and Place Development, Ltd., are commencing to bear fruit, initial dividends having been paid by these companies in December, 1933. The increasing return to be expected from these sources, together with increased dividends from other investments, should hasten the time when dividends on the stock may be declared."

The company was organized in 1929 for prospecting and mining purposes. Its business has consisted largely in investing in gold mining and gold-copper mining properties.

ASSOCIATED DRY GOODS REPORTS $202,154 PROFIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 1.—The Associated Dry Goods corporation reports for the fiscal year ended on Jan. 31 a consolidated net income of $202,154, after expenses, depreciation, taxes and other charges. This was equal to $1.50 a share on the 134,364 shares of first preferred stock of $100 par value outstanding. For the preceding fiscal year the company reported a net loss of $1,939,914. Total net sales were $44,619,513.

The balance sheet as of Jan. 31 shows current assets of $20,989,554 and current liabilities of $2,387,295, compared with $20,503,306 and $2,118,205, respectively, at the end of the preceding fiscal year. Cash amounted to $5,351,720, against $7,983,131, while United States government and New York state short term notes amounted to $5,695,183, against $2,906,414. Inventories less reserve amounted to $4,915,860, against $4,731,282.

OUTLET PROFITS ALMOST DOUBLED BY 1933 BUSINESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 1.—For the fiscal year ended on Jan. 31 the Outlet company reports a net profit after all expenses, including provision for federal income taxes, of $514,900, which compares with a net profit of $273,960 in the preceding year. After dividends on the first and second preferred stocks amounting to $83,565, the net income available for common stock was equivalent to $4.34 a share, against $1.76 the year before.

"Sales volume for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1934, was lower than the previous year but the percentage of decrease was relatively small," Joseph Samuels, president, said.

Current assets as of Jan. 31 amounted to $2,894,437, and current liabilities to $358,714; cash of $378,449 alone exceeded all current liabilities. The net working capital amounted to $2,535,722.

WALL ST. AGAIN EYES INFLATION WITH INTEREST

Traders Looking for Dollar Cut.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 1.—Inflation psychology, resurrected by the action of congress in overriding the President's veto on the veterans' benefits, rules stock market sentiment once more, overshadowing for the time being at least, such bearish factors as exchange regulation, labor troubles and the threat to corporation profits carried by the higher wage movement.

The street looks for another cut in the gold value of the dollar at an early date. Many believe devaluation will go the full 50 per cent allowable under the New Deal monetary gauge. Further guarantees of inflation in one form or another are seen in the growing silver remonetization clamor in congress, the tremendous government expenditures set for this year amounting to ten billions or so, the government's export credit banks, the bill providing for capital loans to business by the federal reserve banks and other "credit expanding" measures inaugurated in promotion of the recovery program.

A Number of Worries.

The trend of affairs has been evident to long range observers for some time of course, but there have been developments aplenty to restrain any enthusiasm for bull play that it might ordinarily have inspired. Heading the "worry" list naturally enough has been the stock exchange regulation bill. The President's demand late Monday afternoon for a control act "with teeth in it" caused a sharp break in prices Tuesday and more than offset the momentary advantage gained by the market on the settlement of the threatened motor industry strike.

Gold Shares Gain.

Then business news has not been as good as it was recently, steel production tapering off and carloadings suffering a decline. The effect has been to hold the market in something of a deadlock for the better part of March.

Prices began to perk up last Wednesday, with the gold and silver stocks, the group in line to benefit first from inflation, in the van.

STEEL MAN HITS WORKING OF CODE IN CHICAGO AREA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 1.—New disclosures of how the NRA steel code, which has already been criticized by the federal trade commission for promoting a monopoly, is working hardships on small fabricators, especially in the Chicago area, came to light today.

Partly because Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and the NRA staff have failed to complete a code for steel fabricators, steel mills with their own fabricating plants are slowly squeezing independent fabricators out of business, according to R. D. Wood, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Structural Steel company of Chicago. He said the fabricators have been working night and day to get a code. Mr. Wood also points out that because of the steel mills' policy of quoting prices for steel on the basis of final delivery points, fabricators in Detroit, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, and other points can actually deliver steel shapes more cheaply in Chicago than Chicago fabricators themselves.

"The steel mills who own fabricating plants are in a position to make fabricating prices, which include their rolled steel, which cannot be met by independent fabricators because the mill fabricator has a profit on his rolled steel which helps him to cut his price on the fabricated product," Mr. Wood said. "This applies not only to the structural steel, but plate work, and all sorts of manufacturing products which are not covered by code, and which are manufactured by a mill subsidiary."

QUARTER ENDS WITH BUSINESS BEST SINCE 1931

Many Lines Equal Levels Prevailing in 1930.

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Business completed the most active first quarter since 1931 last week, with a few lines, notably automobile production, making the best showing since 1930. Last week was marked by the easing of labor tension, and settlement of the controversy in the automobile industry. This was followed by announcement of principal steel companies, and some other industrial concerns, of 10 per cent increases in wage rates.

The automobile industry had increased hourly wage rates 10 per cent in the previous week, at the same time shortening working hours by the same amount, but the steel industry is boosting wages without cutting hours.

Merchandisers Hopeful.

Spreading of the movement to increase the compensation of labor was viewed hopefully by merchandise distribution lines and producers of consumers goods. It has added a new element of uncertainty over costs. Some buying of steel developed in expectation of price increases, although production continued little changed, just under 50 per cent of capacity.

Retail trade has experienced a pre-Easter shopping season widely described as the best in four years. Wholesalers are running into a seasonal lull, but retailers are hopeful of a continuance of expanded volumes of spring merchandise as warm weather arrives. Seasonal lines have been moving in large volume.

Dun and Bradstreet says reports during the week indicate a volume of retail trade 70 per cent above extremely low levels of a year earlier, 20 per cent above levels of two years ago, and only a little under 1931. The movement of distinctly pre-Easter merchandise has in many instances exceeded 1931, however. The Dun and Bradstreet survey says "more wardrobes have been replenished this spring than was the case even back in the halcyon days of 1929."

Car Loadings Down.

The weekly report of the movement of freight on class one railroads shows some recession from the previous week, chiefly in the movement of coal and grain, which tended to lower some of the seasonally adjusted weekly index figures of business activity, but electric power consumption continued to expand, despite the lengthening of daylight. The Edison Electric institute's weekly report showed a small contraseasonal gain.

The week's reports mentioned further expansion of automobile sales, although Cram said the week's production declined a little, reflecting temporary assembly line difficulties and body shortages affecting two of the largest volume producers. First quarter production is estimated at 750,000 units, the largest since 1930.

Stewart-Warner Corporation.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate very much receiving information regarding stock of Stewart-Warner corporation.—H. L. G.

Answer: Stewart-Warner corporation achieved prominence as a manufacturer of automobile accessories, such as speedometers, shock absorbers, horns, etc. These were all covered by patents. As patents expired the former management initiated a program of diversification, going into the motion picture, refrigerator, radio and other fields. During the last few years heavy losses have been incurred.

Last year opponents of the policies of the old management obtained control of the company. The new management, including Eugene V. R. Thayer and R. J. Graham, made a thorough corporate reorganization. Four officers were let out of office. Suits to recover allegedly excessive salaries were instituted. The accounting system was revised to show a truer picture of operations. Drastic writedowns of assets were made. Some unprofitable lines were discontinued.

Sales for January and February, 1934, totaled $2,405,000, against $1,005,000 for the corresponding 1933 period. Net sales for 1933 were $9,920,000 and net loss was $1,791,000. In 1932 loss was $2,445,000 as presented by the former management. On the basis of the accounting system used by the new management loss was $3,417,000.

Loss in 1931 was $1,830,000, against net income of $1,262,000, or 98 cents per share, in 1930.

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets, including more than $1,200,000 cash assets, were $5,155,000, and current liabilities, including $300,000 bank loans, were $1,404,000.

Capitalization consists of 1,246,847 shares of $10 par stock on which nothing has been paid since Nov. 15, 1930. It is proposed that stockholders agree to change the par value of the stock to $5 to enable officers to set up a capital surplus to absorb heavy write-offs.

Sales have expanded materially since the low levels of the early part of 1933, both in the automobile accessory and the refrigerator division. Pending definite reports of profitable operations and building up of depleted reserves the stock must be considered speculative.

Gold Bullion.

Investors' Guide: If one owns a few pieces of gold bullion, would one be allowed to dispose of it to a dentist?—Mrs. C. P. B.

Answer: According to the federal reserve bank, a person who sells gold bullion which has never been fabricated or coined violates no law provided the amount is less than $100. The law is aimed primarily at the purchaser of gold and it would be up to the dentist who purchased it to protest himself.

PUBLIC UTILITY INVESTORS JOIN TO GET FAIR DEAL

Launching of a program designed to secure a fair deal for investors in utility securities is announced by Dr. Hugh Magill, president of the American Federation of Utility Investors, Inc., a nonprofit organization formed two months ago in the interest of utility security holders.

A definite stand is taken by the organization against political activities said to be detrimental to fair values of utility securities and for improvement of conditions within the industry which concern interests of utility investors.

The federation favors a reduction of excessive salaries and bonuses, uniform methods of accounting, and annual reports prepared by independent auditors. It proposes cooperation with government agencies, consumers, and utility companies in the elimination of abuses wherever they exist in the industry.

An appeal to the administration to stop future construction of projects in competition with investor-owned utilities, is contained in the program. It also urges the government to remove existing uncertainties which "imperil the future of investment in the utility industry."

NRA LABOR CODE THREAT TO TRADE RECOVERY: SLOAN

Sees Greatest Industrial Strife in History.

roads—we can only apply such regulations and assess such taxes as would be necessary if there were no railroads and let the fact be what it may."

"The tax burden of the highway user," said Mr. Sloan, "increased practically without interruption from 1919, when it stood at approximately $222,000,000," he said, "to 1933, when it was estimated as $1,170,000,000. It is estimated that 11 per cent of all taxes from all sources in the United States in 1933 was paid by the highway user. Despite a 13 per cent reduction in motor vehicle registration since 1929, the taxes of the highway user reached a new peak of 26 per cent more than the 1929 total.

"In recent years, various governmental authorities, faced with shrinking revenues and unbalanced budgets, have seized taxes levied against highway use for unemployment relief and for various other purposes not related to highway transportation. In 1932, it is estimated that more than $50,000,000 of highway funds were diverted to other purposes. While the figures of 1933 are not yet available, it would not be surprising if the total diversion reached nearly $200,000,000.

"To determine the amount the highway user should pay in consideration of the benefits received is not difficult. Having determined that amount, it should be distributed among the various groups of users in as equitable a manner as possible. Under no circumstances should any one form of transportation be penalized through the medium of specific taxes levied to provide funds for purposes outside of itself."

TEN MILLION TO SURPLUS

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

After paying its stockholders liberal dividends in 1933 General Motors corporation tucked away another $10,729,612 into its surplus account and closed the year with its working capital $18,395,702 higher than a year earlier.

Actually the company plowed back $20,208,476 into the business last year after paying its dividends. Offsetting charges, however, reduced the net addition to surplus. Total dividends distributed were $53,826,000 which was equivalent to approximately 75 per cent of the net earnings which amounted to $83,213,676.

Net Equal to $1.72 a Share.

Net earnings, previously reported, equaled $1.72 a share on the common stock after provision for preferred dividends. In 1932 the company earned a profit of $164,979 and showed a deficit of $9,041,408 after paying the senior stock dividends.

A compilation contained in the report disclosed that since 1909 the company has earned total net income of $1,769,049,347, of which it has paid $1,138,779,843 to its common stockholders and $127,909,336 to preferred stockholders. MEN—SOMETHING UNUSUAL!

THERE IS ALWAYS AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS THAT DOES NOT NEED TO ASK WHAT THE MARKET IS FOR IT OR THE STATE OF GENERAL INDUSTRY IS.

Under all conditions, in all times, there are some services and products in growing demand, and the unprecedented superiority of our invention is the basis of this offer of free instruction and immediate employment to men living on the West Side or in the Western suburbs.

From the first idea back of this remarkable electric unit invention that had its origin in America and was developed both abroad and here, with several type factories supplying these specialties that far outstrip the sale of all others, and with an aggregate of corporations with unlimited resources to insure the abundant development of the work, this business has grown unbrokenly. World leadership has been established.

The founders did the first selling and the first training. Ever since then the most successful salesmen have been trainers of new men who receive the same practical kind of help—plus the extra advantage of intensive merchandising research. With direct examples of successful methods to guide you, it does not take long to master the tasks required, but genuine character must be supplied. This work calls for manhood expressed in its best terms, for the assumption of responsibility, and intelligent, sustained effort. It pays far beyond the ordinary average of success. There are abundant examples of good comm. earnings by local men. M. Cooper received $33.70 for one week's work—L. Dorsey, $35.50—Fayrene, $46.29—Thomas Sturm, $81.71—C. Bradiah and C. Glade made over $70.00 each yesterday—and many other men made from $35.00 up to $75.00 and beyond for that profession. Those men longer in this work have made well over $100.00 for the week. T. N. Lind's weekly income exceeded $125.00—and on six occasions the past three weeks he has had single days in which he made from $45.00 up to $71.00 in a day.

Our successful men come from every trade and profession. Therefore, past experience is not so important as character and adaptability. We prefer married men between 26 and 45, and they must be neat and real workers. There will not be any layoffs! This is not a seasonal business to-day.

A limited number will be selected at this time. But the first step must be an interview so we can determine how we like you while you decide if you wish this work. There must be accord and understanding from the outset. For personal interview, apply Monday morning, from 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., Room 329 at 9 S. Kedzie-av., just south of Madison-st.

MEN IN WESTERN SUBURBS WHO CAN FURNISH GOOD CHARACTER REFERENCES.

Living in Oak Park, Lake Forest, Forest Park, Maywood, Elmhurst, Austin and nearby suburbs—are 25 to 45, who have had some selling experience, or would like to learn selling. An excellent opportunity. This is not an easy, small paying position, but rather hard work and pays a lot of money in good cash commissions always available. It pays exceptionally well for the time and effort you put into it, and the skill you acquire in your work. To give an idea of earnings, we have men making as low as $100 a month, and others make $200, $300 and more; many of our more experienced men make increasing amounts each month. We have a big, strong company leading in the electric unit field, and has not known any depression. We have had a consistent increase in our business ever since it was established in America some years ago. You are invited to call Monday afternoon at 8 o'clock—no other time. Room 401, Marion Bldg., Lake and Marion-sts., Oak Pk.
